TAFT HINTS AT DEFEAT IN 1912

CRISIS FOR REPUBLICANS

But President Hopeful That Party Has Been Chastened Only That It May Be Better.

STILL LOYAL IF A CHANGE

Promises Support to New Government with Consolation That Democrats Will Have but One Term.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—President Taft surprised a large audience at the dinner of the Hamilton Club to-day by what most of his hearers construed as an admission of the possibility of Republican defeat in the coming National election. He was speaking to what had promised to be an unusually enthusiastic audience of Republicans.

Those present hastened to ascribe the President's utterances to weariness after his long tour of speech-making, and especially after the three days' hard campaign in Chicago. It was his last public utterance in Chicago before leaving for Pittsburgh to-night.

"Now we are at—some people think—the crisis in the Republican Party with reference to its continuance in the guidance of the Nation," the President said. "I am hopeful that the good people of the country, who know a good thing when they see it, have only chastened us in an off-year, in order that we may be better hereafter, but with no intention of shifting from shoulders that are fitted to bear the burdens of the present problems and carry them to a successful solution, to those which are untried and which have new theories of action that we do not believe in, and that we don't believe the people believe in.

"However, if so be it that they desire to make a change we shall loyally support the new government under any conditions, with the hope it will inure to the benefit of the country, but with the consolation that, if after one trial the people think they ought to go back to the old party that has served them so well in the progressive days of the Nation, they will do so—we can bear that, my friends; that is all."

After his address the President retired to his hotel for rest. Though he professed no weariness the three days' steady strain had told on him, and it was a tired man who led the Presidential party out of Chicago at 5:30 P. M. over the Pennsylvania Railroad for Pittsburgh.

Roger C. Sullivan, when he returned to his home to-night from a trip to Toledo, said that he had not read President Taft's speech at the Hamilton Club in full, but that it impressed him as being either an admission of Republican defeat or an effort to drive Republicans into making a harder fight.

"I have not had an opportunity to read the speech clear through," said the Democratic National Committeeman, "but I have glanced at it and got the general trend.

"My interpretation of it is that either President Taft was very frankly admitting that the Republican Party is hopelessly up against it in the coming election or else he was—to use a slang expression—trying to throw a scare into some members of the Republican Party in Illinois who have strayed from the fold and are trying to conduct a fight of their own.

"I am inclined to take the view that this is a frank confession of impending trouble. But whether the President meant it as that or not the fact is the Democrats have a better chance of victory at the next National election than they have had in years. I believe the next President will be a Democrat."

Just what caused President Taft to sound a gloomy note none of his advisers would say, although some of them hazarded the view that it was the result of the tales of chaos and disaster in Illinois Republicanism that have been carried to him and to Secretary Hilles during the four days' stay in Chicago. But all of them seemed to feel that the President had made a dangerous admission, and it is not likely that he will be allowed to permit his philosophy to upset his politics that way again.

New York is giving the Taft leaders considerable worry, but they feel that unless former President Roosevelt comes out into the open as an opponent of the President, the Taft cause is sure to get the solid delegation from that State.

Most of the four days of political work in Chicago centred on the situation in Illinois. All of the President's advisers declare that they are sure he will have the solid delegation from this State.

The address before the Hamilton Club, in which the possibility of defeat found expression followed the laying of the cornerstone of the new home of the Hamilton Club, one of the leading Republican clubs of the Middle West. A surging crowd in the street strove so energetically for a glimpse of the President he was unable to speak for more than a few minutes preceding the actual laying of the stone.

The cornerstone ceremony followed a trip through the stock yards and a visit to the National dairy show at the Dexter Pavilion. The remainder of the President's day was spent at his hotel in receiving politicians and friends.

The President had a short conference with Louis de la Barra, brother of the President of Mexico, who brought greetings and expressions of good-will from the Executive of the southern republic.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30.—It has developed that the women waiters at the dinner given to President Taft last Friday collected $65 in tips by passing plates among the guests, but that before they had distributed the money a man demanded that it be turned over to him to be evenly disbursed among all those employed at the dinner.

The man disappeared with the money.

MAYOR TO SELL PORK NEXT.

Shank of Indianapolis Keeps Up War on Commission Men.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 30.—Elated at the success attending the sale on the city market of potatoes and pears practically at producers' prices, in his war on the high cost of living, and his fight against the commission merchants, Mayor Shank contemplates taking up the matter of similar sales on apples and pork. The Mayor has sold seven carloads of potatoes at cost to the consumer, and he sold his first carload of pears last Saturday. The Mayor believes that it will be possible to offer pork and apples at correspondingly low prices, and through such sales break prevailing prices in this city.

With thousands of bushels of apples rotting on the ground in Indiana, apples are selling in the city at from 70 cents to $1 a bushel. The Mayor expects to look into the wisdom of bringing a carload of apples to the city on Saturday and selling them at from 30 to 40 cents a bushel direct to the public.

Yesterday the Mayor made a personal trip into the country and talked with a number of farmers about hogs. He found one farmer who offered to sell, killed and dressed at 15 cents per pound, which, the Mayor says, proves that local prices of pork are too high and that the public is being robbed by being forced to pay too much profit to the middleman. He believes that several farmers might be induced to kill and dress hogs and place them on sale at the city market at prices much below those now charged in the city. In this sale the Mayor would include smoked ham and bacon, so that one would stock up on such meats for the Winter.

R. C. VANDERBILT, SLEUTH.

Traps a Servant Who Was Stealing Wine and Jewelry.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Oct. 30.—E. Gillingham is no longer a butler at Sandy Point Farm in Portsmouth. Indeed, E. Gillingham no longer is on the farm payroll, and incidentally the drain on Reginald C. Vanderbilt's jewelry, silverware, and wine cellar has ceased, all due to Reginald C. Vanderbilt's ability as a detective.

For some time Mr. Vanderbilt's valuables have been vanishing. Dining room silver disappeared, and the wine took wings. Mr. Vanderbilt enrolled several trusties in the search, and one evening E. Gillingham, butler, was found hiding some forks. The trusties restored the silverware to its proper place and then notified their employer.

Mr. Vanderbilt questioned the butler, who, after restoring all the property except the wine, which had been shipped to New York and sold, was summarily discharged.

LOCK UP FILM COMPANY HEAD

William S. Milliken, President of the Film Company of America, was arrested in the elaborate offices of the company on the twelfth floor of 145 West Forty-fifth Street late yesterday aternoon, charged with larceny in the first degree.

District Attorney Abbott H. Jones of Rensselaer County came down from Troy, N. Y., armed with a bench warrant issued by a Troy Magistrate. He first went to Police Headquarters and showed his warrant, and was sent up to the West Forty-seventh Street Station, where detectives were assigned to him. Then he went to Milliken's office, where the warrant was served.

Milliken took his arrest coolly. Neither he nor District Attorney Jones would discuss the reason for his arrest. He was unable to obtain bail by midnight and remained in a West Forty-seventh Street Station cell. He will be taken to Troy to-day, the police say.

END OF FIFTH AVENUE DUST.

Sprinklers Put on Now, Residents Preferring Even the Mud.

Residents and shopkeepers in Fifth Avenue above Forty-sixth Street, dust covered for many weeks on account of street repair work, learned yesterday with pleasure that the avenue is to be sprinkled every afternoon. Even with the dust turned to mud, they argue that they will be gainers.

The relief comes to Fifth Avenue dwellers in response to a complaint from Col. Edward S. Cornell, Secretary of the National Highways Protective Society, to Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards. In reply to Col. Cornell's letter Commissioner Edwards said:

> You can appreciate the deplorable condition of the pavement in that vicinity while the new pavement is being put down by the Borough President, and how absolutely impossible it is for the Department of Street Cleaning properly to do its work. There is no question that when this work is complete we will be able to keep the thoroughfare in first-class condition. However, with the pavement entirely removed, as it is, and torn up in certain places, the best possible arrangement I can make at present will be to put in some sprinkling carts to keep the dirt wet.

The carts suddenly appeared on the avenue yesterday afternoon, and soon had the dust temporarily settled.

MILLS ESTATE DISTRIBUTED.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 30.—Judge Graham made a formal distribution this morning of California property amounting to $2,220,208 of the late D. O. Mills. Distribution was made at the request of Ogden Mills, who with Elizabeth Reid will receive one-half of the estate, except some bequests to charity.

DESERT MARBLE WORKERS.

Sympathetic Strike Soon Over—No Agreement with Metal Workers.

The first sympathetic strike of the unions in the building trades in support of the striking marble workers, on an office building at Twenty-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue, which went into effect on Friday, was shortlived. All the strikers went back to work yesterday except the cement workers, who will return to work to-day.

The failure of this strike leaves the marble workers to fight it out alone.

ARABS SLAUGHTERED BY ITALIAN TROOPS

300 KILLED IN BENGAZI

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

"The severity with which the Italian Army exacted retribution upon the suburban Arabs who rose last Monday might justly be described as indiscriminate slaughter.

"The two quarters from which the Arabs assailed the bersaglieri in the rear have been turned into human abattoirs. It has been a miserable business, but in the circumstances, I presume, the General Staff had no alternative but to give this horrid lesson.

"The considerations were these: The Turks had succeeded in enlisting the active sympathies of a greater number of Arabs than was anticipated, and the staff therefore felt anxiety concerning the strength of their own line of resistance.

"It was known that the Turks before their evacuation of the town had distributed 10,000 magazine rifles and ammunition to the local Arabs. Of these only 5,000 were collected. The Italians, therefore, were faced by the possibility of a sudden rising by 5,000 armed Arabs in the rear of their line of defense, in a country the intricacy of which beggars description.

"On ordinary grounds of military prudence immediate measures were necessary, especially as a Turkish attack on a large scale was believed to be imminent. Although I cannot commend the ruthless measures employed, yet I cannot deny the necessity of the drastic quelling of the insurrection. The Italians having set themselves to cow the Arabs, the floodgates of blood and lust were opened, and in many instances the men got beyond control and the innocent suffered with the guilty.

"The tale of retribution has been shockingly heavy, but nothing to what the indiscriminate carnage would have been if the rising had not been premature and had occurred at the same time as the Turkish attack on Oct. 26.

"The memory of this awful retribution will take long to live down. Even making allowances for the exigencies of the military situation, there is every possibility that the hideous severity of this retribution will give rise to a war of sanguinary, pitiless reprisals.

"War is merciless. I have witnessed one of its most merciless phases. One hardly knows to what limits the elasticity of the phrase 'military exigencies' will be stretched in the twentieth century."

TRIPOLI, Oct. 28, (via Malta, Oct. 30.)—For three days the Italians have been systematically slaughtering rebels in the residential oasis outside the city. Every Arab met has been shot down without trial.

The search for Arabs continues, and the summary executions are not yet ended.

Nothing more deplorable than the scenes of massacre at Tripoli have been witnessed in a war for many years.

The Arabs caught were shot en masse upon the orders given by the Italian authorities to exterminate all Arabs discovered in the residential oasis.

For three days the horrible task has been continued. Parties of soldiers penetrated everywhere, shooting indiscriminately all whom they met, without trial and without appeal.

The incessant popping of rifles marked the progress of the troops. The innocent and the guilty alike were wiped out. Many of those killed were quite young. A great number of women perished.

It is impossible to state the number who were shot, but scarcely any of the large native population occupying an oasis many square miles in extent escaped.

In the confusion attending the Italian bombardment of Bengazi on Oct. 19 immense damage was done. Three hundred civilians, one-half of whom were women and children, were killed.

ROME, Oct. 30.—The Italian nobility, like the people, are paying tribute in blood for the African conquest.

Word has reached here of the death in action at Homs, Tripoli, of Duke Riccardo Grazioli Lante della Rovere, a Lieutenant in the navy, and of the serious wounding of Count Pompeo di Campello, a Lieutenant of cavalry and a gentleman-in-waiting to the King.

Both had many friends among Americans. They were well-known sportsmen, the Duke as a tennis player and Count di Campello as a master of foxhounds.

The Duke Grazioli was 25 years old. He had served as a naval officer at Chinese ports since 1908. He returned a few weeks before the beginning of the war and expected to spend his vacation with his family. When recalled aboard his ship he bade farewell to his mother, a lady-in-waiting to the Queen, and said, laughingly, "I am going to fight the Turks." The Duchess fainted when notified by an officer that her son had been wounded, guessing the truth. The Duke, his father, who thus lost his only son, said: "I wish I had been in his place. I envy him."

Signor Sonnino was distressed over the death of Staff Captain Verri, who had been his guide. Capt. Verri was in Tripoli before the war began, disguised as a Postal Inspector. He prepared the plans for the landing of the expedition that arrived later. Verri took part in the campaign in Abyssinia and participated in the expedition in China in 1900.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 30.—There are renewed rumors of a serious Italian defeat at Tripoli, but the War Minister is unable to confirm them.

It is stated that the Porte has notified the powers of its intention to cease all negotiations for mediation.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 31.—A telegram from Constantinople says:

"According to news from Tripoli published here the Turks have captured the last of the Italian outer entrenchments and have occupied the suburb of Zahre and all the approaches to Tripoli from the northwest.

"Before the battle the tribesmen took a solemn oath to sacrifice themselves to the last man in defense of their country. One hundred and fifty Arabs, who were holding a certain position, bound themselves together with straps fastened to their ankles and swore not to move from their tracks until their ammunition was exhausted."

JUDICIARY SCANDAL STIRS PROSECUTORS

HOPE TO TRACE MONEY HERE

Whitman Issues Subpoenas, Presumably to Get Evidence on Willett's Campaign Fund.

Investigations in three counties of the circumstances surrounding the nomination of Patrick E. Callahan, Herbert T. Ketcham, and William Willett, Jr., for Supreme Court Justices by the Democratic Convention of the Second Judicial District were begun yesterday as a direct result of the intimation made last week by William Berri, publisher of The Brooklyn Standard Union, that money was a factor in obtaining at least one of the nominations.

District Attorney Frederick G. De Witt of Queens County, after a conference with Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder, announced that the present Queens County Grand Jury is to be continued into next month for the purpose of finding out just how Mr. Willett of Far Rockaway got his nomination. He has already admitted that he borrowed $20,000 the very day he was nominated, and that $10,000 of this amount was to be used for election purposes. Robert H. Elder, acting District Attorney of Kings in place of John F. Clarke, who is ill, announced that the matter would be taken before the Kings County Grand Jury just as soon as evidence was found that a crime had been attempted or committed, and District Attorney Whitman of Manhattan, after a consultation with Mier Steinbrink, counsel for Mr. Berri, and Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for William R. Hearst, admitted that subpoenas had been issued for certain men, and that Judge Rosalsky of General Sessions would sit as a committing Magistrate on all the cases.

Mr. Whitman would make no further statement in regard to the matter, and refused to give out the names of any of the persons for whom subpoenas have been issued. All the subpoenas were made returnable to-day. Lawyer Steinbrink was closeted with the District Attorney for several hours. When he left he refused to say what he had talked about. He had scarcely gone when Lawyer Shearn, who also represents the Independence League, appeared, and he also had a long conference with Mr. Whitman. The District Attorney is taking an interest in the case because he was informed that if any money was paid it may have passed hands in New York County. Mr. Shearn also had a long talk with Judge Rosalsky.

The quickest action is looked for from Queens County. Only one Grand Jury can sit in Queens County at a time, and if the present Grand Jury was discharged, the incoming jury would be charged by County Judge Burt Jay Humphrey, who was a candidate for the nomination which Mr. Willett obtained.

The fact that Justice Scudder decided to continue the Grand Jury, which is under his direction, was considered as adding to the gravity of the situation. It was said that his action was based upon substantial information which had been presented to him from a sounrce as yet undisclosed.

In order to lay a foundation for Grand Jury proceedings District Attorney De Witt yesterday sent out notification to a number of persons to appear before him this morning. They will be examined in private by the District Attorney, and if evidence of a criminal nature is brought to light the Grand Jury, which took a recess until Friday, when it was to be discharged, will be called into session to-morrow and the investigation started at once. In an interview District Attorney De Witt said he would probe the scandal to the bottom without fear or favor.

"I think the voters of the district are entitled to know the truth about these rumors before Election Day," said Mr. De Witt. "As election is only a week away, there is no time to lose. If the rumors are untrue the public should know it. The public is also entitled to know if a crime has been committed.

"Owing to the gravity of the situation and the high office involved, I think that, in justice to himself, Mr. Willett should be the first one to step forward and demand a Grand Jury investigation. On examining the witnesses who may appear before me to-morrow, if it should appear that a crime has been committed, no time will be lost in presenting the matter to the Grand Jury, and I have already received assurances from Justice Scudder that he will continue the present Grand Jury into the month of November if it is deemed necessary.

"In order to make an investigation I must have legal evidence; not hearsay or rumor, and I think it is the duty of any citizen who knows anything that may throw light on the rumors now afloat to come forward and submit his evidence. As far as my office is concerned the investigation will be conducted without fear or favor."

In addition to the proposed Grand Jury investigation, Judge Humphrey, as President of the Queens County Bar Association, has directed the Secretary to call a meeting of the association in the county Court House in Long Island City, for Thursday afternoon, when the scandal will be taken under consideration. A lively session is predicted, and it is hinted that drastic recommendations will probably be made.

Acting District Attorney Elder of Kings said he also intended to probe the matter to the bottom. He said he examined two witnesses yesterday, and that more would be cross-questioned to-day. He refused to divulge names.

The Executive Committee of the Independence League met in Brooklyn last night and repudiated their indorsement of Callahan and Willett. As they hadn't indorsed Surrogate Ketcham, they contented themselves with denouncing his candidacy. In a set of resolutions they advised their followers to vote against all three candidates.

John H. McCooey, Democratic boss of Brooklyn, who is being criticised by many of his followers as being responsible for the predicament of the local organization,

WARSHIPS AGLITTER FOR SEVEN MILES

FLORIDA JOINS THE COLUMN

Seven miles of glittering battleships and armored cruisers flashed in the Hudson last night. The picture began off Fifty-seventh Street, where the flagship Connecticut of the Atlantic Fleet was outlined in electricity from stem to stern, and ended off Fort Washington Point, opposite which promontory are anchored the Dreadnoughts Utah and Florida, the last-named taking her place for the first time in the line-up of the fleet under Rear Admiral Osterhaus, in the afternoon.

The spectacle lasted for four hours, and during that time Riverside Drive, from one end to the other, was thronged with men, women, and children, who kept moving mostly to the north, their eyes focused on the shimmering warships.

Promptly on the stroke of 7 o'clock the ships loomed out of the darkness from waterline to the tops of their big latticework masts. When the picture flashed out of the darkness Riverside Drive was crowded with sightseers who were out to witness the splendor of the display.

Off Fifty-seventh Street, one of the poorest anchorages in the column so far as the New York shore view is concerned, the big battleship Connecticut, flagship in turn of Admirals Evans, Thomas, Sperry, Schroeder, and Osterhaus, became at the stroke of 7 a golden electrical thing that could be seen for miles on the Jersey side, but was to a great extent obscured from the view of spectators on this side of the river, except those who were fortunate enough to be on the tops of high buildings along the water front, from which a good view of the entire display was to be had.

Next in line above the Connecticut was the dreadnought Michigan, the fleet champion in battle efficiency. Her crew had seen to it that she should stand out prominently in her electrical dress. It appeared that the lights were closer together on the Michigan than on any of the other ships, and nothing about her upper works had been forgotten by the electricians. Atop of her forward latticework mast there shone a brilliant thing of red in the centre of which was a big black spot. That was the efficiency pennant done in wood and glass. The field of the figure was a mass of red lights so close that they looked like one big one, and in its centre were scores of big black bulbs that had been arranged to outline the ball, showing that the ship is the last trophy winner of the fleet.

After the Michigan came the Delaware and North Dakota, sister dreadnoughts of 20,000 tons and until the coming of the Utah and the Florida the mightiest of all the ships in the Hudson. The display made by these two monsters of the navy was one of the finest in the illuminated column. Forward, those on shore could see the two big turrets, and aft three more of the same kind. One funnel, it was noted by all, glittered between the two masts, and the other was outlined just forward of the first mast, an arrangement of funnels and masts peculiar to these two ships.

After the dreadnoughts came the Second Division flagship Louisiana, sister of the Connecticut, which was the same sister in electricity that she is in steel by day. Next in line after the Louisiana was the Vermont, the first ship of her type in the column. Every line stood out and her three funnels and two lattice masts glittered brilliantly. Her twin, the New Hampshire, was 300 yards above her, and then came a break in the ships of the Vermont class.

The dreadnought South Carolina was the ship that broke the symmetry of the picture made by the ships of the Vermont type, but she did not in any way detract from the picture. Like her famous sister, the Michigan, her masts and funnels were so completely wired that they seemed to be on fire.

After the South Carolina come two more of the Vermont kind, the Kansas and Minnesota, and then for the first time a ship of the Missouri class was seen. It was the Missouri, her thousands of lights making her look as new as the Florida, although, with the Ohio, her sister and next in line above her, she is the oldest ship now in the Atlantic fleet.

After the Ohio came the Mississippi, cut out in brilliant lines of dazzling lights. Then the picture was broken, for the next ship appeared to be without masts, as did also half a dozen more above her, the electricians of the Idaho, Virginia, Nebraska, New Jersey, Georgia, and armored cruiser Washington, stretching from off 116th to 137th Street, having failed to wire masts and funnels. To-night it is understood that the masts will have been wired, and then for the first time the illumination will be complete from one end of the column to the other.

The armored cruiser North Carolina, next in the line, stood out in gorgeous outline. Next came the Maine, a sister of the Missouri, then the veterans of Santiago, and lastly, off Fort Washington Point, the two biggest and most powerful ships now in commission in the navy, the Florida and Utah.

That was the end of the illuminated column. Those of the ships to the number of about seventy-five which were not illuminated, all had their searchlights in operation, each shaft pointing over the city at an angle of 45 degrees. Between Seventy-ninth and 137th Streets the big shafts of white light that shot across the city from the destroyers and torpedo boats looked as if they flashed up out of the water, owing to the low freeboards of the ships from which they were operated.

FLORIDA GETS A WELCOME.

New Dreadnought's First Appearance in the Fleet Raises a Racket.

The fleet of warships that will be inspected by the Secretary of the Navy to-morrow afternoon and reviewed both at anchor and under way by President Taft on Thursday was completed yesterday afternoon when the dreadnought Florida, newest of American ships now in commission, and, with the Utah, the biggest, left the navy yard and, led by a fleet of six tugs, slowly worked her way to an anchorage off Fort Washington Point.

It was the first time that the Florida has ever left the navy yard, and the welcome she got when she rounded the Battery and headed for her place at the northern end of the armorclad line was one of the noisiest ever given to a battleship in New York.

The giant fighter looked all that her builders say she is, and, although six big navy tugs were pulling her and another acting as a rudder astern, it was not because the Florida could not have gone up unaided, but because her builders, the constructors at the New York Navy Yard, and her officers thought it wise not to take any chances with a vessel that had never before been out of the yard in which she was built.

Capt. Harry S. Knapp was in command, and he was on the bridge every minute of the two hours that it took the tugs to guide the battleship to her position off Fort Washington Point. The Florida barked her first salute just as she was leaving the navy yard. It was a thirteen-gun one in honor of Rear Admiral Leutze, commandant of the yard. Then, after she rounded into the North River and reached a point off Forty-second Street the dreadnought began firing a second time. This time it was thirteen guns for Admiral Osterhaus, this signalizing her junction with the Atlantic fleet. The Connecticut responded with seven guns for Capt. Knapp, and then the band on the Florida played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the Florida was then for the first time a

BARNES OBTAINS DELAY.

Contempt Proceedings Postponed at Request of Senator Brackett.

BALLSTON, N. Y., Oct. 30.—After an hour's argument this afternoon, Supreme Court Justice Joseph A. Kellogg adjourned until Thursday at 1:30 P. M. the contempt proceedings brought against William Barnes, Jr., Chairman of the Republican State Committee, for refusal to answer questions asked him in the investigation which the Senate Committee is conducting into Albany city and county affairs.

James W. Osborne, counsel to the committee, and Arthur T. Warner, one of his assistants, appeared in behalf of the investigators, and William M. Ivins and Senator Edgar T. Brackett represented Mr. Barnes, who had been ordered to show cause why he should not be committed to the Albany County Jail for alleged contempt of the committee.

Senator Brackett asked for the postponement on the ground that he had not had sufficient time in which to prepare an answer.

BOMB RIPS UP A TENEMENT.

Smashes Nearby Windows and Drives Out Settlement Workers.

A bomb exploded last night on the fifth floor of a tenement house at 410 East Thirteenth Street, smashing windows in buildings on the opposite side of the street, including the settlement house of Grace Church Chapel, on the north side of Thirteenth Street and the south side of Fourteenth Street. The explosion drove 200 settlement workers and patrons into the street.

The bomb wrecked the embroidery works of Leonardo Reina, and falling glass injured his wife. The apartment of James Bonasero, just across the hall from the Reinas, was demolished.

There have been nine bomb explosions on the block in the last four months. The last of them, a few weeks ago, was on the doorstep of Paracatto & Rivo's bank, at 424 East Thirteenth Street. Reina denied having received threatening letters.

HORSEWHIPS WRONG MAN.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Oct. 30.—John H. Tyson of Riverside was horsewhipped by proxy to-day by a farmer who said Tyson had often crowded him off the road with his auto. The unwilling proxy was Alexander Howell, President of the Howell Motors Company and State agent for the S. P. C. A.

Howell in his fast car was turning from Post Road into Riverside Avenue when he met a farm wagon, in which were three men. As the car reached the wagon the driver of the horse reached out with his whip and cut Mr. Howell twice with the lash across the head, drawing blood. Howell stopped his car, dragged the driver from the wagon, gave him a good licking, and then informed him he was under arrest.

The farmer said he thought Howell was Tyson and was sorry he had struck him. Howell let the farmer go with a caution.

ENTOMOLOGIST A PORTER.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 30.—Frederick Jordan, recently Vice President of the Entomological Society of England, got a job to-day as night porter in the Auditorium Hotel. His health demanded a change of climate and a little work with much rest, and his doctor sent him here.

Jordan is wrapped up in the study of butterflies and moths. In addition his knowledge of zoology is extensive.

"You know butterflies are such beautiful things, and there are so many hundred varieties that there is always something new to discover about them," he said to-day. "Here in Southern California I have found the butterflies, despite the lateness of the season, very numerous, and they are much more richly colored than the species to be found in England or in the northern parts of the continent where I have collected.

"Some that I have found here are the Spring beauty, the holly blue, the zebra, swallowtail, the checkered skipper, the brown argus, the Clifden nonpareil, the tortoise shell, the Mother Shipton, and the Duke of Burmundy fritillary."

J. P. MORGAN SUBPOENAED.

Referee Wants His Testimony About His Interest in a Millinery Business.

J. P. Morgan was subpoenaed yesterday by Peter B. Olney, referee in bankruptcy, to appear at his office, 68 William Street, on Nov. 9, to give evidence in the bankruptcy proceedings of Herman P. Tappe, the fashionable milliner of West Fortieth Street.

Tappe has stated that when he was starting in business he obtained $5,000 capital from Mr. Morgan, and the lawyers wish to hear the truth about the deal and to ascertain whether Mr. Morgan is in any other way interested in the business.

HEARST BUYS ANOTHER PAPER

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 30.—W. R. Hearst has bought The Herald, the oldest morning paper in this city, in order to obtain an Associated Press franchise for his Examiner. The Herald plant will be transferred to a syndicate and will become an evening paper.

These changes are the result of a bitter newspaper war which has been in progress for many months between Mr. Hearst and Gen. H. G. Otis, owner of The Los Angeles Times, on one side and E. T. Earl, proprietor of The Evening Express, and the recently established Morning Tribune on the other. The Herald will be used to fight The Express in the evening field.

The price for the paper was not stated.

CANTON JOINS THE REVOLT

Republican Flag Hoisted After Citizens' Meeting, but Setback for Revolution in Kwan-Tung Is Reported.

PEKING, Oct. 30.—The demand of the National Assembly for a complete constitutional Government has been acceded to by the Throne.

An imperial edict was issued to-day apologizing for the past neglect of the Throne and granting an immediate Constitution, with a Cabinet from which nobles are to be excluded. A second edict grants pardon to political offenders connected with the revolution of 1898 and subsequent revolutions, and to those compelled to join in the present rebellion.

The imperial edict, which is ostensibly from the hand of the infant Emperor Hsuan-Tung, says:

> I have reigned three years and have always acted conscientiously in the interests of the people. But I have not employed men properly, as I am without political skill. I have employed too many nobles in political positions, which contravenes constitutionalism.
> On railway matters one whom I trusted deceived me. Hence public opinion was antagonized. When I urge reform, officials and the gentry seize the opportunity to embezzle. Much of the people's money has been taken, but nothing to benefit the people has been achieved.
> On several occasions edicts have promulgated laws, but none of them has been obeyed. The people are grumbling, yet I do not know. Disasters loom ahead, but I do not see.

After referring to the uprisings in various places, the edict continues:

> The whole Empire is seething. The spirits of our nine deceased Emperors are unable to enjoy the sacrifices properly, while it is feared that the people will suffer grievously.
> All these things are my own fault, and I hereby announce to the world that I swear to reform and with our soldiers and people to carry out the Constitution faithfully, modifying legislation, promoting the interests of the people, and abolishing their hardships, all in accordance with their wishes and interests. The old laws that are unsuitable will be abolished. The union of the Manchus and Chinese, mentioned by the late Emperor, I shall carry out now. Finances and diplomacy have reached bedrock.
> Even if all unite, I still fear that we may fall. If the Empire's subjects do not regard and do not honor fate, and are easily misled by outlaws, then the future of China is unthinkable. I am most anxious day and night. My only hope is that my subjects will thoroughly understand.

The Throne promises to organize a Cabinet without nobles forthwith. The Manchu Prince Shi-Hsu, President of the Assembly, is permitted to resign, the Chinese Li Chia-Chu succeeding him. The Manchu Kuei-Chun, Minister of Constabulary, has been removed, and the Chinese Chao Ping-Chun supersedes him in that office.

Nervousness in Peking.

The lines around Peking are tightening. While there is no great panic observable in the capital among the higher classes and the foreigners, there has been a perceptible increase of tension everywhere. The legation quarter is preparing for emergencies, and in some cases temporary fortifications have been placed in position. These consist largely of bags of sand. Strong detachments of troops guard the palace and the gates of the city.

While the Throne has made haste to comply with the demands of the 20,000 soldiers of the Third and Twentieth Divisions and the Second Mixed Brigade, which were presented by the National Assembly, it cannot be said that Peking is yet safe from attack.

The imperial edict is widely discussed, and it is generally believed that it was issued in order to provide Yuan Shi-Kai with a powerful lever to use in his negotiations with the rebels. Its effect in Peking is already good. The fear of the people, which was great this morning when it became known that the capital was threatened with attack unless the Government acceded immediately to demands of far-reaching importance, has somewhat subsided to-night, although the 600,000 Chinese continue to fear a massacre, while the 100,000 Manchus are in dread of a Chinese attack. Many high officials, deserting their posts, have fled to Tien-Tsin.

At Tien-Tsin to-day the foreign troops marched around the concession for the purpose of impressing the natives with their numbers, armament, and general preparedness for trouble. The Customs Commissioner received a letter, signed by Shuh Yen-Fang on behalf of the Tien-Tsin branch of the revolutionary committee, announcing the intention of the committee soon to take possession of both Tien-Tsin and Peking.

The Government has received reports that rebels from Tai-yuan-Fu, the capital of Shan-Si Province, have marched eastward and cut off War Minister Yin-Tchang's railway communication with Peking.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—Revolutionary leaders here are unanimous in declaring that the plan for a constitutional Government offered by the Manchu dynasty will not be accepted, and that the rebellion will be continued until the monarchy is overthrown and a republic is established.

"We don't want a monarchy," said Teng King-Chong, Secretary of the Chinese National Committee. "We don't admit the right of a Manchu to sit on the throne. Even if he is deprived of power it would mean nothing for us in the end, for gradually the old abuses would come back.

"The plan of government demanded by the army and National Assembly and granted by the throne was formulated by Yuan Shi-Kai. He offered it as a solution to us some time ago and we spurned it. The so-called National Assembly does not represent the people. Its delegates were named by the Viceroys of the different provinces and are friendly to the dynasty."

Canton Favors the Rebels.

A cablegram received here to-day by the Chung Sai Yat Po says the city of Canton voted at a gigantic mass meeting yesterday, at which a majority of its citizens were present, to join the revolutionists. Formal resolutions were passed recognizing the revolutionary Government and notifying the Viceroy of the action. The republican flag was immediately afterward hoisted on all the housetops in spite of opposition by the Viceroy.

A cablegram from Canton, received by the Young China newspaper, states that the Canton authorities have been asked to recognize the revolutionists or face a revolt to-morrow. Twelve hours was the time limit given in the ultimatum. The municipal officers are considering the demand.

A message received yesterday by the Young China Association from Wong Wan-Sue, President of the North American branch of the association, directed that the membership rolls be closed until a high rate of initiation had been fixed. Wong, who is touring the country with Dr. Sun Yat Sen, said also that Dr. Sun would start for China in a few days by way of the Suez Canal. Dr. Sun was in Philadelphia when Wong's message was sent from New York.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Chiefly as a result of its repudiation by the Viceroy and the principal civil and military authorities, and the fact that the troops in the Provinces remained loyal to the Viceroy, the Provisional Government of Kwan-Tung, recently declared at a meeting of the citizens of Canton, has fallen, according to State Department advices to-day.

Although Canton is reported quiet, the situation in that city and at Nanking is said to be threatening.

It is the intention of the Chinese Government, according to reports, to cut the Peking-Hankow Railway at Cheng-Ting and also the Peking-Mukden Railway at Lwan-Chow. Although the advices do not indicate the reason for this, it is undoubtedly to prevent the revolutionists from using the railroad in an advance on Peking.

Constitution Had Been Promised.

The granting of a constitution to China by the Government—which means the Manchu ruling caste—is in reality only an acceleration of the programme of reform which was decided upon by that Government five years ago. Whether the promises then made were sincere is another question, but there is no doubt that the programme prepared then and in the succeeding years has so far been faithfully carried out.

The first steps toward a constitutional Government in China were taken in December, 1905, when commissioners were sent to England, Germany, and Japan to study the Governmental systems in those countries. In 1906 the first definite promise regarding a reform of the system in China was made public. An edict was issued setting forth that, while the supreme control would remain with the Throne, a constitutional Government would be inaugurated in a few years. A year later another edict ordered the establishment of a committee of Ministers to prepare the foundations of constitutional Government, and in October of the same year (1907) it was proclaimed that each prefecture and district was to organize a local elective Assembly. In July, 1908, regulations for the provincial Assemblies, which were to be established within a year, were published.

A month later an edict set forth the principles of the constitutional system to be inaugurated in 1917, and the steps to be taken toward it in each of the intervening years. The earliest of those steps were to be, in 1909, the creation of the provincial Assemblies; in 1910, the taking of a census, the preparation of provincial budgets, and the promulgation of a new criminal code; in 1910, the convocation of a national Assembly, with membership made up from the provincial Assemblies, and having the responsibility of adopting a constitution, and, in 1911, the establishment of courts of justice.

Opinions as to the feasibility of the scheme varied greatly. The lines of the proposed Chinese constitution followed closely those of the constitution of Japan, but the late Prince Ito declared that its success was doubtful and that its failure would imperil the peace of all Eastern Asia. On the other hand, the late Sir Robert Hart declared that a "wonderful future" was in store for the "awakened empire."

The twenty-one Provincial Assemblies were opened on Oct. 14, 1909, and the National Assembly was convened on Oct. 2, 1910. One-half of the membership of the latter body was named by the Throne and the other half was elected. One of its first acts was to prepare a memorial praying for the acceleration of the reform plan and the early summoning of a full Parliament. The reply was an imperial edict announcing that an upper and a lower House of Parliament would be formed in three years' time. This delay was not satisfactory to the National Assembly, and the agitation for the immediate convocation of a Parliament and the institution of a constitutional governmen has continued.

A dispatch from Peking on Sunday said that 20,000 soldiers of the Third and Twentieth Divisions and the Second Mixed Brigade had given the Regent the option of immediately accepting their demand for a complete constitutional Government or facing an attack by Government troops on the capital. The National Assembly, the dispatch said, had indorsed these demands and presented them to the Throne. The memorial was prefaced by a declaration that the troops would uphold the Manchu dynasty if the provisions set forth were accepted.

Hsuan Tung, Emperor of China, was born in the Forbidden City in Peking on the fourteenth day of the first month of the thirty-second year of the late Emperor Kwang-Su—in other words, on Feb. 7, 1906. He succeeeded to the throne on Nov. 14, 1908.

Hsuan Tung's father is Tsai-Fung, Prince Chun, brother of the late Emperor. Prince Chun is Regent of the empire.

The rule of succession in China is that a son or nephew or male relative of the next younger generation, designated by the Emperor just deceased, shall ascend the throne.

The present Manchu dynasty dates from 1644, and Hsuan Tung, whose name was formerly Pu Yi, is the tenth of the line, which explains the reference in his edict to his nine predecessors.

MASSACRE IN HANKOW.

Imperial Troops Burn Native City—Preparing to Attack Wu-Chang.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 30.—A wireless message from the British warships at Hankow says that the imperialists, after their capture of the city, are burning the native city of Hangkow. Hundreds of wounded revolutionists have perished in the holocaust.

It is added that the entire advance of the Government forces is marked witn hideous brutality.

HANKOW, Oct. 29, (via Wu-Hu, Oct. 30.)—The imperial forces are preparing to follow up their victory over the rebels last week by an attack on Wu-Chang, which the revolutionists have protected by elaborate emergcny fortifications, and on Han-Yang, which is regarded as of the utmost importance on account of the arsenal there. Admiral Sah Chen-Ping yesterday notified the foreign Consuls that he was about to begin a bombardment of Wu-Chang, and asked that all foreigners there be ordered to depart at once.

The loyalists are now in undisputed possession of the entire City of Hankow, including the powder factory. They are also in control of the railway. Their position here is advantageous for a sudden attack on the arsenal at Han-Yang.

A. H. Kepler, the American missionary who was wounded in Friday's fighting, is in a serious condition. His wounds are in the neck and arm. He was watching the fighting from the top of a building in the Japanese concessions when he was hit by a stray bullet. Mr. Kepler is attached to the Presbyterian mission station at Siang-Tan.

Friday's battle at Kilometer Ten was a fine exhibition of gameness and pluck on the part of the rebel forces. Although they were outnumbered two to one by the trained force of imperialists in front of them, and were subjected from the flank to a raking cross fire from Admiral Sah's warship, they held their ground until nearly 500 had been killed and 1,500 wounded. At last they were compelled to retire. Their ranks were broken, but there was no panic.

The advance of the loyalists was a splendid justification of the training which these northern troops have received recently under European instructors. Ten thousand strong, they crossed into the rebell territory during the night, and attacked the intrenched revolutionary forces at daybreak Friday morning. There were about 5,000 of the rebel troops. These were behind well-planned fortifications, and had little to fear from the attack of the imperial soldiers. It was the guns of Admiral Sah's fleet which finally decided the day against them.

Sah's eight vessels approached the rebel position soon after the advance of the imperial troops began, but did not fire any shots. After a little while the eight ships silently retired, as if they had decided not to participate in the engagement. Later they returned, this time ready for business. The range was short, and the gunners mercilessly poured in their shells upon the rear of the rebel positions. The slaughter was appalling. The rebel batteries replied ineffectually, and were finally silenced. The gunboats drew still nearer, and the revolutionists were compelled to retire.

The loyalists, whose losses had been slight, advanced on the abandoned trenches in splendid order under cover of the batteries, capturing fifteen field guns, and taking fifty republican prisoners.

But the rebels were not yet satisfied. They returned to the fray in the afternoon, bringing reinforcements, fresh field guns, and Maxims. They advanced at the double quick, cheering like eager schoolboys. They attacked the loyalists vigorously, but the fight was one sided. The trained imperial soldiers raked the armed rabble in front of them with their rapid-fire guns and their modern rifles. The rebels held their ground gamely, but were ultimately compelled to withdraw. They saved their field guns, and carried off their wounded. Admiral Sah and his ships did not participate in the afternoon engagement.

During the retreat through Hankow many stray shots found their way into the foreign concessions. One Chinaman was killed in the French concession, and Mr. Kepler was seriously wounded.

Four hundred imperial soldiers recruited from Ho-Nan Province were found after the battle to have purchased strips of white cloth suitable for arm bands similar to those worn by the rebels to show their allegiance to the republican cause. These soldiers, even including some who were seriously wounded, were hurriedly sent away, their officers apparently fearing a spread of the disaffection.

In the course of the fighting a Chinese gunboat fired from the shelter of a Japanese gunboat until the latter moved away, leaving the Chinese warship exposed.

A visit to Siao-Kan after the fighting revealed the fact that the losses of the loyalists for a week past have been underestimated. A correspondent saw three carloads of dead.

The correspondent also saw the Minister of War, Gen. Yin-Tchang, and learned that 15,000 northern troops were camped close to Hankow. Others are scattered along the railway, which is closely guarded.

The Red Cross hospitals here are packed to-day with wounded soldiers, and arrangements for extra accommodations are being made.

The foreign superintendent of telegraphs is leaving here, as he has been unable to reach an agreement with the republicans.

The foreign crew of the steamer Kweilee, which the rebels commandeered, were ordered off the vessel upon their refusal to take her to Chang-Sha.

Gen. Li Yuen-Heng, in command of the rebel army, offers to spare the Manchus in King-chow-Fu if they surrender.

A dispatch from I-Chang says that a Court official there who refused to relinquish his keys was killed by rebels. Several Manchu officials were also killed. The rebels are preserving order at I-Chang, and are executing looters and incendiaries. The foreigners are in fear of 1,500 riotous railway coolies, who threaten to attack the city because they have not received their wages.

The missionaries who are stationed at King-Chow have fled from the town, fearing a conflict between the Chinese and Manchus, who number about 30,000 each.

The rebels have not interfered with the Hankow customs, but have announced that the likin tax will be abolished.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 31.—A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Peking says that the rebels explain the breakdown of their defense at Hankow as solely due to defective ammunition, the loyalists in Han-Yang Arsenal having three weeks ago removed the fuses from the shells.

The American Legation, says the dispatch, has sent messages to five different places in Shan-Si Province, ordering the missionaries to repair to the coast, but the messabges have been returned undelivered. All the stations are in the hands of the rebels.

TOKIO, Oct. 30.—The reverses of the Chinese rebels at Hankow are not considered here as serious. Strategically the city is valueless, and its possession would heavily handicap the rebels.

It is probable that they will strongly fortify Wu-Chang, and make that city their headquarters.

GENERAL ESCAPED IN A BOX.

Chong Got Away from Wu-Chang as Freight in a Japanese Launch.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 30.—According to news brought by the steamer Sado Maru, which arrived last night, the cowardice of Viceroy Tui of Hu-Pe, who took refuge in a river gunboat and fled to Hankow, gave the Chinese rebels their opportunity for the initial successes which resulted in the rapid spread of the revolutionary movement. A week before the outbreak the Viceroy was advised that anti-dynastic insurgents were inciting troops to take part in a rebellion set for Oct. 15, but he neglected to take steps and the rebels had their opportunity.

When the troops of the Wu-Chang garrison rose the police and student bodies quickly rallied to them and a massacre of Manchu soldiers and citizens followed. The Viceroy taking no steps to restore peace escaped, disguised as a coolie, to a river gunboat and fled.

Gen. Chong-Piao, Commander at Wu-Chang, had a melodramatic escape. He was carried by adherents in a box to the river front and was in imminent peril of capture when a launch owned by a Japanese of Hankow arrived and the box was loaded on board.

Koenig to Make His First Speech.

Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, will make his first speech in the campaign at a Fusion meeting which is scheduled for Thursday night at the Lenox Assembly Rooms, 256 Second Street. The other speakers include William R. Hearst, Controller Prendergast, President John Purroy Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, Borough President McAneny of Manhattan, Oscar S. Straus, John J. Hopper, the Shrievalty nominee, and Nathan Ottinger, candidate for Supreme Court Justice.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

Bulletin.

NOTABLE CONVENIENCES OF THE PENNSYLVANIA STATION.

The Pennsylvania Station at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-second Street is more than a railway station. Besides all the conveniences that a traveler could require, there is a branch of one of the city's big banks and numerous shops where articles mostly needed by travelers may be procured. A considerable line of shopping may be done within the station walls. Creature comforts are also well cared for.

One of the handsomest rooms of the station is set apart for the restaurant. It is furnished in refined taste. The plate, china and linens have been supplied by the best manufacturers and are well up to the standard of the highest type of Metropolitan restaurants. The service is performed by specially trained men. The equipment of the kitchen, on the floor above, is modern in every detail, and every new device in keeping, preparing and serving food is in use.

The highest grade of everything the market affords is purchased by a catering staff of long experience.

The restaurant is in charge of the Dining Car Department, which enjoys a high reputation for the excellence of the restaurants operated on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

A restaurant of this class appeals not only to the traveler, but as well to residents and business people of the locality, who are testifying to their appreciation of its advantages both in location and service by a liberal patronage.

The restaurant is located on the street level at the western end of the Arcade and is easily accessible from the street entrances on the four sides of the station.

The luncheon room on the opposite side of the Arcade is conducted on the same high plane as to food and service, and is specially designed to supply promptly and acceptably the needs of those who seek a quick and ready meal.

WARSHIPS AGLITTER FOR SEVEN MILES

fighting unit of the American Navy.

No more ships are expected now, the torpedo boats Wilkes and Barney, which were to have been in the fleet, having been ordered to Norfolk for repairs as a result of the storm they met on the way up the coast from Charleston. This reduces the total number of vessels that will be inspected by Secretary Meyer to-morrow and reviewed by President Taft on Thursday to an even hundred.

Despite the fact that yesterday was not a holiday, the throngs that went to Riverside Drive to see the fleet and the ones that took in the view from the decks of excursion steamers looked to be almost equal to those that saw the ships on Sunday. On board the vessels visitors seemed just as numerous, and the jams on the battleships were so great when the visiting hours ceased that the ship commanders had to order their own launches and barges into commission to get those ashore who were left behind. Scores of boatmen who sold return tickets for the warships failed to return for their passengers. On this point Dock Commissioner Tomkins yesterday issued this notice to the public:

> The Commissioner of Docks, Calvin Tomkins, wishes to notify the public that if any tickets are sold by the proprietors of boats who carry passengers to see or board the warships during the mobilization of the North Atlantic Fleet on the North River, and the passengers are refused passage, or if people are left on warships without being brought back to shore, immediate action will be taken by the Commissioner of Docks, if notice is sent to the Department of Docks and Ferries, who will revoke the permit of the boats which violate this principle.
> CALVIN TOMKINS,
> Commissioner of Docks.

The Secretary of the Navy has issued the regulations that will govern traffic in the North River and Bay to-morrow and Thursday during the inspection and review of the fleet. These rules will be enforced by a naval patrol under Commander Morgan of the gunboat Nashville.

> To carry out properly the inspection and review, it becomes necessary to place certain restrictions upon the general traffic during certain hours of the days mentioned, (Wednesday and Thursday.) It is desired to do this with as little inconvenience to the public as possible. To this end the co-operation of all traffic and pleasure craft is requested.
> The Secretary of the Navy has deputed the power and authority mentioned above to the Commander in Chief for that part of New York Harbor from the Narrows to Spuyten Duyvil from noon of Nov. 1 to 4 P. M., Nov. 2.
> Nov. 1, 1911, P. M.—From 1 P. M. until 5 P. M. on Nov. 1 the water line to the westward of the battleship column and between the battleships and the topedo craft must be kept clear; all traffic must pass outside of these columns from Fiftieth Street to Fort Washington Point.
> Nov. 2, 1911, A. M.—From 9 A. M. until 11 A. M. on Nov. 2 the same passage mentioned in the preceding paragraph must be kept clear from Fiftieth Street to Suyten Duyvil Creek. All craft which may follow the Mayflower and the Dolphin must keep at least one sea mile (2,000 yards) to the rear, and in return to the southward must keep to the west shore—that is, between the torpedo craft and the western shore. The Mayflower and the Dolphin will return by the eastern shore, and the waters between the battleship column and the eastern shore must be kept clear from 11 A. M. until noon, or until the Mayflower and the Dolphin have passed down the river.
> Nov. 2, 1911, P. M.—The fleet will get under way about 2 P. M. on Nov. 2. Vessels are warned to keep on the eastern side of the battleship column. The western side of the column must be kept clear of all traffic for the free movement of battleships. The fleet will pass in review before the President of the United States, who will be on the Mayflower, near Staten Island, that it, to the westward of the main channel. The waters between the reviewing ships and the main channel are to be kept clear, as well as the waters 500 yards upstream and downstream of the reviewing ships. Vessels desiring to do so may anchor not less than 500 yards to the westward of the reviewing ships.
> Saluting guns will be fired during the time specified. Vessels are warned not to approach the ships nearer than 100 yards. All vessels engaged in patrol duty will carry the international code flag N (blue and white checkerboard) conspicuously displayed.

The first fatal accident since the mobilization of the fleet began occurred late yesterday afternoon, when a little boy, who was watching the ships from the coal pier at the foot of West 134th Street, fell overboard and was drowned. He was Albert Goddett, 7 years old, son of Capt. George Goddett of the coal barge Clarkson.

GEORGIA'S RACING CREW WINS.

Her Oarsmen Victorious in the 3-Mile Contest for the Championship.

The twelve-oared cutter race for the cup given to the Atlantic Fleet by Daniel M. Coffin of the New York Yacht Club was won yesterday by the crew of the battleship Georgia. Ten of the battleships entered crews and the race was close from start to finish, many being of the opinion that had it gone a quarter of a mile further the crew of the Virginia would have triumphed.

The course was three miles from a point opposite Fort Lee to the anchorage of the flagship Connecticut. The course was in midstream between the columns of battleships and torpedo-boat destroyers. Every one of the ten crews finished, and at the end less than a hundred yards separated the winner from the last crew.

The Georgia crossed the line about two lengths ahead of the Virginia, with the Missouri's crew about the same distance astern of the Virginia and the Mississippi's men only a few feet behind the "show me" twelve.

The other crews in the race and the order in which they finished were: Michigan, North Dakota, Louisiana, South Carolina, Ohio, and Nebraska. The members of the winning crew were Church, coxswain; Cleary, stroke, and Holden, Burns, Millen, Levy, Blair, Ryan, MacNeil, Lawley, Pendleton, Finert, and Senneff.

The football game between the Nebraska and Idaho resulted in a tie yesterday. It was the second 0 to 0 score in two days, and the two teams will meet at American League Park for a third game to-day to try to determine which will meet the team of the Connecticut for the championship of the fleet to-morrow.

The Connecticut won the right to contest the winner of the Idaho-Nebraska match yesterday when a team representing the flagship defeated the team of the armored cruiser North Carolina by a score of 26 to 6. The championship game will be played at American League Park to-morrow morning.

Persian Consul Visits the Fleet.

H. H. Topakyan, the Persian Consul General, representative of the Shah of Persia, officially visited the fleet yesterday. Word of his coming was sent to the flagship Connecticut, and the gunners were ordered to give him nine guns when his boat came in sight. Mr. Topakyan visited all of the flagships and got nine guns from each. On the Connecticut he was presented to Rear Admiral Osterhaus.

It is said he was one of the waiters. The police are trying to find him.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 30.—When President Taft delivers the dedicatory address at the unveiling of the statue of Abraham Lincoln, to be unveiled at the Kentucky Capitol on the afternoon of Nov. 8, he will speak to twenty negroes set free by the war President. They belonged to the family of the donor of the statue, J. B. Speed of Louisville, and special provision will be made for them. Besides the President, Henry Watterson and Gov. Augustus Willson are to speak.

PROGRESSIVES PREDICTED IT.

Say Taft's Reception West Was So Chilly He Will Go South to Thaw Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The intimation in President Taft's Chicago speech that the Democrats may be victorious next Fall is exactly in line with what his enemies among the Progressives have been saying in a mass of literature they have been sending over the country since the adjournment of Congress. The only difference is that the Progressives with their elaborate headquarters here, have asserted that this defeat will be chargeable to Mr. Taft personally. They argue that with another standard bearer the party may win.

That Mr. Taft's reference to possible defeat expresses his real opinion no one in Washington doubts. It was common talk in Washington last Winter that at a dance at the White House where some reference was made to entertainments in the next term, a member of the President's immediate family replied:

"Oh, no, we will not be here then. The next President will be a Democrat."

The hopes Mr. Taft's friends entertained from his present tour of the country have been bitterly disappointing. Unofficial reports coming to Washington of his visits at various points indicate a most chilly reception. So well circulated are these reports here that it is a current joke that Mr. Taft extended his trip to include several Southern States that he might have opportunity to thaw out. So far the Progressive campaign has been directed almost wholly to proving that Mr. Taft should not be nominated, because if nominated, he could not be elected. Their headquarters here, which are the centre of the La Follette boom, have, it is asserted, fifty clerks busy sending out literature on this point.

Early in his term Mr. Taft took the tone that he would not a second time be President. When his policy in the tariff struggle began to attract criticism, he spoke then as if he believed that he had tried his hand at a task unsuited to him, and failed. From time to time since then he has broadly, though generally in jocular vein, indicated his willingness to leave the White House.

It seems certain that the next batch of Progressive literature aimed at Mr. Taft will quote his speech as indicating the uselessness of again putting the party under his leadership.

DEMOCRATS LIKE TAFT'S VIEW.

Norman E. Mack Says President Has Had His Ear to the Ground.

Local Democrats who could be reached last night praised President Taft for his outspokenness regarding the chances of the Republican Party for winning next year. Republicans, on the other hand, said the President did not know whereof he spoke.

Otto T. Bannard, candidate for Mayor on the Republican ticket in 1909, like the President, however, was doing no boasting.

"Next year is a long way off," said Mr. Bannard. "Nobody can tell what will happen by that time, and it's no use prophesying. We are going to win the Assembly in New York State this year, of that I feel confident. I don't want to talk about next year. We will have to wait and see what will happen."

"I don't know on what authority the President based his information, if he said any such thing," said Samuel S. Koenig, President of the Republican County Committee. "He certainly could not have received any such information about New York State. We are going to win this year and next also."

National Committeeman Norman E. Mack, who is also Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, laughed when he read the President's statement.

"President Taft is a wise man," said he. "It shows that he knows what's coming. He's got his ear to the ground all right."

CARNEGIE LOAN EXPLAINED.

Agreement Put Into Evidence at the Cummins Trial.

The agreement under which Andrew Carnegie loaned to Directors of the Carnegie Trust Company $2,400,000 worth of United States Steel bonds was introduced in evidence yesterday at the trial of William J. Cummins for grand larceny. With it was submitted a letter written a few days earlier, outlining the arrangement that was afterward made on Dec. 28, 1909.

The letter, addressed to Mr. Carnegie, was signed by Martin J. Condon, George D. Crabbs, Samuel H. Kress, Joseph B. Reichmann, Charles A. Moore, Jr., Liston L. Lewis, William A. Keener, and William J. Cummins. The reason given for asking the loan was that C. C. Dickinson, President of the Carnegie Trust Company, without the knowledge of these Directors, had negotiated for the purchase of the control of the Van Norden Trust Company and had arranged for payment in the following manner, as stated in the letter:

> There were at that time four deposits, aggregating $2,400,000, in the Trust Department of the Carnegie Trust Company, the Carnegie Trust Company holding the notes of these depositors for that amount. With the consent of the depositors this sum was placed to the credit of the purchasers of the Van Norden stock, who indemnified the makers of the notes against liability, and a check was drawn against this deposit which was used in payment for the stock. When we were apprised by Mr. Clark Williams, the Superintendent of the Banking Department, that he did not approve of the manner in which the money was secured by Mr. Dickinson to purchase this stock we determined to arrange for the payment of these loans, and it is for the purpose of accomplishing this result that we are asking you for the loan of securities.
> The amount of cash received for the securities you lend us will be paid into the treasury of the Carnegie Trust Company, giving it cash funds which will be used by the Executive Committee of that company as is that or ordinary depositors in making loans secured by Wall Street collateral of undoubted value.
> As soon as the $2,400,000 shall be paid into the Carnegie Trust Company we are to accept the resignation of Mr. Dickinson as President, already secured, and to install a thoroughly conservative executive management, which we are now in a position to do.

The collateral deposited with Mr. Carnegie consisted of 7,000 shares of Van Norden Trust Company stock, 18,000 shares of Tennessee Packing Company stock, 10,000 shares of Merchants and Manufacturers' Securities Company stock, and 8,000 shares of Platt Iron Works stock, all aggregating an estimated value of $7,200,000.

The documents were introduced in connection with the testimony of George D. Crabbs of Cincinnati, by whom the prosecution sought to show that the stock of the Platt Iron Works had originally been pledged with J. D. Platt by Cummins and his associates to secure notes given in part payment for the iron works, and had subsequently been used as part of the Carnegie collateral.

"What became of the 8,000 shares of the Platt Iron Works that had been pledged with Col. Platt?" Mr. Crabbs asked.

"Why, they were put up with Andrew Carnegie," he replied. "A short time before, I made a visit to Dayton to see Col. Platt, and get the release of the stock for that purpose."

O. H. Cheney, former Superintendent of Banks, was called to testify about his talks with Cummins about the elimination of objectionable loans. He will continue his testimony to-day.

COLUMBIA TO OPEN NEWSPAPER SCHOOL

Course, for Which Joseph Pulitzer Gave $1,000,000, Will Be Established Soon.

SECOND MILLION PROVIDED

If School Proves Successful at End of Three Years—Long a Cherished Plan of Mr. Pulitzer.

Plans of Joseph Pulitzer, owner of The New York World, who died on Sunday, for a School of Journalism at Columbia University will be taken up at once by President Butler and an advisory board named by Mr. Pulitzer eight years ago. A fund of $1,000,000 is released to the university by the death of Mr. Pulitzer, with an additional $1,000,000, provided the advisory board is satisfied at the end of three years that the school promises to be successful.

The School of Journalism was first suggested to the then President of Columbia in 1892. It was refused. In 1903 the offer was renewed by Mr. Pulitzer to President Butler, and by him accepted. Plans were drawn for the building and a place assigned to it on the Amsterdam Avenue side of the campus. Then came so many new and difficult questions that, with Mr. Pulitzer's declining health and his frequent and prolonged absences from this country the plans were never carried out. The plot of ground that had been set aside for the building was used for the new School of Philosophy and the Memorial Chapel. At present it is proposed to build at the corner of Broadway and 116th Street.

The difficulty above all others that stood in the way of the beginning of the school was to find a man who could direct such a school. President Butler and Mr. Pulitzer held a great many conferences on this problem, each suggesting names. As recently as two weeks before Mr. Pulitzer's death the President of the university had consulted with him on the question of a head to the proposed school. It was said by an officer of the university yesterday that there had been no disagreement between the university and Mr. Pulitzer in regard to questions of policy. Their relations had always been of the friendliest. They were simply unable to solve the problems presented.

The gift of $1,000,000 was so given that the income was retained by Mr. Pulitzer during his life. At his death it is turned over to the university. The terms of the gift are that the university shall construct a suitable building on Morningside Heights and maintain a School of Journalism. A part of the fund will be used in construction, and the income from the remainder will go toward the support of the school. If the advisory board is satisfied with the progress of the institution at the end of three years, according to a later agreement than the original one, the estate is to endow the school with an additional $1,000,000.

Mr. Pulitzer made his gift to Columbia in an agreement signed July 20, 1903. There were three other agreements relating to financial matters. But the main provisions of the first agreement are adhered to in the others. Mr. Pulitzer gave to the university at this time $200,000. He reserved the right to nominate an advisory board at any time before his death. In case of his death before nominating such a board the agreement provided that the following should constitute the board to found and govern the new venture in education:

President Butler of Columbia, Whitelaw Reid, publisher of The New York Tribune and the American Ambassador at the Court of St. James; St. Clair McKelway, editor of The Brooklyn Eagle; John Hay, late Secretary of State; Victor F. Lawson, publisher of The Chicago Daily News; Gen. Charles H. Taylor of Boston, Melville E. Stone of the Associated Press, Samuel Bowles, editor of The Springfield Republican; the principal editors of The New York Herald, The New York World, The New York Evening Post, The New York Sun, The New York Times, The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and The Philadelphia Press.

On April 12, 1904, Mr. Pulitzer paid to the university Trustees $800,000, and an amended agreement of that date provided that the entire income from the money should go to him during his life or until the school was founded, and in addition provided for the second gift of $1,000,000 if the school was successful.

As no advisory board was nominated by Mr. Pulitzer during his life the first-named men will form that body. It was said yesterday at Columbia that the school would be started. The questions of men to teach and courses to be studied will be solved as soon as practicable. In order to keep the sum of money given by Mr. Pulitzer it was necessary that the project which had been put off so long should actually be begun. It was expected that the school would be started in the Fall of 1904. In fact, the President's report for 1902, describing the gift, stated that the courses in journalism would probably be offered for the year 1904-5.

Plans and a general outline of what should be taught in a school of journalism were set forth by Mr. Pulitzer in a long essay published in The North American Review for May, 1904. Incidentally Mr. Pulitzer expresses some of his own theories of newspapers. "Every issue of a newspaper represents a battle," he writes, "a battle for excellence. The editor reads it and compares it with its rivals. He knows that he has scored a victory or has suffered a defeat. Might not the study of some of the most notable of these battles of the press be as useful to the student of journalism as the study of military battles to the student of war?

"Incidentally I venture to mention that in my own experience as a newspaper editor and reporter I never had one single lesson from anybody."

Mr. Pulitzer was a firm believer in the value of a school of journalism. His scheme was more than once called visionary. "If it is visionary," he wrote in 1904, "it is a vision that I have cherished long. Twelve years ago I submitted the idea to the then President, when it was declined. I have ever since continued to perfect and organize the scheme in my mind, until now it is accepted. Before the century closes schools of journalism will be generally accepted as a feature of specialized higher education, like schools of law and of medicine."

He answered the objections of his critics that a journalist must be born. Like any other profession, he said, it required the right temper of mind and sound training. The theory that journalism must be learned in an office, he said, was the "shop idea" that had prevailed for a time in law and medicine.

Mr. Pulitzer outlined the subjects that should be taught in his proposed school. He suggested a training in English style and the essentials of law, with special emphasis on the law of franchises, monopolies, common carriers, labor and capital. He favored also courses in ethics; history, with attention to political history and the history of journalism; a study of truth and accuracy, sociology, economics, arbitration, statistics, modern languages, especially French and German, the former for the training in lucid expression and the latter for value as a medium for all other languages and literatures; last of all, and as the climax of the course, he proposed a study of news. The planning of the school should not be aimed at making successful newspaper editors and reporters, he concluded, but at the welfare of the Republic.

President Butler's report on the proposed school called Mr. Pulitzer's statement of the plans of the school convincing.

WHITELAW REID'S TRIBUTE.

American Ambassador Comments on His Success in Journalism.

By Cable to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—I am very sorry to hear from you of poor Pulitzer's death. I could not now respond adequately to your request for an estimate of the man and of his influence on American journalism, but take pleasure in saying that he revived a moribund journal and made it one of the foremost newspapers of the country; that he greatly strengthened its editorial conduct, and that he sincerely tried to support his convictions and improve his paper to the utmost of his ability.

PULITZER FUNERAL PLANS.

Services in St. Thomas's Church at 2:30 To-morrow Afternoon.

The funeral of Joseph Pulitzer, proprietor of The New York World, who died on Sunday afternoon of heart disease on board his yacht in the harbor of Charleston, S. C., will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue. The public will be admitted. Arrangements are being made for former members of The World staff to attend the services, and space is being reserved for them in the church. They are requested to assemble in the Hotel Gotham at 2 o'clock.

The body is being brought to New York on a special train which left Charleston at 4:30 P. M. yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Pulitzer and her son Herbert.

A special meeting of the Publishers' Association will be held in the library of the Staats-Zeitung at noon to-day to take action on the death of Mr. Pulitzer.

Pathfinder in Modern Journalism.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—The death of Joseph Pulitzer has attracted more than usual interest in the Berlin papers, which pay a tribute to what they describe as his Germanic origin and call him the pathfinder in modern journalism.

Tribute from Congressman Sulzer.

Congressman Sulzer paid a tribute last night to Joseph Pulitzer at a political meeting in the Lenox Assembly Rooms, at the corner of Avenue C and Second Street, in the heart of the Congress district now represented by Mr. Sulzer and once represented by Mr. Pulitzer. "As his brave and heroic figure crosses the great divide," said Mr. Sulzer, "our country loses one of its most distinguished citizens, the City and State of New York a powerful force for good, and humanity world wide a consistent friend and champion, who battled for the rights of the people and did great work for the higher civilization."

Writer in The London Times Says Nation Is Also Badly Off, and Blames Press for It.

OBJECTS TO NEWS OF CRIME

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 31.—Comments on the journalistic work of Joseph Pulitzer have been remarkably few, most of the London papers being content to describe his career as a romantic instance of man's rise from poverty to affluence and power.

The London Times this morning reverts to Mr. Pulitzer's death and prints, besides a half-column sketch, a two-column article entitled "American Journalism of To-day and the Influence of Joseph Pulitzer." This article, written by a correspondent recently in the United States, is prominently displayed on the leading page. The writer begins by saying:

"The curious restlessness and aimless discontent which just now possess the American people show themselves in the disturbed financial and political conditions in the country, and the more thoughtful writers and speakers make constant complaint of what appears to be the popular incapacity to concentrate on any definite scheme of economic reform. The country believes it is ill, and a hundred panaceas are offered it, but seemingly there is no physician of sufficient authority to compel it to follow a definite line of treatment. In such a situation one would naturally look to the daily press to give the people a lead, but it is precisely in the press that lack of concentration and absence of any unity of purpose are most apparent. Partly this is the result of geographical conditions. Still more, however, it has been brought about by the definite personal influence of a few men, and there probably is only one man living, W. R. Hearst, whose influence has been at all comparable to that of Mr. Pulitzer."

After this exordium the writer describes the American press as a whole as extremely local in character and color. National affairs are sacrificed, he says, to the country's daily budget of crime and catastrophe. He goes on:

"It is always difficult to tell how far a press creates the appetites in its readers to which it panders, how far it molds the public taste, and how far it only prints what the public wants. In the historic conflict between Pulitzer and Hearst, which gave both its birth and its name to modern 'yellow' journalism, we may be assured that neither gentleman started with the deliberate purpose of debauching the taste of half a continent. The whirlwind struggle swept both The New York World and The Journal out of normal courses into strange and unhallowed seas, and into those wild and uncharted waters the great part of the press of the country followed, whether voluntarily or not, who can say, and there, seemingly rudderless and with no recognizable standards of measurement or perspective, much of it still tosses."

The writer says that the American newspaper has a great difficulty to contend with in the appalling plethora of so-called news. The Associated Press furnishes each paper an average of 80,000 words a day.

"The result," he says, "is a bewildering flood of news through which it is difficult for the newspapers to lay an intelligible course, and in such a multitude of matters, all approximately of equal importance or insignificance, any systematic gradation, according to values, seemed so hopeless that the attempt has been practically abandoned."

The Times writer then prints what he calls an analysis of the news on the front page of what is generally considered one of the better and more conservative New York newspapers, and cites a dozen instances, such as the following: "How a crowd of one hundred persons chased a dog supposed to be mad till it was shot by a policeman. How two couples on Long Island, being divorced, remarried, each man taking the other's wife. How, in San Francisco, two dead Boston terriers were given a funeral attended by 100 other dogs." "There was about an equal number," he continues, "of other items of like character, which, however, were redeemed from the same triviality because they recorded the loss of human lives. The rest of the page was occupied—thrust into the middle of this mess—with real news of the day, such as the assassination of Stolypin, the eruption of Etna, and a conference of the Governors of the States of the Union.

"It is difficult to believe that this lack of perspective, the daily presentment of the most trivial and often the most privately personal matters, as if they were part of the chief news of the world, can contribute to earnestness of purpose in the people or help them to take a wholesome view of the true values of things."

The conclusions to which the writer comes are as follows: "Most of the London dailies deliberately address themselves to the educated, thinking classes of the country, whereas the large American papers, with exceptions, the fewness of which makes them the more honorable, address themselves to an imaginary typical specimen of the plain people. They scrupulously avoid talking a language which demands any measure of polite education for its comprehension, and the tastes to which they appeal are what they suppose to be the tastes of the greater number of the democratic mass. The huge circulations of Mr. Pulitzer's World and other papers seem to show that in their guess at those tastes they do not go far amiss, but no one is better aware than the editors of some, at least, of the great dailies that they won their circulations at the cost of ceasing to be a moral or guiding force in the community.

"The public no longer expects its paper to stand in the relation of mentor to its readers. The editorial function has become overlaid by the reportorial, and the reporter has grown to be a highly specialized expert in imaginative short story writing. The arrangement, or make-up, is like the window dressing of a shop, which appeals to the cheap clientele by placing, not its best, but its gaudiest, wares in front. So far as intrinsic values are concerned, the ingredients which go to make up the front page of an American paper are about as fortuitious as puddingstone.

"But the question of responsibility remains. It is impossible not to wonder how far the extraordinary interest in crime, which the press encourages and which is the keynote of yellow journalism, is answerable for the popularity of crime itself, and how far its lack of discrimination in values is causing the present mental confusion of the people and their aimless discontent. It is also impossible not to wonder whether it might not be better for the newspapers themselves, as well as for the nation, if the country had a press to which it looked for leadership and of which it could speak in tones of more sincere respect, for it should be said that nothing that can be read into what is here written is one-tenth as uncomplimentary as what the average American citizen says of his newspapers every day."

The Tale of the Shirt Told Without Frills

To tell it I must brag a bit. Forgive me, for the end justifies the means. Years ago I saw the hand-writing on the wall. The conditions which left one man to make the shirt, another to sell it and you to pay the "freight" both ways, was wrong in principle.

The "freight" cost as much as the merchandise. To get the shirt from the factory to you, I organized one. To get the shirt to you as good as it could be made at any given price, from $2.00 to $20.00, ready-for-service or made-to-measure, I made certain affiliations with the fabric-weavers at home and abroad. The net result is this:

My factory makes and I sell quite 15,000 dozen shirts per annum. The reason is this: By eliminating the party of the third part, you get all the good things that the best two-fifty shirt affords at two dollars. Here is an instance:

KNIFE TUCKED TUXEDO SHIRTS $2.00

gave out a statement yesterday flatly contradicting Joseph Cassidy of Queens, who said on Sunday that McCooey had agreed to the selection of Willett before the convention. McCooey says he did not know positively who the nominee from Queens would be until the delegates appeared in convention and presented Mr. Willett. In his statement Mr. McCooey says:

> The only light that I can throw upon this subject is the fact that, after a conference of the Democratic leaders in the counties embraced within the judiial district, it was conceded that Queens County was entitled to one of the nominations. The leaders of Kings County, in deference to the unanimous sentiment of the Democratic voters throughout the county, presented Messrs. Ketcham and Callahan, and we did not know positively who the nominee from Queens would be until the delegates appeared in the convention and presented Mr. Willett. Apart from this simple statement of fact, which shows that, so far as Kings County was concerned, our action was in strict conformity with the rule of political comity, applicable to such co-ordinate action between separate counties taking proceedings in one convention, it is, perhaps, in order for me to say, and to say no more at present, than that the question which has been raised by our political opponents is plainly irrelevant to the general issues involved in the campaign.

The Brooklyn Eagle, in an editorial article yesterday, came to the defense of Callahan and Ketcham. Each has a record, it says, of which he has no reason to be ashamed. It admits, however, that both are in a bad predicament because they followed Willett and agreed to the withdrawal of the libel suit which all three had instituted against Mr. Berri. Continuing the article says:

"They must take the consequences. On the ticket with them is a man who must leave the polls branded. Against the ticket as a whole the majority must be overwhelming—the voters must take no chances. Few should take the time or trouble to differentiate. There is a lesson to be administered. The brand must be ineffaceable."

COLD SHOULDER TO WILLETT.

Big Brooklyn Mass Meeting Ignores Him for Ketcham and Callahan.

There were plenty of defenders of Surrogate Herbert T. Ketcham and Patrick E. Callahan of Kings, candidates for the Supreme Court bench from the Second Judicial District, at the big mass meeting held last night at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, by the Democratic organization of Kings County, but not one of the speakers made any reference to William Willett, Jr., of Queens, the third candidate on the judiciary ticket.

Unknown to the speakers, Mr. Willett unexpectedly dropped in at the meeting. He stayed but a few minutes and then hurried away, angered, it is reported, by what he considered a slight. There were rumors later that he had decided to withdraw, but these could not be substantiated. John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader, would only say that he had had no knowledge of Mr. Willetts's intention of attending the meeting.

The meeting attracted a great crowd to the Academy, as the report had got about that the judiciary scandal would be discussed in all its details. Surrogate Ketcham and Mr. Callahan arrived at the Academy shortly after the meeting was opened and occupied a lower box on the right of the house. As Andrew McLean, publisher of The Brooklyn Citizen and Chairman of the meeting, referred to them in laudatory terms, they got a rousing cheer. Mr. McLean, in advance sheets of his address given to the newspaper men, had included a paragraph expressing confidence in Mr. Willetts as well, but this he omitted from his remarks.

"Several days ago," he said, "as most of you know, charges were spread broadcast to the effect that the judiciary nominations in this district had been disposed of as merchandise.

"By courageous action your candidates for the Supreme Court, namely, Surrogate Ketcham and Patrick E. Callahan, have compelled the paper responsible for the libel to acknowledge that its language had no relation to them or to anything done in Kings County, but was applicable only to a single candidate in Queens. So that, as the matter stands to-day, it is now perfectly clear that whatever ground there be, if any, for charging the candidate in question from the neighboring county with impropriety there is none at all for withholding unqualified confidence from either the Democratic organization of this county or the candidates it has placed in the field."

Attorney General Carmody gave his attention almost exclusively to a defense of District Attorney Clarke of Kings in connection with the Union Bank investigations by the Grand Jury and did not mention the judicial situation.

TO SELL SHEEPSHEAD TRACK.

Famous Old Race Course Put on the Market for Residences.

The old Sheepshead Bay race track, comprising 430 acres, is on the market for sale, according to advertisements now appearing. The assessed valuation is $2,750,000, but it is said that the land can be purchased for less than that price.

From present indications the property will be offered for sale for residential purposes. The land extends along Ocean Avenue from Neck Road to Voorhees Avenue, thence to Cedar Woods, and the water front at Sheepshead Bay.

Men's Evening Clothes at Saks'

¶ It used to be the idea that dress clothes were the quintessence of formality. But Time has changed all that. Nowadays, men regard dress clothes as a relaxation—a brief respite from the cares which seem a necessary part of ordinary workaday attire. The sheer contrast of black and white serves to refresh the jaded senses.

¶ And nothing man wears adds quite so much to his personality as evening clothes—provided they are well cut, well made—and fit. It goes without saying, of course, that if they are Saks-made they fulfill these three requirements perfectly.

¶ Dress clothes are an especial care of our tailoring talent, and in no other branch of the tailoring art is our reputation more secure. Just now we wish to direct your attention to our latest evening productions.

Full Dress Coats.......22.00 to 38.00
Tuxedo Coats ....17.00 to 32.00
Waistcoats, black cloth.. 4.00 to 6.50
Waistcoats, white & fancy 3.50 to 12.00
Trousers .... 7.00 to 11.50

¶ Standardization of sizes, the finest tailoring talent, the best workshop facilities and crowded years of experience—each contributes to the perfection of Saks apparel for men. And nowhere, at any price, in any circumstances, can you improve upon it.

Men's Shirts...1.50 to 5.00

¶ When you come to the subject of shirts—come to us. Shirts of the higher grade are all we bother with, and no matter what price you pay for a shirt at Saks', you can always make up your mind that you have traded to advantage. For fit and general desirability, a Saks shirt is the one best choice. Domestic and imported fabrics, such as percales, Madras, Russian cords, piques, silks, cheviots and flannels. All sizes and sleeve lengths.

FARLEY IS NOTIFIED HE'S TO BE CARDINAL

An Official Letter from Papal Secretary of State Received by the Archbishop.

CEREMONY TO BE AT ROME

New York Prelate to Sail Soon to be Present at the Consistory Called by the Pope.

Archbishop Farley received from Rome yesterday formal notification of his elevation to the Cardinalate. The notification came in the form of a letter from Cardinal Merry del Val, Papal Secretary of State. The letter was mailed in Rome on Oct. 18, and stated that a consistory was to be held in Rome on Nov. 27, and that Archbishop Farley was to be one of the seventeen prelates who were to be elevated.

The entire letter was not made public at Archbishop Farley's residence yesterday, a representative of the Archbishop stating that, although the letter contained a formal notification of the Archbishop's new honor, it was in the nature of a personal and private communication.

The letter, in substance, it was announced, suggested that Archbishop Farley attend the consistory in person so as to receive the Cardinal's hat, instead of receiving merely the berretta. Cardinal McCloskey, the last Roman Catholic prelate in this city to be honored with a Cardinalate, was elevated by a consistory which met in the year 1875. He did not, however, go to Rome to be present at the consistory, and two Papal delegates brought over the berretta to him, together with the Papal briefs, or formal notifications of elevation. It was three years later that he went to Rome to receive the Red Hat.

It was said at the Cathedral last night that Archbishop Farley, although he had not been actually ordered to attend the consistory at Rome, would probably cross the Atlantic in time to be present at it.

The Archbishop has an engagement to dedicate a Roman Catholic Church in Woodlawn next Sunday and is desirous of keeping this engagement. He will probably sail for Europe toward the end of next week. He will return to this country toward the latter part of December.

No formal ceremony has been planned as yet in this city to celebrate the honor conferred on the Archbishop, so far as could be learned yesterday. Mgr. Lavelle, however, said last night that some kind of ceremony or reception would be given to the Archbishop by his friends and by his fellow-prelates in this city before he sets sail. Whether, in addition to the services in Rome, there will be other services of investiture here when the new Cardinal returns in December has not yet been decided.

Archbishop Farley will remain in charge of the diocese and of St. Patrick's Cathedral after his return, it was said at the Cathedral last night.

"His position as head of this diocese is in a way a more responsible position and a position involving more weight and care than that involved by his Cardinalate," Mgr. Lavelle said last night.

The Archbishop's elevation to the Cardinalate confers on him the duty and privilege of being one of the advisers and counselors of the Pope, and also of voting for the Pope's successor.

So many cablegrams and telegrams were received yesterday that the Archbishop's household were able to open only a small part of them.

O'CONNELL GRATEFUL.

Deeply Moved by His Elevation to the Cardinalate.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Official confirmation of his elevation to the Cardinalate was received at 2 P. M. to-day by Archbishop O'Connell. The Archbishop will go to Rome to attend the consistory on Nov. 27, according to a statement issued this afternoon.

The Rev. Ambrose F. Roche of Watertown, one of Archbishop O'Connell's council and a leader in the Catholic Federation, said relative to the selection of the Archbishop for the Cardinalate:

"Archbishop O'Connell's elevation means a crushing defeat for modernism in this country, which has used as one of its specious arguments that American Catholic interests were not understood or were ignored by the Vatican.

"No one can question the extraordinary ability, courage, and prudence of the new Cardinal, and no one dares to insinuate that he is not intensely loyal to the Church and to the flag of his native land."

Archbishop O'Connell, after the receipt of the cable message from the Papal Secretary of State, issued a statement which in part is as follows:

"To-day I have received official confirmation from the Cardinal Secretary of State stating that our Holy Father, Pius X., will raise me to the dignity of the cardinalate at the coming consistory, Nov. 27.

"Profoundly sensible of this great testimonial of paternal affection on the part of His Holiness toward me, my first thought is one of immeasurable gratitude toward the vicar of Christ, who, from the very beginning of his pontificate has, notwithstanding my own unworthiness, given me renewed and constant tokens of his esteem and affection.

"With this greater honor comes greater responsibilities and larger duties to the church, to the Holy See, and to all America. With a heart encouraged by the love and friendship of which I am truly proud I shall, with God's grace, endeavor in my own poor measure to rise to the new duties which confront me.

"In this moment of joy for the whole diocese and New England I feel that every Catholic appreciates that in my humble person the Holy Father has honored every single one of them, and that they in turn are correspondingly grateful to Pius X.

"I wish here to express my deep gratitude to the press for the dignified and delicate manner in which this matter has been conducted, and to all I return my most fervent and sincere thanks and a hearty benediction."

FALCONIO NOT TO RETURN.

Will Remain in Rome as a Member of the Pope's Household.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The Papal Legation to-day received official confirmation of the Pope's intention to elevate three Americans to the Sacred College when the Consistory convenes in Rome on Nov. 27. The cable, which came in cipher from Cardinal Merry del Val, Papal Secretary of State, informed Mgr. Falconio, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, that he, Archbishop Farley of New York, and Archbishop O'Connell of Boston would receive red hats.

As Mgr. Falconio is a naturalized American this will make four American Cardinals at once—an unprecedented honor for Catholicism in this country. Mgr. Falconio will sail from New York on Nov. 10, so as to reach Rome in time for his investiture. Cardinal Del Val appointed Mgr. Ceretti, for many years auditor of the legation here, to be Chargé d'Affaires in the absence of his superior.

"As you are naturalized," Mgr. Falconio was asked, "may not America claim three new Cardinals?"

He smiled and said that he did not expect to return to America.

"I have become greatly attached to the American people, because I am an American," said he. "My work in Washington as representative of the Vatican has been most pleasant. I leave here with many regrets, but must obey the call to other fields."

Mgr. Falconio is an Italian by birth. His position in Rome will be advisory to the Pope.

TALK OF AN AMERICAN POPE.

Catholics in Rome Think Such an Election Possible Some Day.

ROME, Oct. 30.—Comments on the approaching consistory, when seventeen Cardinals, including three from the United States, will be created, continues to emphasize the great significance of Pope Pius's decision to grant America four representatives in the Sacred College. By some it is asserted that the way is being paved for the future advent of an American Pope.

It is pointed out that the largest aggregation of Catholics in the world is to be found in the United States and its possessions, the Philippine Islands, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and Guam. Not only are the Catholics of America superior in numbers but in deep religious feeling, piety, loyalty to the Holy See, and in wealth and generosity. An Irish-American Pope is suggested for the day when it shall be considered no longer necessary for the Papacy to be held by an Italian.

The American College Faculty and students are rejoicing especially over the elevation of Archbishop Farley of New York and Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, as they are alumni of the college. The former was one of the original thirteen students when the college was founded by Pope Pius IX. The latter was both a student and a rector, and is the first rector to be raised to the purple.

The objections made by some that Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American College, being an American, cannot be appointed Apostolic Delegate at Washington are confuted by the fact that the present Pope for the first time made a departure from the rule, nominating Mgr. Fruehwirth as Papal Nuncio to Munich, which arrangement is working well. Moreover, Mgr. Kennedy is described as a Romanist to the backbone.

It is reported that the Pope, in creating Archbishop Farley Cardinal, will assign him to the titular church of Sancta Maria Sopra Minerva, which was the church held by the late Cardinal McCloskey, the first American to reach the cardinalate.

This church stands on the site of a temple of Minerva, dedicated by Pompeii after his victories in Asia and destroyed at the beginning of the sixteenth century. It was founded by the Dominican friars, and is the only Gothic church in Rome that has retained its original architecture. It contains precious works of art, including the famous statue of Christ by Michael Angelo.

It is also said that Archbishop O'Connell will be assigned to the titular church of Sancta Susanna, which is attached to the convent of the Bernardin nuns. This was the titular church of the late Cardinal Moran. It was erected in 1603. Its interior is richly ornamented with frescoes. The chapel dedicated to St. Lawrence was erected by Camilla Peretti, sister of Pope Sixtus V. Adjoining the church is the American Embassy.

Mgr. Falconio is to have his title from the church of Sancta Maria in Ara Coeli, one of the most typical churches in Rome. It was dedicated by St. Gregory the Great and was the titular church of the late Cardinal Satolli, the first apostolic delegate to the United States.

ARREST FIRE-TRAP OWNERS.

Herzog and Levy Are Accused of Endangering 200 Girl Workers.

Jacob Herzog of 220 Broome Street and Jacob M. Levy of 157 West 119th Street, owner and lessee, respectively, of 30 Suffolk Street, which Commissioner Waldo, when at the head of the Fire Department, characterized as the "worst firetrap in town," were arraigned yesterday before Magistrate House in Essex Market Court on the charge of having violated the Sanitary Code. Levy failed to appear in answer to a summons issued the other day by Magistrate Breen, and Magistrate House had them arrested on warrants.

John P. O'Brien, representing the Building Department, said that the building should be closed. "Every day the lives of nearly 200 girls are endangered," he said, "or should fire start in those narrow rooms, with their small windows, narrow staircases, and machine-closed exits, they would be roasted alive."

The defendants were held for trial. The maximum penalty they can receive is a year's imprisonment and $500 fine. As they left the courtroom they were served with summonses in a civil suit for a building they own jointly at 84 Forsyth Street, which is also alleged to be without proper fire protection.

Trophies Presented to Columbia Crews

At the rooms of the Aldine Association in the Fifth Avenue Building, the Alumni Association of Columbia University held their annual meeting last night. Trophies marking their victories were presented to last year's crews. These prizes were: 'Varsity crew—Stewards' Challenge Cup, won at the American Henley; cup for senior eights, won at the Harlem Regatta; individual prizes, presented by the Columbia University Rowing Club for the 'Varsity crew's victories at Annapolis, American Henley, and Harlem Regatta. Freshman crew—Stewards' Challenge Cup, won at the Poughkeepsie Regatta, and banner won at Poughkeepsie Regatta. Officers for 1911-12 were elected as follows: President, William A. Meikleham; Vice President, Ernest Stauffer, Jr.; Treasurer, George Earle Warren; Secretary, George Brokaw Compton.

THEATRE SUIT BY NEGRO.

Barred from Orchestra Seats, He Has Lyric Treasurer Arrested.

Louis F. Baldwin, colored, a real estate dealer of 8 West 132d Street, caused the arrest yesterday of Harry A. Levy, assistant treasurer of the Lyric Theatre, alleging a violation of Section 514 of the penal law, which makes it a misdemeanor to exclude any citizen from a theatre by reason of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Orchestra seats were bought by Baldwin over the telephone, so he told Magistrate Appleton in the West Side Court. When he came to the theatre he was accompanied by some colored women. They passed the ticket taker, but were stopped by the head usher. The assistant treasurer, according to Baldwin, then told him that he would have to take seats in the balcony in exchange or accept the refund of his money. Baldwin refused both of these offers and left the theatre.

Levy gave $500 bail and will be examined Thursday. Baldwin stated that he intends to make it a test case.

BOY CYCLIST KILLED IN RACE.

Ran Into a Truck and Got a Fracture of the Skull.

August Hynes, the 5-year-old son of Henry Hynes, a driver of 378 East 135th Street, was pedaling his tricycle up and down before his home yesterday when another boy, on a velocipede, approached and challenged him to a race. Little August accepted, and a moment later the boys were going nip and tuck down the hill toward Alexander Avenue.

August got the lead over the other boy, whose only known name is Eugene, and as he neared the corner he lost control of his tricycle. He put his feet down to stop it, but before he could reduce the speed sufficiently he ran into the rear wheel of a truck belonging to William Powers of 172 East 140th Street, and driven by George Lawler of 147 Brook Avenue. Lawler stopped his horse and called a Lincoln Hospital ambulance. The surgeon found that little August had sustained a fracture of the skull. He died twenty minutes later in the hospital.

Frisbie Collars

Are Hand-Made Collars

IN every essential attribute that makes for desirability, satisfaction and long life Frisbie hand-made collars take precedence.

The hand cutting and running together of the four plies before they are stitched assure size accuracy, the double stitching and hand turning make for perfect shape retention and the hand starching in the initial laundering produces a neck conforming shape that, like the buttonholes, lasts as long as the collar, which is just as long as any collar twice the price will buy.

So, let Frisbie hand-made collars be your collars—they will look better, fit better, and wear longer than any other collar of which we know.

CHURCHES IN PLEA TO CZAR FOR JUSTICE

SEND RESOLUTIONS TO TAFT

Also Ask That Treaty Be Cancelled Because Russia Has Not Accepted Our Passports.

At a meeting of the Clerical Canference, held yesterday afternoon in Assembly Hall of the Metropolitan Life Building, ministers and rabbis joined in passing resolutions pleading with Russia to stop her persecutions of the Jews and and other people worshipping outside the Greek Catholic Church. The resolutions are to be forwarded to President Taft, with the request that he communicate them to the Czar. A second resolution, moved by the Rev. William Carter of the Madison Avenue Reformed Church and seconded by Dr. McMullen of the Madison Avenue Methodist Church, was even more vigorous in its wording. It sums up the sentiment expressed in most of the speeches of the meeting, with regard to Russia's treatment of American citizens as follows:

> Whereas, It is and always has been the fundamental principle of this Government that the rights of its citizens shall not be impaired at home or abroad because of religious belief; and
> Whereas, Under the treaty between the United States and Russia, negotiated in 1882, Russia claims the right to and does discriminate between American citizens on the ground of religious belief, and as a consequence several classes of American citizens, notably ministers of various denominations, and especially Jews, are excluded from Russia, and American citizens of Jewish faith are subject to the same class of restrictions as the Government imposes upon its own inhabitants of the Jewish faith, all of which is contrary to the plain wording and meaning of such treaty.
> Therefore this assembly urgently requests the President to terminate said treaty at the earliest possible time, so that Russia may know that a discrimination against any part of our people on religious grounds is contrary to the fundamental principles of our Government, and that we cannot admit such a discrimination without being false to American citizenship, which covers the Jew as sacredly as it covers the Christian.

These resolutions were not passed until after a number of speeches, some of them firing the Assembly with much feeling, and it was with a broken voice that Bishop James Courtney of St. James's Episcopal Church, as presiding officer, called for the vote on the resolutions after Dr. Charles F. Ralston of Yonkers had placed at the door of the head of the Russian Church the responsibilities for the deaths of more men and women in one week than were killed in all the French Revolution.

Basing the Appeal on Citizenship.

It was the argument of President Josiah T. Strong of the American Institute of Social Service that the appeal to Russia should be made on behalf of American citizens in Russia as American citizens and not as Jews—that the offended citizenship and not the persecuted faith would prove the safest and most practicable means of approaching the Government at St. Petersburg. That, he said, would be the strongest position for a protest from America. If protest were made against Russia's persecuting a man because he is a Jew, Russia might ask what such a protest meant coming from a people who had burned a man at the stake because his skin was black, said Dr. Strong.

"We should give Russia no chance to say, 'Tu quoque,'" he said, "for we are guilty before God in that matter."

Oscar S. Straus, former Ambassador to Turkey, protested against that analogy, for such burnings in this country, he pointed out, were never executed under Governmental orders or by reason of Government policy. Mr. Straus's speech was broken in upon by frequent applause. He declared that the "meeting of ministers to protest against inhumanity practised 5,000 miles away against people not of their faith" marked an "epoch in the growth of humanitarianism in this country." To such ministers, he said, would fall the task of arousing public conscience against a situation that would not alter until it be aroused. He, too, emphasized the fact that it is not a matter of creed but of citizenship.

"If Russia denies the right of life, liberty, and property to an American citizen, it is not for us to ask what is the creed or profession of that citizen. The great seal of the United States is not a sectarian seal. Anything more dishonest, more outrageous than Russia's interpretation of the treaty of 1832 the history of international law fails to disclose."

Something of his own experience in such matters he related, and he told of protection he had been able to extend to Christians in Turkey, a protection extended not to them as Christians but as American citizens, for he considered that therein lay their highest possible right to protection, higher than they could claim as religionists of any denomination. Then he told a little story of what he did some years ago when a group of American ministers and missionaries, on their way back after a leave of absence to their posts in the interior of the Empire, could not get permits to continue their way. The Sultan explained that he did not care to have them around, on the ground that they had an offensive liberalizing influence, so much so that they were reported back of the Armenian uprising. Anyway, said the Sultan, he understood that Russia was suffered to make such discrimination. Mr. Straus told the Sultan that it wouldn't do at all, and that he would advise Washington to do the utmost in insisting on proper respect for American citizenship. But the Sultan wouldn't grant the permits.

"I called those missionaries together and told them that, if I were they, I would go right ahead, permits or no permits. I told them they had my permission to go. And they did go, whereupon, before sundown, I informed the Sublime Porte that they had left for the interior.

"The English Ambassador was in great distress. 'What have you done?' he groaned, and explained that some of his own countrymen had gone with mine. 'Well,' I told him, 'they are in good company.' I did not worry much, and at midnight, there came a polite note from the Sublime Porte's household, saying that he had sent on instructions that the Americans were to be accorded the fullest protection."

The Resolutions.

The resolutions passed were:

> Whereas, We have listened to the presentation, by well-informed speakers, of the baleful effects of the lack of religious liberty in Russia, and, desiring to place on record an expression of sentiments which it awakens in our heart, we do hereby adopt the following preamble and resolutions as the sentiment of this meeting:
> We, as representatives of divergent creeds, gratefully recognizing the fact that, in this favored land, the separation of Church and States gives to all religious bodies equality before the law, and withholds no right or preferment from any individual because of particular religious conviction or custom, learn with sorrow that:
> 1. The 6,000,000 Jews of Russia are singled out for systematic oppression and for persecution by due process of law.
> 2. They are confined within congested districts, at times ruinous to health.
> 3. Education is prohibited to all but a few, resulting necessarily in the increase of illiteracy.
> 4. They are restricted in occupations, reducing many to starvation.
> 5. Local governors devise petty persecutions of their own, which are zealously carried out by police acting brutally.
> 6. They are slanderously and libelously charged with "ritual" murder.
> 7. Their children are encouraged by the offer of pecuniary reward to abandon the faith of their parents.
> 8. At frequent intervals they are the victims of terrible pogroms, when many are massacred and their homes destroyed.

> We further learn with equal sorrow that Molokans, Stundists, Esthonians, Lutherans, Latins, Baptists, whether German, Lettish, or Russian, and Moravians, are often denied the right of public worship, and that, while the exercise of the religious freedom was granted to Christian teachers by the ukase of 1905, the governors of many provinces override the privileges granted by the Czar, arresting the religious teachers, and, subjecting them to unfair trials, casting them into prison or sending them into exile.
> These indignities and injustices to Jews and Christians awaken within us a sense of wrong to religion, which, as the life of God in the soul of man, must be the free expression of the adoration and consecration of His children.
> Therefore, Resolved, That we, as ministers of various religious denominations at work in New York City, assembled on this 30th day of October, 1911, join hands in earnest effort to terminate these evil conditions, and plead with Russia for justice from the nation to these injured peoples;
> Resolved, Further, That the Chairman of this meeting select, in addition to himself, six representative ministers to present these resolutions to the resident Archbishop of the Russian Orthodox Church in New York, with the earnest request that he forward them to the Holy Synod as the prayer of the religious forces of New York that it would intercede with the Czar in behalf of Russia's persecuted subjects.
> Resolved, Further, That the President of the United States be furnished with copies of these resolutions, with a request that he will communicate them to the Emperor of Russia.

Among those present at the meeting were Dr. Edward S. Young, Chairman of the conference; Dr. Cleland B. McAfee of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn; Dr. Maurice H. Harris, President of the Board of Jewish Ministers; Dr. Edwin H. Farnham, Superintendent of the Baptist Church Extension Society; Dr. Charles L. Goodell of the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, Dr. Frank O. Hall of the Church of the Divine Paternity, Rabbi Lyons of Brooklyn, Canon Chase, and the Rev. Nehemiah Boynton.

Andrew D. White, Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, Bishop Greer, and Dr. Lyman Abbott sent letters of regret.

The meeting yesterday was just six years to the day from the issuing of the ukase of 1905, that purported to grant religious freedom in the empire. That, too, was issued on a Monday, Oct. 30.

CAN'T COPYRIGHT STYLES.

Judge Ward Overrules Claim to Exclusive Catalogue Illustrations.

Judge Ward, in overruling yesterday in the United States Circuit Court, a demurrer interposed by the Standard Mall Order Company in a suit for alleged infringement of a copyright, declared that a copyright could not be used in such a way as to amount to a patent. He declared that a manufacturer of an unpatented article could not monopolize its sale by coyrighting a catalogue with illustrations of it.

The suit was concerning certain garments, which appeared to be identical in cut, and the court held that one firm could not be deprived of the right of issuing an illustrated catalogue of the garments merely because some other firm had copyrighted like illustrations, provided, however, the illustrations in the second catalogue published were drawn directly from the garments, and were not taken from the original copyrighted illustrations.

MRS. VAN HORN ASKS $100,000

Mrs. Endora S. Van Horn has started a suit for $100,000 against her husband, Frank M. Van Horn, a banker, in the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Van Horn alleges that her husband made an agreement with her by which she agreed to drop a separation suit. Under its terms, she says, she was to receive $2,500 a year for her own support, $1,200 a year for the support of her three children, and one-fifth of all his income above his $10,000 a year drawing account from A. B. Leach & Co. Van Horn guaranteed, she says, that she would received a total of $600 a month. Instead, she says, she has received but $275 a month. Van Horn's answer to her complaint is a general denial.

JURY FREES LANGIONE.

Acquits Him of the Charge of Killing John C. Warner.

Alfred Langione, who has been on trial before Judge Malone in General Sessions, charged with manslaughter in the first degree as the slayer of John C. Warner, the young civil engineer of Highwood, Conn., on the night of Oct. 31, 1910, at Thirty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue, was acquitted yesterday after the jury had been out for ten minutes.

On the night of his death Warner was walking down Seventh Avenue, wearing an olive drab uniform and carrying a shotgun, which he intended to use hunting ducks on Long Island. At Thirty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue he was set upon by a gang of striking express drivers and mortally stabbed.

During the trial Albert Taylor, an actor from Central Valley, N. Y., testified that he saw Langione, sitting on Warner's back, strike him three times with his fist. Langione put in no defense.

DIX FOR EQUAL PAY, YET CRITICISES BILL

NOT ASKED FOR, HE SAYS

Even by the Teachers—But Thinks the Bill Will Bring an End to Discord.

ALBANY, Oct. 30.—Declaring that he believes in the principle of equal pay for equal work, Gov. Dix to-day signed the Grady bill, equalizing the salaries of the school teachers of New York City. The enactment of the bill is a victory for the women school teachers of New York, who endeavored for years to place such a law on the statute books.

The increased cost of the schedules of salaries proposed by this measure for the elementary schools is estimated at $3,134,940, and the increased cost of equalization in the high schools at $372,480. These schedules were framed by the New York City Board of Education and indorsed by the Association of Women Teachers.

The Governor in a long memorandum says he is opposed to that provision of the bill which increases the salary of an Assistant to a Principal or head of a department automatically to $2,400, an increase of $800 over the present maximum and $500 over the maximum of the approved schedules for this position.

"Its effect," says the Governor, "is to establish a new minimum salary for this position, in the place of the one already established by the bill; to take away the power previously given the Board of Education to adopt its own schedules for this position, and compel it to adopt a different schedule: to increase the salaries of some 386 teachers without regard to merit or length of service, and, finally, to entail an additional burden of some $193,000 upon the taxpayers.

"In creating an unwarranted and wholly unearned increase in certain salaries, which increase was neither desired by the Association of Women Teachers nor approved by the Board of Education, such provision not only violates the principle of democratic government, which forbids the grant of special privileges, but disregards that principle in the system of education which affords a gradual increase of salary upon a continuance of faithful and efficient instruction.

"Without such provision the bill would have been without objection; with it a beneficent measure has been imperiled.

"While I regret that the sense of public duty has not compelled its omission and a more strict adherence to the system of compensation for position as approved by the Board of Education, I feel that this system is established, substantially as approved, by this bill, in spite of such provision.

"In view, therefore, of the fact that I believe in the principle of pay for position or equal pay for equal work; that the present schedules violate this policy; that increases in the salaries of the teachers are concededly needed; that the vice in the bill is of comparative insignificance; and, finally, in view of the fact that I believe that this bill will restore to the educational system harmony and efficiency in place of the discord and consequent demoralization which have existed for the last several years, I have appended my signature to this bill."

Mrs. Humphry Ward

To the American Public

MAY I ask those of my American readers who are not intimately acquainted with the conditions of English rural and religious life to remember that the dominant factor in it—the factor on which the story of Richard Meynell depends—is the existence of the State Church, of the great ecclesiastical corporation, the direct heir of the pre-Reformation Church, which owns the cathedrals and the parish churches, which by right of law speaks for the nation on all national occasions?

ALIKE in the Church, in non-conformity, and in the neutral world which owes formal allegiance to neither, vast movements of thought have developed in the last hundred years, years as pregnant with the germs of new life as the wonderful hundred years that followed the birth of Christ. Whether the old bottles can be adjusted to the new wine, whether further division or a new Christian unity is to emerge from the strife of tongues, whether the ideas of modernism rife in all forms of Christianity can be accommodated to the ancient practices and given a share in the great material possessions of a State Church; how individual lives are affected in the passionate struggle of spiritual faiths and practical interests involved in such an attempt; how conscience may be enriched by its success or sterilized by its failure; how the fight itself, ably waged, may strengthen the spiritual elements, the power of living and suffering in men and women—it is with such themes that this story attempts to deal.

TWENTY-TWO years ago I tried a similar subject in "Robert Elsmere." Since then the movement of ideas in religion and philosophy has been increasingly rapid and fruitful. I am deeply conscious how little I may be able to express it. But those who twenty years ago welcomed the earlier book—and how can I ever forget its reception in America! may perhaps be drawn once again to some of the old themes in their new dress.

REFUSE TO FOLLOW DEMOCRATIC LEAGUE

Dissenters, Including Alton B. Parker and Morgan J. O'Brien, Indorse Tammany Ticket.

RIDDER GOES WITH THEM

Thirty-odd Members Protest at League's Action in Declaring for Fusion—A Faction Blamed for It.

Thirty and odd dissenting members of the Democratic League met at the Hotel Knickerbocker last night to protest against the league's action in breaking away from its Democratic moorings and initiating the Fusion movement against Tammany Hall. The dissenters included such distinguished members of the Democratic Party as Alton B. Parker, Morgan J. O'Brien, John D. Crimmins, and Ashbel P. Fitch.

The meeting adopted a set of resolutions which recited the resolution adopted at the Saratoga conference in September, 1909, where the Democratic League was launched, and in which it was set forth that its purpose was to "strengthen the Democratic Party," and called upon all leaguers who had not taken part in the meeting where the break with Tammany was determined upon, and all independent Democrats to support Tammany's candidates on the judiciary and county ticket, as well as Tammany's candidates for Assembly.

Herman Ridder presided at the meeting, which was held behind closed doors, and Frank M. Patterson, a charter member of the league, who is said to be very close to Tammany Leader Murphy, was named as Secretary. Alton B. Parker was the principal speaker.

"The action of the Democratic League," said he, "is to be regretted for many reasons.

"In the first place the Bar Association had used strong influence to have a fine judiciary ticket named. More than in any previous year the Democratic organization in this county gave a willing ear to what the Bar Association had to say with a view of insuring the nomination of an independent Judiciary ticket.

"Due regard was given, too, to the well-established principle that men who had served with commendation to themselves on the bench should be renominated. Justices Scott, Cohalan, and Pendleton as well as Surrogate Fowler were renominated because they had made good records on the bench.

"I maintain that it is wrong for any organization, Democratic in name or spirit, to oppose such a superior ticket as the ticket named by the Democrats this year."

Judge Parker dwelt at some length on the disastrous effect on the Democratic prospects of a victory in State and Nation next year that would result from the defeat of the Democrats in this city at the present election.

Herman Ridder said that any Democrat who this Fall could be led to vote for the Republican candidates must have folly for his guide.

"I am a man of few words," said Mr. Ridder, "but under the present circumstances I find it exceedingly difficult to speak calmly about the action of a faction in the League. I think this is an almost ideal ticket, and one that good Democrats should find it easy to get together on. The fact that one or two of the candidates may not suit everybody is no reason for opposition to the entire ticket."

Joseph H. Schwab, head of the Taxpayers' Congress, and former Commissioner of Accounts Harmon S. Black and Senator John Godfrey Saxe were among the other speakers. The resolutions were offered by William Temple Emmet, who, until recently, was Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic League in New York County. Morgan J. O'Brien seconded the resolutions, and they were passed without dissent.

John Brooks Leavitt was the only man present who was not in entire accord with the proposed action. He told the conferrees that, while he was in sympathy with any action taken in support of the judiciary candidates on the Democratic county ticket, he would support John J. Hopper for Sheriff and would vote for the Fusion candidate for Assembly in his district.

Among others who attended the conference were: Sylvester O'Sullivan, James A. Deering, John F. Galvin, John Jerome Rooney, John H. Goldwater, Maurice Dieches, Edward S. Rapallo, Howard Taylor, Charles C. Hughes, and George D. Gillespie.

Col. Robert Grier Monroe, Chairman of the New York County Democratic League and member of the Executive Committee of the Fusion movement, when tlod of the meeting last night at the Bar Association, said:

"Until I have had an opportunity to read the resolutions carefully I shall have nothing to say. I may have some statement to make after I have read them."

1912 BUDGET IS $189,000,000.

Fixed at That Sum Approximately at the Last Public Hearing.

The final public hearing on the budget for 1912 was held yesterday in the Council Chamber at the City Hall. It was estimated when the hearing was over that the final figures will be close to $189,000,000. Police Commissioner Waldo's request for 1,000 new policemen for the coming year was cut out with the consent and approval of Mayor Gaynor. The Mayor suggested that Mr. Waldo could get along for another year without the city having to add so many more policemen to the salary list, inasmuch as the Commissioner had put back into uniform many men detailed to various city offices and departments.

Dr. Abraham Korn appeared to protest on behalf of the United Real Estate Owners' Association against the item in the Department of Health of $114,300 for milk stations. He also opposed the appropriation of $28,800 to pay dentists to work among school children. He thought that the city, by doing this work, was encouraging paternalism in government. Frederick Devine and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman spoke in favor of the milk stations.

"Unless seventy-one stations are provided for instead of fifty-five" said Mrs. Harriman, "we cannot hope to reach all the children that we should with our systems of stations. Five thousand babies will be cut out of the provision which we believe is needful, and instead of saving the lives of 3,000 babies our Health Department cannot possibly hope to save more than 2,000."

Miss Lillian Weld spoke in favor of Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards's application for a night force of sweepers for the congested east side. Dr. Smith, who for fifty years was Principal of Public School 20, criticised the "special teachers'" item, and said it constituted a great drawback to the proper work of regular teachers in the schools.

Dr. William H. Allen, one of the Directors of the Bureau of Municipal Research, said he believed the Budget Committee had not done its full duty to bring about economy in the management of city affairs.

"In direct proportion to the information that you have you have disregarded cutting where it may be done," said Dr. Allen. "In the Health Department, despite evidence that you have had of waste and inadequacy in the matter of food inspection, and of the use of automobiles extravagantly, you have allowed an increase of $600,000. And yet in this department they have actually presented the men responsible for the violation of the pure food laws with a pension of from $1,500 to $1,700 a year, and for life.

"In this matter of inspection, think of the fact that tuberculous cattle have been slaughtered in this city, particularly in Brooklyn. Is there any earthly excuse for allowing an increase under such circumstances? Then the Commissioner of Accounts has said, speaking presumably for the Mayor, that if the proper measures were taken $15,000,000 could be saved in salaries and wages in a year."

CARD of THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks for the magnificent response to our INVITATION to attend the OPENING of New York's Newest Department Store.

To say we were surprised would be an exaggeration, because we knew the tremendous price-inducements which were offered in our whole-newspaper-section advertisement yesterday could not fail to attract thrifty shoppers, not only for the opening day but every day this week.

Our splendid, up-to-date motor delivery service will promptly take care of every order, and should tomorrow be even a bigger day the delivery end of this establishment will be more than able to cope with it.

OUR SPECIALTY IS SERVICE

Let us remind you that this great opening bargain feast continues—every price announced in our great twelve-page advertisement on Sunday holding good. Where certain lines sell out, values equally good if not better will replace them.

Come and participate.

It isn't enough to hit the nail on the head—There must be some force behind the blow Kesner's not only do things—they do them well.

FRIEND HERE ARRESTED

Letter from Kinsman of Another Murder Victim Found in the Dead Man's Clothes.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The mutilated body of Francesco Manzella, 35 years old, was found jammed into a whisky barrel in a ravine five miles west of the city this morning. The man had been knocked unconscious by a blow from a blunt instrument, and his head severed from the body. Then the murderers sawed his legs close to the thighs, and broke them off. The parts were placed in the barrel and transported to the gully, where the barrel was dumped over a rail fence.

The barrel was found by Frank Smith, 18 years old, who had set a trap for a skunk. Coroner Kleindienst brought the body to the city, where it was identified this afternoon.

Manzella came here from Brooklyn. Three years ago he was arrested on the charge of attempted extortion, having poisoned the dogs of a Wheatland padrone ten miles out of the city, and tried to blow up his place with dynamite. He was committed to Auburn Prison for two and a half years. The man was released in May, and has since been in Rochester. The police records here show that Manzella was a member of a Black Hand organization.

In February Antonio Ollis, a relative of Giuseppe Alessi, 23 Main Street, Brooklyn, was stabbed and his throat cut in a barn in the suburbs of Rochester. At Police Headquarters relatives of the Ollis family begged for the dagger, that they might search for the murderer and kill him. The police believe the killing of Manzella has direct connection with the Ollis murder. The theory is that Manzella was called from his boarding house, which the police say they have not located, slugged and decapitated. Every indication points to revenge as being the motive. A score of relatives of the dead Ollis are being detained by the police, in the hope that something may develop.

Deputy Sheriff Abbott went to Brooklyn this afternoon to take Alessi into custody, as a letter found in the dead man's pocket indicated that he was in constant communication with Alessi. Several farmers have been interviewed by the District Attorney, all of whom say they saw a banana wagon transporting a barrel out of the city early this morning. They say they can identify the Italian who drove the wagon if he is brought before them.

Giuseppe Alessi, 25 years old, an operator in a shoe factory, living at 25 Main Street, Brooklyn, was brought to the Brooklyn Police Headquarters yesterday by Detectives Christie and Simonetti after Acting Capt. Coughlan of the Detective Bureau had received a telegram from Sheriff Gilette of Rochester, stating that Alessi is wanted as a material witness in connection with the murder of Francesco Manzella. When his body was found there was a letter from Alessi in a pocket.

Alessi admitted that he knew Manzella, but said he did not know anything about the murder of his friend. He said he was surprised that any one should kill Manzella, as he was not known to have any enemies. The letter Alessi wrote was one congratulating his friend on his release from prison in Auburn. He will be taken to Rochester to-day.

BAR EX-NEWSBOY AS LAWYER

Justice Seabury Protests at Action of Character Committee.

Supreme Court Justice Seabury made public last night a letter he had written to the members of the Character Committee appointed by the Appellate Division to pass on the fitness of candidates for admission to the bar. The Justice had interested himself in the case of an ex-newsboy, Morris Quasha, who had passed his bar examinations in February, 1910. Quasha, it seems, has not been admitted because the committee refused to report that he was of good moral character.

In his letter Justice Seabury said that he had repeatedly asked members of the committee to state their objections to Quasha, but had been answered that there was no complaint to be framed. Justice Seabury takes the position that Quasha is entitled to know the committee's objections so that he may answer them or that his fitness should be certified. After Quasha complained to him, Justice Seabury says he personally investigated the case and submitted to the committee thirty certificates from those who knew Quasha well. The action of the committee in failing to report either for or against Quasha, Justice Seabury says, is "unjust and unlawful."

ACID KILLED MISS DOCTOR.

Wealthy Woman Found Dead in Woods Took Poison, Autopsy Shows.

After an autopsy performed on the body at the Morgue, Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon announced yesterday that carbolic acid had caused the death of Miss Caroline Doctor, the young woman found dead in the bushes in 190th Street, near Fort Washington Avenue, Sunday afternoon.

The woman's relatives of 955 West End Avenue, who refused for some time on Sunday to identify the body, ordered Undertaker Rothschild of 1,657 Lexington Avenue to remove the body to their home, preparatory to a funeral this morning, and the interment in Linden Hill Cemetery, L. I.

Miss Doctor was 35 years old and was the daughter of Simon Doctor, who became wealthy in real estate dealings. When the body was removed to the West 152d Street Station Sunday a brother and sister at first would not identify it, but later a man, who said he was her uncle, told who she was. He said she had been deeply distressed by the suicide a year ago of her brother-in-law, Morris Hayman, in Newark.

The uncle spoke of the young woman's having been in a sanitarium and of having disappeared from home once or twice. He also said that on Saturday she had signed several leases and other legal papers. The woman had suffered hysterical attacks after her brother-in-law's suicide.

No receptacle which might have held the poison was found near the woman, and there were no traces of poison on her lips.

Laurentic on West Indian Cruises.

The White Star Line announces that its new triple-screw steamship Laurentic will be sent on two thirty-one day yachting cruises to the Panama Canal, West Indies, and South America, leaving New York Jan. 20 and Feb. 24. The Laurentic takes the place of the American Line steamship New York, which will be required in the transatlantic service.

POLITICAL. POLITICAL. POLITICAL.

Every Party Pledge Fulfilled

No Legislature in the Past Twenty-Five Years Has Enacted So Much Useful and Constructive Legislation.

We desire to protest against the unfair and reckless attempts now being made to misrepresent the record of the Democratic majority.

We speak for no individual. We speak in behalf of the Democratic Party. We do so because we feel that Democrats should not be deceived by purely partisan misrepresentations, especially at a time when the record of our party stands unsurpassed. These attacks are designed to cripple the party for the Presidential election next year.

The splendid record made by the Democratic majority in Congress promises Democratic success in 1912. Remember, that the election of a Democratic President largely depends upon the support of the Democracy of New York. Defeat this year will tend to endanger Democratic success next year.

The record of the Democratic majority in the legislature shows nothing to justify Democrats to vote against their party. On the contrary, that record should induce their support of every candidate on the Democratic ticket.

The gist of the attacks of the paid Fusion press bureau insinuates that the legislature did nothing but scheme for partisan advantage or to advance selfish personal legislation. The truth is that no Legislature in the past twenty-five years enacted so much useful and constructive legislation.

Contrast the following Record of a Democratic Legislature with the preceding sixteen years of Black Horse Cavalry Republican Rule, which culminated in the trial and the expulsion of Senator Alds, the Republican leader of the Senate, and finds its echo in the disgraceful condition of affairs now being disclosed under the Republican State leadership in the City of Albany. Here is a partial list of the beneficent legislation passed:

The Direct Primary Bill, which gives to all the voters free choice in the selection of party candidates and committees.

Approval of the Federal Constitutional Amendment for the popular election of United States Senators.

Approval of a resolution requesting Congress to secure the abrogation of the Russian Treaty, and thus end the discrimination by Russia against American citizens of the Jewish faith.

The creation of a State conservation commission to conserve the great forests and waterways of the State.

The abolition of commissions such as the Highways Board, State Water Board and Canal Board, and uniting their powers in one board, thus saving over one hundred thousand dollars a year in salaries.

Empowering City Court judges to naturalize aliens, thus expediting the attainment of American citizenship.

Extending the jurisdiction of the City Court in certain classes of cases from $2,000 to $5,000, thus insuring quicker trials.

Creating the office of State Fire Marshal and extending to all parts of the State increased safeguards against fire.

Protecting housewives from being cheated by dishonest store-keepers by providing that the possession of false weights and measures should be presumptive evidence of guilt.

Protecting the lives of workmen by amending the Labor Law requiring safety rails for all scaffolds.

Regulating the hours of labor of minors in stores and factories and preventing unscrupulous employers from imposing upon them.

Making it a felony to carry concealed weapons, thus checking the criminal element and safeguarding the lives of the people.

A bill curbing the activities of the "loan sharks," thus protecting the unfortunates who have dealings with them.

Providing for a semi-annual collection of taxes, thereby saving the City upwards of one million dollars a year in interest.

Creation of a commission to investigate factories with a view to remedying dangerous and unhealthful conditions.

Creating three platoons in New York City police force, thereby better protecting the lives and property of the people.

Safeguarding the lives of patrons of moving picture shows, by providing that operators be located in isolated fire-proof booths.

Establishing a new farm colony for the care and shelter of vagrants.

The cold storage bill providing that certain foodstuffs be kept in cold storage fo a limited period only, thus protecting the public health from impure food.

The secured debt tax law, making it possible for the State to collect taxes upon securities which heretofore escaped paying them.

Twenty-six separate bills passed for the protection of the people's interests and investments in insurance companies.

PASS THREE MORE FOR M'NAMARA JURY

Challenges for Cause by the Defense Are Not Allowed by Judge Bordwell.

SEVEN TEMPORARILY CHOSEN

New Ones Objected to Conviction on Circumstantial Evidence, but Prosecutor Accepted Them.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Judge Walter Bordwell accused the defense in the McNamara murder case to-day of trying to circumvent his ruling, and rejected two challenges against talesmen, these challenges having formed the basis of his accusation. He also refused the defense the privilege of challenging a juror who would not convict a prisoner on circumstantial evidence alone, holding that this challenge was available only to the State.

Under these ruling the jury box contained at the close of court to-night three men passed for cause by both sides in addition to the four previously qualified. To both rulings Attorney Clarence S. Darrow took exception in behalf of James B. McNamara, who is on trial for the murder of Charles J. Haggerty, a victim of The Los Angeles Times explosion a year ago.

For the first time since the trial began the defense brought into court one of its investigators to confront a talesman. R. H. Fitzgerald, an attorney, took the stand after George W. Johnson, a retired superintendent of an iron foundry, had said he had not talked to any one about the case. Fitzgerald said he visited Johnson to obtain some statistical information and talked to him about the explosion.

Johnson is the man against whom the challenge for bias, on the ground that he is opposed to conviction in cases involving the death penalty, was refused by the court, specifically on the grounds that the defense had no right to proffer it.

Challenges against A. C. Winter and Walter N. Frampton on the same ground were also denied, but these met the disapproval of the court as being intended to circumvent a previous ruling that the men were not disqualifed because of their expressed opinions that James B. McNamara was guilty of murder. Both had contradicted themselves under examination by opposing counsel, the court pointed out.

The court recalled also that the two had derived their opinions entirely from common notoriety, public rumor, or statements in public journals, all of which are excepted by law from disqualifying a talesman. To this Attorney Darrow excepted, declaring that Winter's opinion concerning strikes and strikers are based on personal knowledge, Winter having testified that he, as an employer, had replaced a striker at one time and was pelted with bad eggs and other missiles.

"The later challenge of the defense which is now under consideration," the court said, "amounts to an effort on the part of the defense to render ineffective the court's ruling disallowing the previous challenges. It is not a legitimate proceeding and cannot be permitted."

In the jury box when court opened were Robert F. Bain, George W. McKee, Seaborn H. Manning, and F. D. Green, passed; W. N. Frampton, A. C. Winter, and George W. Johnson, under challenge, and A. J. Wilson, T. E. Preston, and five men to be examined.

At the afternoon session Samuel Mendenhall was asked by Attorney Lewis of the defense his views of labor unions.

"There may be cranks who belong to unions and will do things out of the way, but unions as such are not a menace, in my opinion," he explained.

Mendenhall said he had formed no opinion as to the cause of the explosion and had no prejudice against labor unions or their members. Also, he had no opinion which would preclude his returning a verdict of guilty on circumstantial evidence.

Mendenhall was the first talesman in several days who apparently satisfied both sides, and was the seventh passed. When twelve men have been obtained peremptory challenges will be in order.

SAYS WEST WANTS WILSON.

Washington State Democrats for Him for President and None Other.

Charles G. Heifner, Chairman of the State Democratic Committee of Washington, and prominently identified with many large business interests on the Pacific Coast, is at the Hotel Prince George. He said yesterday:

"I know pretty accurately the sentiment of the rank and file of the Democrats of the West. They are strongly in favor of Woodrow Wilson for our Presidential nominee next year. I feel sure that this statement will hold good in every State west of the Mississippi River.

"Among the plain people everywhere he has come to be regarded as a man whose performances square with his promises. Just such a man is imperatively needed as the Chief Executive of the United States. Having demonstrated his practical capacity to accomplish things in his own State, even though one branch of the Legislature was of opposite political faith, it is not surprising that there is such an overwhelming demand for his elevation to the White House.

"I believe the State of Washington will send a delegation to the next Democratic National Convention favorable to Gov. Wilson for our Presidential candidate, and I mught say further that I believe he is the only Democrat who can get the Electoral vote of that State and other Western States

"I am for him because he stands for genuine representative government—the actual rule of the people after careful consideration of all governmental matters coming before them. He would free trade and commerce of the imposts and handicaps with which they are now burdened. He would place on the statute books a law regulating inter-State commerce so clear, so concise, so just, and so definite that all men and all corporations would not be left in doubt as to whether they were complying with or violating the law. He would thus place our industrial affairs upon a solid and legitimate foundation, freed from uncertainty and distrust.

"In his record as Governor of New Jersey he has literally lived up to and exemplified in his every act that time-honored tenet of Democracy: 'Equal rigths for all, special privileges to none.'"

Check for the Fusion Fund.

John W. Cox, Assistant Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, sent a check for $250 yesterday as a contribution to the Fusion campaign. The check was sent on behalf of the Civic Alliance, which supported the Fusion ticket in 1909. Dr. Cox was Treasurer of the Alliance.

RICHESON TO PLEAD ON DAY SET TO WED

He Was to Have Been Married To-day, but Now Must Answer to Charge of Murder.

POLICE FIND NEW EVIDENCE

Grand Jury Adjourns Early and Attorney and Inspector Go in Search of Witnesses.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—The third day's session of the Suffolk County Grand Jury, which has heard the testimony of about thirty witnesses in connection with the Government's attempt to secure an indictment against the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson for the murder of Avis Linnell, a former sweetheart, was brought to an unexpected early adjournment to-day by the desire of the District Attorney to look up important new evidence. The adjournment was taken until to-morrow afternoon.

The importance of the new testimony may be judged from the fact that Assistant District Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle, Captain of Police Inspectors Ainslie C. Armstrong, and Police Stenographer W. A. Irving were sent by District Attorney Pelletier to secure it for presentation to-morrow.

It was inferred that the place where the information was to be obtained was Hyannis, Miss Linnell's former home, but indications to-night are that Capt. Armstrong and his stenographer did not go to Hyannis. It is probable that Mr. Lavelle did go there.

When the Grand Jurors returned from luncheon they found before them two witnesses, a woman, apparently about 22 years old, heavily veiled, and a man, probably 28 years of age. Their identity was kept secret.

When their testimony was finished at 2:30 o'clock the Grand Jurors filed out, followed by District Attorney Pelletier, who would say only that adjournment had been taken until 2 o'clock to-morrow.

Richeson's preliminary hearing is scheduled for to-morrow morning, the date on which he was to have been married to Miss Violet Edmands, a Brookline heiress. It will be before Judge Michael J. Murphy in the Municipal Court. The defendant is expected to plead in person to the charge of murder, and it is probable that the Government, in view of the fact that the Grand Jury is considering the case, will ask for a further continuance. An indictment by the Grand Jury would take the matter out of the lower court. Should the Grand Jury return "no bill," however, the Government may still demand a hearing in the lower court.

George H. Baker, a railroad brakeman and boyhood acquaintance of Avis Linnell, who asserts that he saw the minister and Miss Linnell talking together for ten minutes in the South Station Friday evening, the day preceding the murder, was one of the witnesses this afternoon.

Mr. Richeson was visited in jail to-day by his counsel, Philip R. Dunbar, and by Edwin S. Watson, Treasurer of Immanuel Baptist Church, Cambridge, where Mr. Richeson still holds the pastorate. Mr. Watson remained with the prisoner about fifteen minutes. When he left the jail Mr. Watson said:

"My visit to Mr. Richeson had entirely to do with financial matters in connection with the church."

"Just what do you mean by financial matters?" he was asked.

"I cannot go into that," was the reply.

Questioned as to the bearing of the prisoner, Mr. Watson said he was "very, very cheerful," and that he again protested his innocence.

The Treasurer would not say whether or not his visit had any connection with the possibility of the resignation of Mr. Richeson from the pastorate at the church.

BROKER KEITEL SENTENCED.

Gets Six Months for Libeling the American Malting Company.

Adolph Keitel, a broker at 42 New Street, was sentenced to six months in the penitentiary yesterday by Justice Page in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

Keitel was recently convicted of spreading broadcast circulars attacking the financial standing of the American Malting Company and causing libelous statements to be made. Keitel admitted sending out thousands of these circulars and said that he spent about $2,500 a month for the printing of them.

One Dead, Five Hurt in Explosion.

One man was killed and five were injured yesterday when a steel oil barge moored at the Pure Oil Company's dock in East Newark, N. J., exploded. The injured men were hurled high in the air and fell into the Passaic River, and Herbert Angle, chief engineer of the barge, who was killed, was pinned in the wreckage of the engine room of the boat. His body has not yet been recovered.

TELLS OF KILLING GARLAND.

Mrs. McRee Says She Thought He Meant to Take Her Pistol.

OPELOUSAS, La., Oct. 30.—Mrs. Zee Runge McRee, who is accused of killing her neighbor's son, Allan Garland, took the stand to-day in her own defense. The State has indicated it will attempt to show Mrs. McRee had a motive other than that of defense of her honor in shooting the young student.

Asked to relate just what happened, Mrs. McRee said:

"I heard some one come into the house and it was this young man, Allan Garland. About that time two men drove up to the gate and asked if McRee was at home. I replied that he was in town, and they drove away. I then came in and sat down, and Allan said: 'Is your husband going to be home to-night?

"I asked why he asked, and he said: 'If he is not, I want to come over.' I said, 'How dare you speak to me like that,' and he answered, 'Because I believe you are no good.' I said 'I will kill you if you speak like that to me,' and I went to where my pistol was. He said, 'You cannot scare me,' and came toward me, and I shot him.

"How often did Allan visit you?"

"Not so frequently, but a good deal. As much as once or twice a week. All this time be behaved himself. He stayed all night at my house about four times. He was at the house the day before the killing."

GO TO WILMINGTON TO WED.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 30.—Dr. James Birckhead of 133 East Twenty-first Street, Manhattan, New York, a brother of the Rev. Dr. Hugh Birckhead of St. George's Episcopal Church of which J. P. Morgan is a vestryman, arrived here to-night with Helene Bilodeau of Montreal to get married. As she is a Catholic and he an Episcopalian, they called upon Bishop Monaghan and asked for permission to be wedded.

The Bishop telegraphed to Father Abbot of 262 West 118th Street, Manhattan, New York, of whose parish Miss Bilodeau said she was a resident, although Dr. Birckhead insisted she was from Montreal.

The couple registered in the Clayton House there as "Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Butler of Philadelphia." Dr. Birckhead refused to be interviewed, but admitted his identity and said the marriage had not yet been performed. He said he and Miss Bilodeau hoped to be wedded to-morrow. When asked if a civil marriage had been performed he replied that the Catholic Church did not "care for that."

Dr. Birckhead talked from behind the door of his room. When questioned as to why he came to Wilmington to get married he smiled and said it was only to keep the matter quiet.

"We registered under assumed names so as to escape being identified," he said. "As we are now known, it would probably have been better not to have done that."

Dr. Birckhad said the young woman was a daughter of Michael Bilodeau of Montreal.

"I have been waiting for a telegram from Father Abbot all the evening," was his parting remark, "but it has not yet come. We hope it will be here in the morning. Then we will get married and return to New York."

JENNIE GERHARDT

BY

THEODORE DREISER

Author of "Sister Carrie"

JENNIE GERHARDT is a book we believe in. We believe it possesses those qualities of sincerity, of simplicity, of vital passion, and above all of eternal human sympathy and interest which set it apart. The author has given years of his life to its making, and the result is a work rare and unusual.

Perhaps what the first reviewers say may yield a clearer vision of what Jennie Gerhardt means, at least to them:

Mr. H. L. Mencken, writing in the Smart Set, says: "If you miss reading 'Jennie Gerhardt,' by Theodore Dreiser (Harper's), you will miss the best American novel, all things considered, that has reached the book counters in a dozen years. On second thought, change a 'dozen' into 'twenty-five.' On third thought, strike out everything after 'counters.' On fourth thought, strike out everything after 'novel.' Why back and fill? Why evade and qualify? Hot from it. I am firmly convinced that 'JENNIE GERHARDT' is the best American novel I have ever read, with the lonesome but Himalayan exception of 'Huckleberry Finn,' and so I may as well say it aloud and at once and have done with it. Am I forgetting 'The Scarlet Letter,' 'The Rise of Silas Lapham,' etc., etc.? * * * No; I have all these good and bad books in mind. I have read them and survived them and in many cases enjoyed them.

"And yet in the face of them, and in the face of all the high authority, constituted and self-constituted, behind them, it seems to me at this moment that 'JENNIE GERHARDT' stands apart from all of them, and a bit above them. It lacks the grace of this one, the humor of that one, the perfect form of some other one; but taking it as it stands, grim, gaunt, mirthless, shapeless, it remains, and by long odds, the most impressive work of art that we have yet to show in prose fiction."

The New York World says: "Mr. Dreiser has written a plain book of life, with no straining of the probabilities, no hysterics, no forced calling on the law of coincidence. * * * The emotions and passions with which it deals are human and universal, not national. It is a strong and vital book, intensely full of the instincts, the impulses, the ambitions and the mistakes that keep the world alive about us. One takes much upon himself who assumes to sit in judgment upon Jennie."

Men's London OVERCOATS
In Superb Variety at GIMBELS

Certain London makers of clothing have developed the best characteristics of English Overcoats to a high degree. These are the characteristics of well-bred style, extreme comfort and thorough tailoring that commend these Coats, for all their Simon-pure British origin, to American men of good taste.

From the best styles of five of these leading tailors we have selected over twenty-five splendid models of Overcoats which have had an extraordinary success since we began showing them this season.

The materials will delight a man's heart, for they radiate comfort, and quiet cheerfulness. Thick chinchillas, warmth-without-weight materials, smart cheviots and the like, also stunning two-tones, and many other novelties. Fabrics that will "keep out the weather" at football games, on motoring trips, or on journeys about town.

Prices are $32 to $65—moderate indeed, for such excellent garments, which we cordially invite men to see.

Fourth Floor

At the HOUSE of FASHIONS

A tailored suit must be a combination of distinctive style and beautiful tailoring. If it lacks either, or both, of these features, it has little to recommend it.

In Paris we are very careful about the models we select from the collections of the great designers, because not all of their suits prove becomming to American women. Besides, only Suits of refined tone appeal to our clientele.

The most modish things are always refined. As an example, glance at the suits illustrated. These are several of the latest models from Paris.

The Drecoll model is of mole-color coronation silk, with moleskin collar and cuffs.

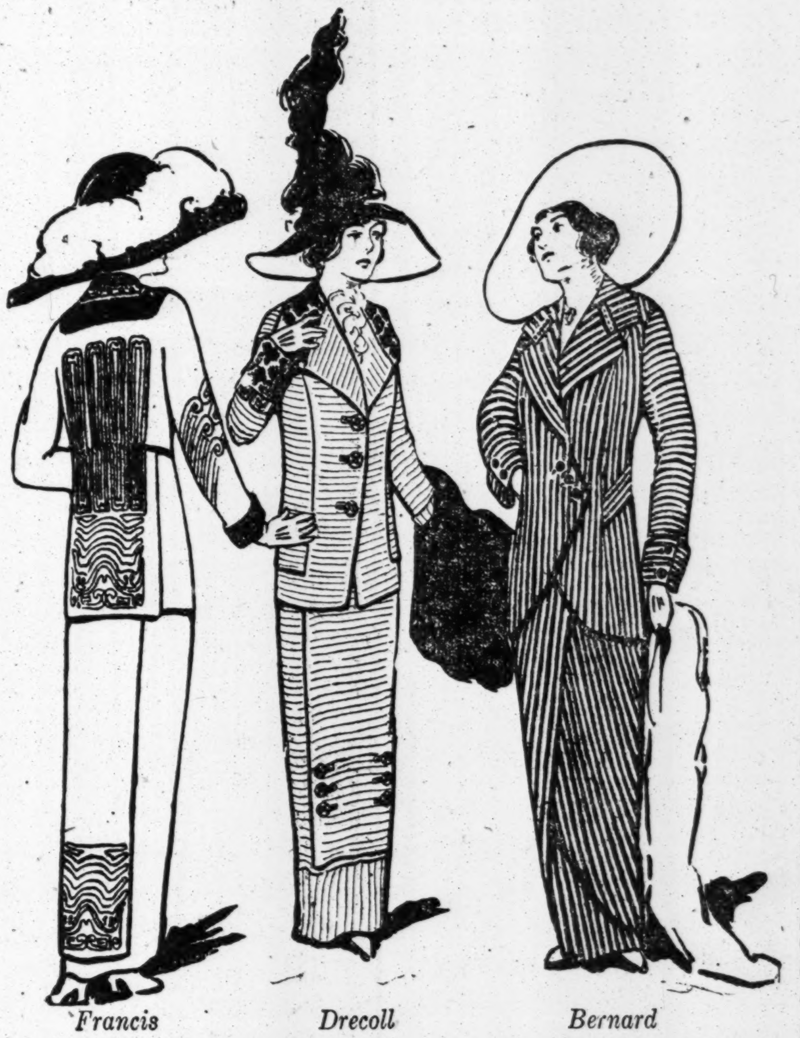
because these Suits are typically Parisian and yet the prices are thoroughly American. Among these we have standardized several prices—$25, $35, $45, $65, $75, $85, up to imported models at $350.



PARIS MODEL GOWNS

for opera, reception and dinner wear, by Paquin, Francis, Agnes, Drecoll and other style creators are now

$100 to $250, Were $250 to $575

Tailored Suits by Bernard, Francis, Drecoll and other famous designers—are now $100 to $150, were $200 to $350.

We have made these radical price-changes early in the season, simply because we have used many of these models for reproduction purposes, and to give our customers the advantage of selecting their suits and gowns early in the season.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, OCT. 31, 1911.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Seven amendments to the Constitution of the State of New York will be submitted to the voters for ratification or rejection next Tuesday. The Constitution will be quite sufficiently amended, we think, if the voters sanction three of the proposed amendments and consign the other four to defeat.

Amendment No. 1 increases the salary of the members of the Legislature from $1,500 a year to $3,500 a year for Senators and $3,000 a year for Assemblymen. It provides, further, that Senators and Assemblymen shall receive three cents per mile for the distance traveled in going to and returning from their homes once in each week "of actual attendance of the" session, instead of ten cents a mile for such journeys once in each session. Fifteen hundred dollars is a reasonable and adequate compensation for the service rendered by the legislators during an average session lasting four months. Some of the Senators and Assemblymen, it was reported, were in financial straits at Albany before the adjournment of the last session, which was unconscionably prolonged, with a recess, into September. An increase of pay might tend to give us longer sessions, which would be in itself an evil. The present pay and mileage allowance are enough. The vote on Amendment No. 1 should be "No."

Amendment No. 2 takes away from the Justices of the Appellate Division in each department the power to fix the times and places for holding special terms, and to assign Justices for such terms. The Bar Association condemns this amendment, declaring that the proposed change might be distinctly prejudicial to the satisfactory administration of justice. No good reason, so far as we have observed, has been advanced for amending the Constitution in this particular. The vote on Amendment No. 2 should be "No."

Amendment No. 3 provides two additional County Judges for Kings County, the present number being four. The increase of court business in that county makes this addition to the number of Judges proper and desirable. The vote on Amendment No. 3 should be "Yes."

Amendment No. 4 is the "excess condemnation" amendment. It adds to Section 6 of Article I. of the Constitution this provision: "When private property shall be taken for public use by a municipal corporation, additional adjoining or neighboring property may be taken under conditions to be described by the Legislature by general laws. Property thus taken shall be deemed to be taken for public use." The argument in support of this amendment is that, inasmuch as public improvements, like the erection of a municipal building or the laying out of a park, will enhance values of adjoining property, the city, by taking more than is required for its immediate use, will have some real estate to sell at a profit, and that this profit will help defray the cost of the improvement. The example of excess condemnation practice in London is cited as evidence of the benefits of the plan. The amendment is vicious, for several reasons. Its avowed purpose is to embark cities in real estate speculation. They would condemn and buy "additional adjoining or neighboring property" not for public use, but for sale and speculation. The privilege would be open to such scandalous abuse that it ought not to be conferred. The amendment is a lie on its face. It says the "property thus taken shall be deemed to be taken for public use." It would not be taken for public use. It would be taken for sale to some buyer who would put it to private use. It is proposed that this falsehood shall become a part of the Bill of Rights! It is very doubtful whether this amendment would not conflict with the Constitution of the United States. The taking of property by condemnation for a private use has been held by the Supreme Court to be a violation of the Federal Constitution, which declares that property shall not be taken without due process of law. However that may be, the amendment is so objectionable on other grounds and open to so many abuses that the vote should be emphatically "No."

Amendment No. 5 would increase the salary of the Governor, which is now $10,000, to $20,000 per annum. In addition to his salary, the Governor enjoys the use of "a suitable and furnished Executive residence," but the expense to which he is put is large, and the proposed increase seems to us to be entirely reasonable. The people of the State are willing to provide adequate compensation to a public officer who gives his entire time to their service. We think the vote on Amendment No. 5 should be "Yes."

Amendment No. 6 is intended to forbid the sale of certain canal property. Section 8 of Article VII. of the Constitution now provides that the Legislature shall not sell, lease, or in any other manner dispose of the Erie, Oswego, Champlain, Cayuga, Seneca, or Black River Canal. The amendment brings within the prohibition of sale or other disposition lands, slips, docks, or other structures, basins, harbors, terminals, and so on, and provides for the disposition of funds received on account of the lease or sale of certain canal properties which the Legislature would still be permitted to dispose of. The sale of the canals themselves being already forbidden, it seems to us that the use to be made of the appurtenances of the canals may with entire safety be left to the discretion of the Legislature. Docks, terminals, and so on could hardly be sold in the dark. The people of the State would know about it, and public opinion would be an effective safeguard against improvident sales or leases. A time might come when some of the property described in this amendment might properly and to advantage be sold. Prohibitions in such detail are not fit matter for the organic law. After the Syracuse Saltworks had ceased to be profitable to the State and had fallen into disuse, and were a source of expense instead of revenue, an amendment permitting them to be sold was calmly voted down by the people. That was about as ludicrous an upshot of the referendum as has ever been observed. If this amendment is put into the Constitution, it may in some future time become highly desirable to strike it out, and there is always a possibility that the people would withhold their approval, as they did in the case of the saltworks. This amendment is unnecessary. The vote should be "No."

Amendment No. 7 provides that the compensation to be made when private property is taken for a public use may be determined "by the Supreme Court with or without a jury." This is additional to the present provision that compensation in such cases be ascertained by a jury or by a Commission appointed by a court of record. The Commissioner system has been much abused, it has been inordinately expensive. Vesting the power to fix compensation in Supreme Court Justices would have a tendency to reform these abuses. The vote on Amendment No. 7 should be "Yes."

There is a referendum proposition to be submitted to the people, described as Proposition No. 1, which THE TIMES will consider in another article.

CONSTITUTIONAL CHINA.

It is a curious coincidence that the news of the granting of a Constitution in China should come at the same time as the news of the first considerable victory for the imperial troops over the revolutionaries. Obviously the victory was not great enough to give confidence to the Regent and his advisers, who seem to have yielded to threatening pressure nearer than Hankow. Active discontent prevails in the north and menaces the capital itself.

Whether the Constitution will avail to pacify it will depend on the good faith of the Government, on the ability of YUAN SHAI-KI, to whom general direction has been given, and on the degree to which the leaders of the discontent have a harmonious and practical aim. It would be absurd to infer that the great body of the Chinese are fitted to exercise the suffrage in a practical manner, when it is thus suddenly granted to them, when we know what a sad mess of it, in many ways, the Western nations have made during the considerable period in which they have been employing it. But we may safely assume that the resulting system cannot be worse than the stupid and corrupt one which it may replace. The Chinese, on the one hand, are used to being minutely regulated by their Government, and, on the other, despite occasional outbreaks of cruelty, are of an orderly and peaceful disposition. For the past decade there have been many capable and high-minded men among the reformers, and if the reins of government shall now be placed in their hands there is good reason to think that they will be able to guide the nation with a fair degree of safety through the great change that is involved in the granting of a Constitution.

THE TOBACCO DISINTEGRATION.

The overcapitalization of the Tobacco Trust was one of the most grievous of the offenses charged against it, but it is one of the conditions with which none of the reorganizers deal as drastically in their proposals for the future as in their criticisms of the past. Even the answer of the Government treats it as a matter concerning the shareholders, and therefore suitable to be left to the court without any specific recommendation. Attorney General WICKERSHAM conceives that the Government is "merely concerned with the disintegration of an illegal combination and the recreation of competitive conditions under such circumstances and with such safeguards as will insure the continuation of such competitive conditions." The Tobacco Trust has been condemned and therefore is entitled to no tenderness, but it is to be remembered that the principles and practices adopted in the first case will be applied in future cases so far as is practicable. Its efficiency having been attained by unlawful conduct, is not to be extenuated or preserved in any degree, but it would seem that regard for the common welfare requires no unnecessary harm be done to the principles of economic combination in lawful manner for the stimulation of production or distribution. The Government's answer addresses itself directly and solely to the punishment of this corporation, with not even a side glance at the possible indirect consequences of its action. In short, the zeal of the Attorney General rather exceeds that of a dispassionate prosecuting officer, and assumes something of the ardor of a counsel privately retained. After all, the Government has something more to consider than the mere disintegration of this trust, or even of all convicted trusts.

The Attorney General commits himself alone in figures to the belief that 40 per cent. is the permissible maximum of volume or value in any particular line of business. The cases in which the proposed plan exceeds this limit are only one or two, and appear to result from the mathematical calculations necessary in working out so large and complicated a scheme. But something more is necessary. The various corporations shall not have any common stock ownership, or common employés of offices or officers. All trade agreements in restraint of competition shall be abolished, and there shall be neither selling nor buying through common agencies. And the court is asked to keep its eye for five years on the execution of the plan which it is asked almost to make as well as to approve, so sketchy is the filling in of the outline of the principles advanced.

Assuming all to be arranged as the Attorney General would have it, what then? Is there any fresh light thrown on the trust question regarded as a whole, apart from the fate or the fortune of this one corporation? This can be true only in the opinion of those who think that the remarkable success of this corporation is only to be explained by the specific practices condemned. Those who have succumbed to its excessive efficiency have no such illusion. The associated independents, something very different from a trust, of course, have committed themselves to the assertion that what chiefly harmed them was the "amazing ability" of their trade opponent. If the amazing ability had been theirs the complainants might have been the defendant trust. The point of this suggestion is that the forms now under amendment are not of the essence. The trusts now under attack may be conceived of as "shedders," and in the process of assuming a new shell. Neither the new nor the old shell is of so much consequence as the "will to live," and intelligence to devise means of living under diverse and altered conditions. Undoubtedly the intelligences which devised the specific means of competing with too much success, so that they restrained rather than stimulated competition, thought the ways and means which they must abandon were useful, or they would not have adopted them. But it is not to be imagined that the court can pursue their thoughts and prevent the conception and substitution of other trade devices not open to complaint, even though the men of "amazing ability" should still be able to do more business than their critics. Acts of commercial immorality must be stopped, regardless of all considerations of profit or loss, but it is not necessary or desirable to penalize intelligence through hatred of success or wealth. It is well that so complicated a problem is in the hands of the court, for it is better that it should be treated judicially than in the manner of the prosecutor.

ELECT FUSION ASSEMBLYMEN.

The obvious spirit and vigor with which the supporters of the Fusion ticket are working are most encouraging. There is no reason to doubt that the evil influence of Tammany in State politics can be greatly reduced, if not wholly checked, if every independent voter is alive to his duty on election day. It will not do to concede beforehand a single Assembly district to Tammany. The strength of the organization in some of the districts is not a matter of doubt, but there is not a neighborhood in this city in which a large percentage of the voters are not amenable to reason, and open to lucid argument, if their intelligence can be reached. The concentration of all the eloquence and all the argument that can be commanded by the managers of the Fusion campaign upon a few selected districts, therefore, would be mistaken policy.

In the acknowledged Tammany strongholds even a reduction of the supposedly normal majorities of the Boss's candidates will have a wholesome influence. Surprising results have been secured for anti-Tammany candidates in the past in districts supposed to be firmly controlled by the organization.

On the other hand, there is a large number of Assembly districts in Greater New York in which only ordinarily zealous campaign work and a determined and continuous insistence upon the real issue of this year's election, the wresting of the State from the control of the Tammany machine, are required to elect Fusion candidates to the Assembly by large majorities.

The defeat of MURPHY's candidates for the Assembly is the greatest object to be obtained. The success of the Fusion movement all along the line is, of course, not beyond hope. Tammany is obviously wrought to a state of nervous tension. But upon the destruction of the power of the New York Boss in the lower branch of the Legislature depends the restoration to the State of its good repute in the Nation. The record of the last Legislature, controlled by Tammany, was deplorable. All good Democrats must see that it is essential to the possible success of their party in the Presidential campaign that the blight thus cast upon it shall be removed. The registration foreshadows a large vote. It should be borne in mind that the Assembly districts will be the principal objects of MURPHY's endeavors. His defeat, Nov. 7, will be great or small according to the majorities the independent voters secure against his candidates for the Assembly.

TARIFF ON BRAINS.

It is a time-honored joke, in connection with tariff discussion, that the duty levied on "spunk" was for the stimulation of a moral quality among timid protectionists. A more definite purpose of like sort must be supposed to be involved in a recent attempt to include an author's royalties in the taxable value of imported books.

This attempt was largely defeated by the very lucid and cogent argument in the case by Mr. GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM, the youthful veteran in the cause of freer international exchange in intellectual products. Mr. PUTNAM explained in detail the complex operations of the book trade, and pointed out that > it was evidently the intention of the framers of the tariff to secure a protection for the several industrial arts employed in the production of books. No such protection has ever been asked by the American author for his handiwork, and no such protection has ever been accorded. The lawmakers have evidently acted upon the policy that it was to the advantage of the community to place no further obstacles in the way of the importation of literature required for the enlightenment of American readers, or of the production for sale in the United States of such literature by transatlantic authors, than was inevitable under the tariff provisions covering duty on the material elements in the book.

This puts the matter in a nutshell. The Treasury Department has very sensibly decided that "royalty does not constitute a dutiable charge."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Visitors Make Complaint.

People who have visited the warships lying in the river—and that means a good many thousand people—have nothing but the pleasantest things to say about the courtesy with which they were received and the solicitude shown to render these informal inspections of our peacemakers instructive as well as interesting. Officers and men alike have manifested in every way their realization of the relation between the ships and the public, and the inevitable annoyances and inconveniences produced by these invasions, with their necessary interferences with a delicate and complex system of habit and discipline, have been cheerfully endured.

Not a few of the visitors, however, complain that when it came to getting off the ships, especially those that attracted the largest crowds, the arrangements were extremely bad. As a matter of fact, there have seemed to be no arrangements at all, and it was only with the greatest difficulty and after long delays that a way could be forced to the inadequate and unguarded gangways and the waiting boats. This, for many, has spoiled what would otherwise have been a most agreeable day.

On one of the larger vessels an officer of the deck, in talking about the matter Sunday, admitted the utter inadequacy of the provisions made for speeding the parting guest, but he excused or explained the seeming incompetency to perform the simple task successfully achieved every day in ferryhouses and railway stations by saying that he and the other officers could exercise no authority over these civilians—could not tell them what to do and what not to do. They owned the ships, he said, and though those who could be addressed individually were entirely docile in heeding requests as to where they should go and when, in a mass of 500 or 1,000, all eager to reach the gangway at about the same time, they could not be handled or controlled.

This is an entirely mistaken view of the situation, and neither explains nor excuses. Of course, "the people" do in a sense "own" the warships, but the proprietary interest of any one person is too small to measure, so that does not count. On the other hand, "the people" have delegated all their power over the warships to the officers, and are intelligent enough to submit to—indeed, to demand—the exercise of reasonable authority over all civilians who go on board. Certainly they would not resent regulations to facilitate disembarking when the time came to go any more than they do the fixing of days and hours when visitors shall be received.

Practices Outlive Meanings.

Father CROWLEY of St. Mary's Church in New London has decided that there shall be no more rice-throwing at the door after marriages which he solemnizes. The too enthusiastic friends of a pair whom he united last week overwhelmed them with such an avalanche of rice that he decided the practice to be unseemly and dangerous. Hence his prohibition, and thus lack of moderation has had its usual result—a restriction that goes as far one way as the excess did the other.

That is in this case only mildly to be regretted, for the custom of throwing rice at weddings has, in this country at least, lost all of its ancient significance or symbolism, still well known in the Far East, where it originated, and has degenerated into one of the many things that are done merely because "they have always been done." That is an extremely poor reason for doing anything, and it does not save the rice-throwing, now that it has become meaningless, from being a nuisance except when kept within the very narrowest limits. In other days there was much of seriousness about the practice, as it gave expression to a wish for many sons and daughters, rice being the emblem of fecundity.

While he is about it, Father CROWLEY, and other clergymen, for that matter, might well discountenance the other heathenish custom of throwing old shoes after the newly-weds as they start on their life journey together. According to the folklore experts that custom is founded on the very ancient and widespread idea that the gods are jealous of the happiness of mortals, and the old shoes are, or rather were, worthless and somewhat contemptuous wedding gifts, made for the purpose of deceiving the envious deities into the belief that the bride and bridegroom have enemies as well as friends, and therefore are not insolently and impiously fortunate. So the old shoe of the wedding is closely related to the skeleton at Egyptian feasts, to the slave who reminded the Roman Emperor riding in triumph that he was only mortal, and to the innumerable efforts among ancient peoples to mitigate good luck lest it bring its contrary in its train.

Traces of it are still to be seen in the "knocking wood" habit, and the familiar superstition that it is not well for a landsman to speak of never having been ill or for a sailor to boast that he has never been wrecked.

An Old Tale Takes a New Form.

The world does move! Hitherto the peach growers have been content with having their crops ruined each year by late Spring frosts. Announcements of damage thus wrought have been gravely made every year, and, though nobody ever had to go without peaches as a result of the vernal freezing of the fruit buds, we have all understood that we were in luck to find any in the market and have all been content, or at least resigned, to pay the high prices that were due to well-advertised scarcity.

But perhaps faith in the Spring frosts has been waning a bit of late, owing to the excessive demands made by the peach-growers on credulity and purses. At any rate, the Georgia orchardists are not waiting for Spring to ruin their crop, but have already had that of 1912 utterly destroyed, not by frost, but by an untimely autumnal warmth that has forced their trees into full bloom just as Winter is approaching.

This shows commendable originality of mind and that ready adaptation to changed conditions which is so characteristic of the New South. The vernal frost story has served its purpose well. It was a good story, and it retires with the love and respect of all. The story of a Fall blossoming is distinctly better, in that it lends itself much more gracefully to sadly poetic description of the beautiful flowers that must perish so soon, so soon, and take with them all hope—except of peaches at $1.50 per basket.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may interest and enlighten the electors of this city to know what the Association of the Bar of the City of New York thinks of Amendment No. 2 proposed to the Constitution of the State of New York.

The following was unanimously adopted by said association:

> Resolved, That in the judgment of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York the proposed amendment to Section 2 of Article VI. of the Constitution of the State of New York should be rejected by the people at the coming election; that the purpose of such amendment is to deprive the Justices of the Appellate Division in each department of the State of the power to fix the times and places for holding special terms, and to assign the Justices of the departments to hold such terms and to make rules therefor, which is now satisfactorily exercised under the Constitution by the Appellate Divisions; that the present system tends to secure the impartial selection of the best qualified Judges by those who have constant occasion to observe and review their judicial work; that the proposed change might be distinctly prejudicial to the due and satisfactory administration of justice; that the provision in the present Constitution was inserted after careful consideration on the part of the Constitutional Convention of 1894, and that the whole subject should be left to the next Constitutional Convention, when it can be carefully reconsidered in the light of practical experience throughout the whole State and the change then made if deemed necessary or advisable.
> Resolved, further, That the Judiciary Committee be and it is hereby instructed to cause the foregoing resolution to be published, and to communicate on the subject with the Bar Association of the State of New York and such other associations as it may deem advisable.

Such is the opinion of lawyers of this city, and it is to be hoped that proposed Amendment No. 2 will suffer the defeat it so richly deserves. P. W. S.

Douglas Mathewson.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As I am interested in the election of Mr. Douglas Mathewson to the Surrogateship, I have read all that has appeared in THE TIMES in relation to him and his opponent with especial interest.

You seem to know somewhat of Surrogate Fowler and but little or nothing of Mr. Mathewson's ability and fitness for the office. I desire to state, unqualifiedly, after having worked in juxtaposition with Mr. Mathewson during the past eighteen months and seen the skill, rapidity, and incisive manner with which he has handled many of the most important of the city's affairs as Deputy Controller, that he is a man to tie to. His knowledge of the laws, general and specific, is broad, very broad. His experience has been largely gained in the Surrogates' Courts, and his knowledge of the practice is wide and accurate. His perception is quick, his memory is strong and retentive, and he has a marvelously patient temperament. He enjoys work, and the toiling over and mastering of intricate legal problems is to him a keen pleasure. His character is high, his personality is most attractive.

As you have a fine sense of justice, I trust you will call the voters' attention to these points in Mr. Mathewson's favor, even though you may personally prefer the election of his opponent. E. W. IVINS.

Admiral Chadwick on the Brooklyn's "Loop."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A statement has been widely circulated in the press that in the history, "The Spanish-American War," of which I am the writer, I approve and commend the "loop" of the Brooklyn at Santiago.

I had prepared a denial, which circumstances known to all caused, for the time, to be withheld. I now beg that you will publish this letter in order that it may be understood that I made no comment on this act. Nor is there in any part of the text of the work any expression of approval. Indeed, a distinguished naval critic writes me: "To say that 'the loop is described in the book as an admirable military manoeuvre' is not true; * * * for no such expression occurs, nor any basis for such an expression."

Spurious "Irish" Fabrics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you please inform me, through your esteemed paper, if there is any law in the United States which can be invoked to protect honest merchandise from misrepresentation and the public from being swindled by fakes? I inclose a circular of one of the fake shops, (there are many,) and I can safely affirm that there is not one yard or piece of neckwear of real Irish goods in the concern.

State Senator Corroborates Story That Shields Used Money in Legislature.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 30.—The story that Edward Hines, the lumberman, and Robert J. Shields assisted in the election of Senator Isaac Stephenson, as given in the testimony of Lieut. Gov. Thomas Morris, was retold before the Senatorial Investigating Committee with added details.

State Senator Paul O. Husting, who was with Morris in an attorney's office in Chicago, testified that at that time he overheard Wirt H. Cook of Duluth giving details about alleged relations between Hines and Shields.

"Cook said he obtained information about a dispute which Shields had with Hines over the amount of money that ought to be paid for Shields's work in buying the Legislature," testified Husting. "The understanding Cook said, was that Hines had gone to Washington and told Stephenson that money would be required to put through the election. Shields was employed to do the work.

"Then, when the work was done, Shields demanded his pay for it. Hines said he'd send Shields to the penitentiary if the latter insisted on demanding $15,000.

"Then Shields replied to Hines: 'I've burned your buildings for you, bribed your assessors, and committed every crime on the calendar for you, and you bet if I go to the penitentiary you will go, too.'"

It was announced by Senator Heyburn that the investigation would close tomorrow if all the remaining witnesses could be examined in time. Senator Stephenson and his campaign managers are to be given an opportunity again to go on the stand.

The Monitor's Target.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Right opposite Fort Washington, Indian Head, the destruction of which in crushed stone operations led to the preservation of the Palisades, lies an important section of the squadron of warships. How many even of the warship commanders know that the cliffs of the Palisades here were the targets used by the Monitor and its successors in testing them out?

Mayor John C. Abbott of Fort Lee at the door of his home on Lemoine Avenue has one of the round shots fired against the Palisades by the Monitor and dug out later. John Fletcher, better known as simply Fletcher Burdette, a civil war veteran and President of the Fort Lee Revolutionary Monument Association, whose daughter unveiled the monument, has another such cannon ball at his doorway. Navy's Few Chaplains.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can the editor or any of the readers give any explanation of the inconsistency and the injustice of the attitude of the Congressional Committee on Naval Affairs, which, under the pretense of economy, (sic,) refuses to increase even to the smallest extent the chaplain corps, which in the navy, (not in the army, however,) has remained the same for years? Everything in the navy has been constantly increasing, men and ships, but not chaplains for them.

There are fifty-five chaplains in the army and only twenty-four in the navy. The navy has flaming posters advertising for men, but is not this state of affairs sufficient to induce parents and friends to persuade those intending and wishing to join not to do so?

A Widow Who Needs Help.

The latest misfortune of a widow obliged to support herself and five children is the dangerous illness of her six-year-old son, who has infantile paralysis. Two years ago her husband died, leaving her without savings or other means of support. As an office cleaner she has been able to earn $5 a week. An equal sum is received weekly from a boarder. With this small income and the payment of the rent by the Charity Organization Society, she has managed the family expenses. In another year the earnings of the eldest child, who will then be of working age, should secure their complete independence. Meanwhile, the society appeals for $90 to pay the family's rent for a year.

Contributions may be addressed to the office of the society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be gratefully acknowledged.

The Charity Organization Society acknowledges, with thanks, the following contributions received in answer to previous appeals in THE TIMES:

POEM BY WILLIAM WINTER.

I.

It is sad that old Time is so swift to dismember
All our Castles in Spain—that they crumble so soon—
That the churl will not spare for the snows of December
One rose of the many he squanders on June!
But 'tis ordered by Nature, and idle to quarrel
With the sovereign mother who never deceives:
If we cannot have roses we sometimes have laurel,
And the laurel is sweet, though made only of leaves.

II.

It is sad that the fugitive Graces will leave us
When the wrinkles have come and the visage grows grim,
And the dear little Loves, though afflicted to grieve us,
Will fly from the eyes that are hollow and dim:
But 'tis very well known that the bloom on the flower
Is the fleetest of all those delectable things
And that Cupid—the sprite—is provided with wings.

III.

We should stir up the embers, and call up the elves
Of Mirth and Content, and all troubles forgetting,
Make a gay world for others—and so for ourselves.
'Tis the beauty of Age to be tranquil and gentle,
Whatsoever it be, making best of its lot,
And, though gray locks and crowsfeet are not ornamental,
There's a grace that can hallow and make them forgot.

IV.

So, a welcome to all that my Fate may provide me,
Be it joy or sorrow, a cross or a crown!
Here's a grasp of the hand for the comrades beside me!
And when the play's over and everything ended
And you hear, in your musing, the sound of a knell,
Give me one loving thought for the good I intended
And a rose for my pall, as you bid me Farewell!

MAYBRINGRAILROADS UNDER FEDERAL RULE

Supreme Court Decision Upholding Safety Appliance Act Said to Foreshadow This.

STATES' POWERS QUESTIONED

National Commerce Board's Jurisdiction Upheld, Even in Intra-State Traffic—Effect on Rate Cases.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Complete control of all the railroads of the country by the Inter-State Commerce Commission and virtual elimination of the State commissions from such control is foreshadowed in an opinion handed down to-day by the Supreme Court of the United States. The court held that hereafter all locomotives, cars, or other equipment used on any railroad which is a highway of inter-State commerce must comply with the Federal Safety Appliance act.

In its opinion the court held that compliance with Federal law is compulsory on all railroads which are engaged in the transportation of persons or freight from one State to another. Elaborating this, however, it held that the cars or equipment of such roads, even if engaged in such transportation within the confines of a State, must be considered as part and parcel of the road and, therefore, completely under the jurisdiction of the Federal commission.

Members of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, who have been embarrassed on numerous occasions by clashes of authority with State commissions, are jubilant at the ruling of the Supreme Court, which was unanimous. Referring to the court's opinion, Commissioner Franklin K. Lane declared "it meant, eventually, that there is to be no dual control of inter-State carriers."

The determination of this moot question was laid down in an opinion read by Justice Van Devanter in a case instituted by the Government against the Southern Railway. The point at issue was whether the Federal act applied in the case of a shipment from one point in Alabama to another point in the same State, the shipment being in an improperly equipped car. The lower courts held that there had been a violation of the law, and their judgment was sustained by the Supreme Court.

Justice Van Devanter held that the law applied to all equipment on a highway of inter-State commerce, whether at the time it was carrying inter-State or intra-State commerce. He then held—and was sustained by the court's unanimous opinion—that the Safety Appliance act was constitutional.

"Speaking only of railroads which are highways of both inter-State and intra-State commerce," says Justice Van Devanter, "these things are of common knowledge. Both classes of traffic are at times carried in the same car, and when this is not the case the cars in which they are carried are frequently commingled in the same train and in the switching and other movements at terminals.

"Cars are seldom set apart for exclusive use in moving either class of traffic, but generally are used interchangeably in moving both; and the situation is much the same with trainmen, switchmen, and like employes, for they usually, if not necessarily, have to do with both classes of traffic. Besides, the several trains on the same railroad are not independent in point of movement and safety, but are interdependent; for whatever brings delay or disaster to one, or results in disabling one of its operatives, is calculated to impede the progress and imperil the safety of other trains. And so the absence of appropriate safety appliances from any part of any train is a menace, not only to that train, but to others."

The decision of the court generally is regarded as of far-reaching significance and importance. It will enable the commission hereafter to enforce, practically without question, its orders based upon that law.

Those who casually examined the opinion were divided as to its bearing on the litigation as to whether a State may regulate freight and passenger rates on intra-State traffic when such regulation interferes, or might interfere, with inter-State commerce. The Supreme Court is to consider the question next January, when it hears the so-called Minnesota and Kentucky rate cases. It is the best judgment of those conversant with the situation, however, that to-day's decision has little, if any, bearing upon the rate cases.

More or less friction has arisen between the Inter-State Commerce Commission and various State Railroad Commissions which has made it embarrassing to the Federal body in its work of inter-State regulation. Upon this point Commissioner Lane said further:

"The Supreme Court could say, and I believe it will say eventually, that an inter-State carrier cannot be controlled by a State commission in any way that would prefer intra-State over inter-State traffic. In other words, the Federal authority cannot permit a State to build a wall around its borders that would afford the people within that wall a greater advantage in commerce than is enjoyed by the people of another State outside the wall. We cannot have separated, articulated arteries of commerce. We must have a National system of railroads under National control and regulation.

"I believe that finally the Government will determine, as the Government of Canada, for instance, determines, whether a proposed line of railroad shall be constructed. The building and operation of a new line of railway may put out of business another line that is equipped to supply all the needs of the territory traversed. It is folly to construct the new line, because its operation means simply a division of the traffice between two lines, where one is amply able to carry it, and that in turn means an eventual boosting of the rates so that both lines may live. This manifestly is a disadvantage to the shipper. A multiplicity of railways in the same territory makes against the interests of the shippers."

Mr. Lane said he was gratified that the Supreme Court had upheld the Safety Appliance act, because it made for better, safer, and more economical operation of the railway systems of the country.

FLAWS IN AUSTIN DAM.

Only Twenty Feet Thick, Though Plans Called for Thirty.

ALBANY, Oct. 30.—The recent disaster at Austin, Penn., resulted from alleged failure to carry out the original plans for the construction of the dam, according to a statement given out to-day by the State Conservation Commission. The statement is based on a preliminary report just received from Alexander R. McKim, State Inspector of Dams, who, with the consent of the Pennsylvania authorities, inspected the Austin dam on Oct. 11.

"Mr. McKim found that in two vital points, which heretofore have escaped public notice," says the statement, "portions of the dam as actually constructed differed so widely from the original plans that from the outset it was doomed to failure. One portion of the dam, which in drawings published was shown to be 30 feet thick at the base, was only 20 feet thick. The Inspector could find no trace of the existence of a cut-off wall or 'key,' which the drawings showed extended the entire length of the dam from bank to bank of the stream.

"This cut-off wall was an extension down into bed rock of the upstream face of the dam. The designs showed that it was to be sunk 4 feet into the rock and be 4 feet thick in the direction of the flow of the river. The primary purpose of this cut-off wall was to prevent the impounded water from creeping under the dam and lifting it upward, a vital point. In addition to this function it was intended to prevent the sliding of the dam on the bed rock."

MISS M. G. CHAPIN WEDS ITALIAN PRINCE

EFFORT MADE AT SECRECY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—An Italo-American marriage took place to-day in London. The bride was Miss Marguerite G. Chapin, daughter of the late Lindley Chapin of New York, and the bridegroom Prince di Bassiano, son of the Duke of Sermoneta. The bride has been stopping for a fortnight past at the Ritz Hotel in company with the Baroness Grenier, sister of the bridegroom, with whom, it is understood she had been residing for some time previously in Paris.

Only the immediate relatives were present at the ceremony, which was carried out with the most elaborate efforts at secrecy. The bridegroom's mother was a member of the English family of Bootle Wilbraham, and consequently her kinsman, Earl Lathom, was present. His elder brother is Prince de Teano, whose wife has a European reputation for wit and beauty, and is well known in cosmopolitan society.

The hour and place of the wedding was kept secret even from friends, some of whom had been wrongly informed as to the time and address.

Among those present were Marchese Imperiali di Francavilla, wife of the Italian Ambassador; Baroness Grenier, Prince de Teano, Don Michelangelo Caetani, Mrs. Robert Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Chapin, the bride's elder sister; Lord and Lady Balcarres, Lady Evelyn Mason, and Major Wilbraham.

Miss Marguerite Gibert Chapin, who made her début here about six years ago, is a daughter of the late Lindley Hoffman Chapin by his first wife, who was a Miss Gibert, a daughter of the late Frederick Gibert, from whom Miss Chapin inherited a fortune in her own right.

Shortly after becoming of age Miss Chapin, with a companion and chaperon, went abroad, making her headquarters in Paris, being both musical and artistic in her tastes. She came over here occasionally since on visits.

Her stepmother, Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin, was formerly Miss Cornelia Van Aucken, who has two daughters, the Misses Katherine and Cornelia Van Aucken Chapin, the latter a débutante of this season, and a son, Lindley Hoffman Chapin.

Don Reffredo Caetani, first Prince of Bassanio, which title was conferred upon him about eight years ago by King Victor Emmanuel, comes from a family which has been identified with the history of Italy for the last ten centuries. His father, the Duke of Sermoneta, is a prominent Italian statesman, and is also a well-known archaeologist. He has a brother, Prince Teano, whose wife is a lady-in-waiting to Queen Helena. Another brother is in charge of Italian affairs at St. Petersburg, and a sister married Baron Grenier, the present Belgian Minister to Peking.

Miss McLaughlin to Wed D. M. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McLaughlin are making formal announcement of the engagement of their only daughter, Miss Helen Malcom McLaughlin, to Drelincourt Mathews Martin, a son of William M. Martin of 44 West Fortieth Street, and a grandson of the late Mrs. Charles Drelincourt Martin. Mr. Martin is a Harvard graduate, class of 1907, and of the Columbia Law School, class of 1910. He is a member of Squadron A.

Miss McLaughlin made her début two years ago. She was educated abroad, and has been out much in society here and in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin are Philadelphians by birth, and Miss McLaughlin spent her early years in the Quaker City, where her father was the owner and publisher at that time of The Philadelphia Times, a holding inherited from his uncle, who with his father founded that paper.

Mrs. McLaughlin was Miss Helen Malcolm, a granddaughter of Howard Malcolm, D. D., LL. D., a noted divine and scholar, and is related to the Howards of Virginia, the Roberts, Morris, and Jackson families of Philadelphia, and the Van Dykes of Princeton.

Mr. Martin's mother, who died in 1910, was Miss Lillie Mathews. He has two sisters, Mrs. Howard H. Mossman and Miss Florence C. Martin. The Martins have a country place, the Elms, at Norfolk, Conn.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Kathryn Barrett a Bride To-day.

The wedding will take place at noon to-day of Miss Kathryn May Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barrett, and sister of John M. Barrett, Assistant Corporation Counsel, to James W. Quinn of Philadelphia, in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Broadway and Seventy-first Street.

Among the presents which the bride has received is a cup of silver, a replica of the America's Cup, sent by Sir Thomas Lipton. Miss Barrett has often been entertained on his steam yacht, Erin.

The couple will spend their honeymoon at the Virginia Hot Springs, and will reside at 314 West Ninety-fourth Street on their return.

Miss Salomon Weds M. D. Hutzler.

Miss Antoinette Salomon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Salomon of 125 Riverside Drive, was married last evening at Delmonico's to Morton D. Hutzler of this city, formerly of Baltimore, Md. The Rev. Mr. Manheimer officiated.

The bride was attended by four flower girls, the Misses Virginia and Ruth Housman, Louise Strouse, and Catherine Haas. George Hutzler was best man.

A dinner followed the ceremony, after which there was dancing.

WEIL—NEWMANN.

Miss Mildred Newmann, daughter of Mrs. Henry Newmann of 218 West 112th Street, was married yesterday at noon to Leo Weil at Delmonico's by the Rev. Dr. Schulman. The bride wore a traveling costume of smoke gray broadcloth topped with a large hat of the same shade trimmed with dark gray plumes. Her brother, Samuel Newmann, gave her away. She had one attendant, Mrs. Samuel Newmann, who wore a black satin charmeuse gown and a black picture hat. Henry Breslauer was best man. There were no ushers.

Ogden Mills Reid Leases Residence.

Ogden Mills Reid, son of Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, who married Miss Helen Miles Rogers of Racine, Wis., last Spring, has leased the residence of Robert Graves at 7 West Fifty-first Street for a term of years. The house adjoins the residence of W. P. Clyde, on the site of which Andrew Carnegie lived before he erected his house at Fifth Avenue and Ninetieth Street. The lease includes the furniture. The house is a five-story American basement.

GRACE HOWARD FISHER WEDS

OSSINING, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Grace Howard Fisher, an opera singer, and Dr. Oscar Charles Reeeve of New York City were married this evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fisher of Agate Avenue, Ossining. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. N. P. Bame, Rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church here. There were no attendants.

The bride's father gave her away. She wore a Parisienne gown with gold trimmings. In her hair was a diamond bar pin. After the ceremony the bride and bridegroom went in an automobile to Manhattan, where they held a reception at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. They were accompanied by the bride's sister, Miss Elizabeth Fisher, and her brother, C. O. Fisher. They will go South on their wedding tour and on their return will reside at 528 Riverside Drive, Manhattan.

The bride was a protégée of Lillian Nordica. After finishing her studies she became a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Two years ago she suffered an attack of scarlet fever and was attended by Dr. Reeve. Last year she sang in the Boston Grand Opera Company.

MR. EDESON IN PLAY BY GELETT BURGESS

BUT IDEA WEARS VERY THIN

Mary	Beatrice Bertrand
Lady Mechante	Grace Elliston
Wrestling Brewster Bradford	Martin Sabine
Emily Frothingham	Beatrice Noyes
Dolly Van Dream	Isabelle Lee
Haulick Smagg	Robert Edeson
First Barber	John Prescott
Second Barber	Thomas E. Dunn
Footman	James J. Nolan
Tillotson	Herbert Budd
Huggins	Walter Renfort
Glush	John Dewey
Dystart Van Dream	William H. Burton
Mrs. Van Dream	Florine Arnold
Dante Gabriel Lilliput	Clifford Leigh
Violet	Eleanor Stuart

Mr. Gelett Burgess's so-called satirical farce, "The Cave Man," is the dramatization of a novel. Which explains as well as anything else, perhaps, just what is the matter with it. For the satirical idea which may be conveyed in the pages of a novel with plenty of contrast, mental as well as physical, somehow wears exceeding thin before the final scenes of a three-act play.

Again, "The Cave Man," which served as the introductory entertainment at the now Fulton, (formerly Folies Bergere,) Theatre, suffers in interest not only on its own account, but because it is a parallel of another play recently seen here. In "Snobs" a milkman finds that he is really a nobleman and, after a preliminary course of sprouts, blossoms out into "good society." There the nobility of his nature is contrasted with that of the aristocratic shams. In "The Cave Man" a coal heaver is taken in hand by a lady of title, who, in the first place, has theories about mankind, and, in the second, a desire to show up her society friends. Of course, teacher and taught marry in the end, or are expected to do so before the final curtain falls.

Mr. Burgess knows shams, social and artistic; he has a sense of humor and of contrasts. And these things stand him in good stead in "The Cave Man." So that when Haulick Smagg, the grimy coal heaver, is first shown, his uncouthness of manner and roughness of speech, in opposition to his surroundings, as well as the worldly manners of Lady Mechante, heighten a sense of the grotesque to the point of laughter. Moreover, Mr. Robert Edeson, a good comedian, with plenty of that dynamic quality which forces an impression home, knows how to make the figure interesting. One feels the man of it, though, for the time being it is only a seeming sodden brute.

So far so good.

But something more is needed—more than the familiar and obviously contrived contrasts, the farcical exposition of bad manners, and worse, ignorance, of parvenus, and the triteness of the ultimately impossible love story, which will do for fairy stories, but which doesn't quite fit into the scheme one feels Mr. Burgess originally had in mind.

It is easy enough, too, to see what Mr. Burgess is driving at in his cave man with his suddenly disclosed talent for being himself, even though his individuality is to be expressed in paintings (God save the mark!) of a sort which even a Gibb, a Maurer, or Mattice, extreme modern impressionists, would shudder at. So, too there is purpose, apparently, in the introduction of the figure of the gentleman descended from original Mayflower stock, who poses as a butler. But he doesn't amount to as much as one might have hoped. "The Cave Man," in short, contains a good satirical idea, but it will take more theatrical art than that of which Mr. Burgess is possessed to make such an idea of value on the stage.

Mr. Edeson plays the central figure with his usual thoroughness and sincerity, with a great deal of humor, and a considerable amount of telling force. Possibly the force is just a little too continuous for the best effect. But it is an interesting figure on the whole.

As for Miss Elliston—her rôle is that of a most egoistic person—a woman who mentions "fame and fortune and—even me" as cumulative possibilities, and all with a lack of appreciation of its spelling of her character. When all is over one rather feels that, coal heaver though he is, he will have a job on his hands. Miss Elliston makes the lady extremely oratorical. She seems to feel that there can be no value in a conversational tone of speech. Or is it that the lady with a title must take the lofty tone or not be known for exactly what she is?

Isabelle Lee plays with excellent variety and the right sense of humor. Beatrice Noyes acts prettily and amusingly, but her speech is in need of amendment, and Florine Arnold sketches a short rôle with a considerable amount of humor.

The Fulton, minus its tables, is a comfortable, a cosy, and attractive little house. It should be popular with audiences when it has just the right play. In the meantime that overture of William Tell, played more or less like a dirge, puts an extra handicap on "The Cave Man" at the very start.

LADY HERBERT OF LEA DEAD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A link with great events and personalities of the last century was severed by the death today of Lady Herbert of Lea, mother of the late Sir Michael Herbert, who was Ambassador to Washington and married Miss Wilson.

Lady Herbert was the widow of Sidney Herbert, who was War Minister at the time of the Crimean war. She was the author of several books and a leading member of the Catholic society.

Lady Elizabeth Herbert of Lea was the daughter of Gen. A'Court and the niece of Lord Heytesbury. She married the Right Hon. Sidney Herbert in 1846, and was thus the mother of the thirteenth and fourteenth Earls of Pembroke. She was the author of many books of travel and short stories, among which were "Cradle Lands," "Impressions of Spain," "Children of Nazareth," and "Lives of Monsignor Dupanloup," and others. She lived for many years in Herbert House, in Belgrave Square, London.

Brig. Gen. Patrick Henry Ray.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Brig. Gen. Patrick Henry Ray, U. S. A., retired, civil war veteran and Indian fighter, died suddenly this morning at Fort Niagara. Gen. Ray was born in Waukesha County, Wis., May 8, 1842. He was educated in the common schools and enlisted as a private in the Second Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry in the civil war in 1861. When mustered out at the end of the conflict in 1865 he had been elevated to the rank of Captain. In 1867 he was commissioned Lieutenant in the regular service. He served in campaigns against the Sioux Indians and the Apaches. Gen. Ray was in command of a polar expedition in 1881-3, and by order of the President was sent on a special mission to investigate the gold fields in Alaska during the rush to the Klondike in 1897. He served in the Spanish-American war, and was later stationed in the Philippines. He was retired in 1906.

YESTERDAY'S WILLS.

PAMELIA P. GAULT died April 25 at Buffalo; left more than $25,000 each of realty and personalty; $10,000 to Anna P. Payne, a niece; all her horses, carriages, harness, &c., to David J. McComb, and her residuary estate equally to him and to Clara Belle Smith, a niece.

ELIZABETH MICHEL left her whole estate for life to her husband, Jacob Michel, providing that on his death or remarriage it shall go equally to her three daughters—Amelia Gemmer, Emma Hermann, and Anna Michel.

BRIDGET MEEHAN died Oct. 25 at Ridgewood, N. J.; left more than $500 personalty in trust for the benefit of her sister, Catharine Meehan, for life, to be equally divided on her death among her nieces and nephew—Bridget Cooney, Ellen Murray, and Margaret, Sarah, and Thomas Meehan.

THOMAS FOR NEW THEATRE?

Founders Refuse to Say Whether Dramatist Is to be the Director.

A story published yesterday afternoon contained what appeared to be some of the details regarding The New Theatre, reaffirming the reported appointment of Augustus Thomas to the directorship. Nothing could be obtained last night confirming or denying the statements. Mr. Thomas could not be found at his home in New Rochelle or at the clubs which he frequents when in town. Nor would any of the Founders or Board of Directors of The New Theatre say whether the report were true. Nothing has been given out officially, and it is said that no official action has been taken.

In THE TIMES early last Summer Mr. Thomas was first mentioned as the principal choice of the Founders for the position held heretofore by Winthrop Ames. At that time Mr. Thomas said that he had had no official invitation to accept the position. It has been known for some time, however, that considerable pressure was being brought to persuade him to accept the office. Late last week he told some of his friends that he did not intend to take the position. It is understood that he demanded absolute authority and a very large annual salary before he would consider the matter further.

The report yesterday said that Mr. Thomas would act in three capacities—as director, producer, and dramatist. The Theatre is to open in September, 1912, according to plans made last Spring, and a new play by Mr. Thomas is reported to be in preparation for the opening.

GABY DESLYS IN OPERETTA.

Will Act the Leading Role in "Vera Violette" at Winter Garden.

The management of the Winter Garden has made arrangements with Gaby Deslys by which she has canceled her immediate European contracts and will remain in New York for a number of weeks beyond the time originally set for the end of her engagement here. She will discard her present sketch, "Les Débuts de Chichine," and appear in a new Viennese vaudeville operetta that is being prepared for the playhouse. With the exception of a few individual acts that are now appearing at the Winter Garden, the new entertainment will make a change in the programme there.

The operetta is called "Vera Violette," and will last about an hour and a half. It is from the German of Leo Stein, adapted by Leonard Liebling, with music by Edmund Eysler. Mlle. Deslys will play the leading role and will speak and sing in English.

JEANNE MAUBORG ARRIVES.

The fact that Jeanne Mauborg, the French contralto of the Metropolitan Opera House was to be married, was announced some time ago, but the arrival of the singer yesterday on the Nieuw Amsterdam disclosed the fact that the wedding is to take place within the week in New York. Miss Mauborg's fiancé came with her.

He is Claude Benedict, a French actor, who has played both at the Vaudeville and the Athenée in Paris. He has also acted in Brussels, and it is there that the two met.

"We did not have time to be married in Paris before sailing," Miss Mauborg said yesterday. "But we want to be married here just as soon as it can be arranged."

Ben F. Barnett's New Playlet Acted.

A new one-act comedy drama by Ben F. Barnett, entitled "The Woman Who Came Back," was presented for the first time at Keith's Harlem Opera House yesterday with Beatrice Morgan in the leading role, and supported by the stock company. The playlet made a decided impression, and will be continued throughout the week. It tells the story of a woman who, through necessity, becomes a thief. The scene represents the office of the Police Captain in a busy precinct in New York. The Captain has been only recently appointed, and his first duty is to run down a woman who has been stealing right and left in the neighborhood. He captures her only to learn that she is his former sweetheart. Richard Warner staged the offering. The setting is attractive.

WEEK'S BILLS AT THE THEATRES.

The stock company at the Academy of Music presented "Two Little Vagrants" at the matinee yesterday. Priscilla Knowles, leading woman with the company, began her sixty-first consecutive week with the organization.

At the Manhattan Opera House the Aborn English Grand Opera Company began a week's engagement in an elaborate production of "The Bohemian Girl."

"Madame X." with many of the original cast, is the week's offering at the West End Theatre.

Irene Franklin headed the bill at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre yesterday in a repertoire of new songs. Others on the programme were Clayton White and Marie Stuart, "High Life in Jail"; Eddie Leonard and Mabel Russell, Conroy and Lemaire, the Courtney sisters, Will Rogers, the five Pirocoffis, Mack and Williams, Dennis brothers, Fanny Fondelier, Leslie Thurston, Charles Brown, Taylor and Scott, and the Brough brothers.

At Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre Ruth St. Denis and her company in Hindu dances was the principal feature of yesterday's bill. Another important number on the programme was Digby Bell and company in a one-act sketch, and others listed were Howard and Howard, Emma Francis, Dave Lane and Charles O'Donnell, Frozini, Will Rogers, James Leonard and company, and Sanson and Delilah.

William Rock and Maud Fulton were the headliners at the Colonial Theatre, offering a new singing and dancing sketch. "The Great Suggestion," recently played at the Friars Frolic, was another feature of the bill, and the rest of the programme included Paul Conchas, Harry Fox and the Millership sisters, A. D. Duncan, Waterbury brothers and Tenney, Will Dillon, Grey and Peters, and Meehan's dogs.

The Folies Bergere revue, "Hello Paris," was the feature act at the Alhambra Theatre, with the original company. Another important number was Hugh Herbert in "The Son of Solomon," and among others on the programme were James J. Morton, the Kaufman brothers, Wilfred Clarke and company, Maxini and Bobby, the Kemps, and De Fra.

The Bronx Theatre bill was headed by McIntyre and Heath in "On Guard," and the other "old-timers" to appear were Maggie Cline, James and Bonnie Thornton, Mrs. Annie Yeamans, Ward and Curran, Gus Williams, Snyder and Buckley, Fox and Ward, and Caron and Herbert.

Attractions at other burlesque theatres included "The Queen of Bohemia" at Hurtig & Seamon's Music Hall, "The Social Maids" at the Olympic, "The Kentucky Belles" at Miner's Eighth Avenue, "The Behman Show" at the Murray Hill, and "The Moulin Rouge" at Miner's Bowery.

Carrie De Mar headed the bill at the Orpheum Theatre, Brooklyn, and others on the programme were Mason and Keeler, Aida Overton Walker, Murphy and Nichols, Charlie Case, Edwards, Ryan, and Tierney, the Asahia troupe, the musical Avolos, and the Daleys.

The programme at the Bushwick, Brooklyn, was composed of Master Gabriel and company, Valerie Bergere and company, the Big City Four, Collins and Hart, McConnell and Simpson, El Cota, and Frank Hartley.

Amy Wright	Marjorie Wood
"Pinkie"	Katharine Blythe
Grace Allliston	Ida Darling
Frau Vogel	Louise Muldener

Thomas A. Wise and John Barrymore made their first co-stellar appearance at the Liberty Theatre last night in a farce that the programme said was "written solely to amuse." Last night's house, spaking generally, seemed to be genuinely amused.

The play, "Uncle Sam," by Anne Caldwell and James O'Dea, gets its name from the character played by Mr. Wise, a Nevada mining man, on a trip to Germany to visit his nephew Robert Hudson, and persuade Robert that he should marry Amy Wright, a kindergarten companion of "Bob." The scene is the yard of the inn, "zum Bellende Wurst," which means "Barking Sausage." Robert has fallen in love with Kitzi von Tromp of Baden Baden, and he does not like the idea of Uncle Sam coming to fetch him back to America. He knows of his uncle's objections to "molly-coddles," and so he pretends to a superabundance of effeminacy that certainly disgusts the Nevada miner. But he also falls in love with Amy, when he sees her, and Amy with him, for she has eaves-dropped on a small fight between Robert and Otto, a German student.

Then there are numerous complications, including the appearance of Kitzi's thief of a husband, and Kitzi's own inclination to appropriate whatever amount of cash she may find about. There is an American chauffeur, an English student at Heidelberg, a sister to Amy, and Amy's aunt, whom Uncle Sam wishes to marry and for whom he becomes a temporary molly-coddle himself.

Mr. Barrymore was the nephew, of course, and he and Mr. Wise made little speeches at the end of the second act, in which they said how glad they were to be together, and how much they liked one another. Mr. Barrymore's wife, who was programmed as Katherine Blythe, had the rôle of Robert's sweetheart's sister. Marjorie Wood was the sweetheart, Amy; Ida Darling the beloved of Uncle Sam, Juliette Dyka played the adventuress from Baden Baden, and Louise Muldener had the rôle of the hostess of the Barking Sausage. John J. Scannell was the chauffeur, Cyril Biddulph the English student, Emmett Whitney, Amy's father; Eugene Hohenwart, Kitzi's husband; Albert Roccardi a French Marquis, and Hans Hansen the student Otto.

MAJOR JOHN P. WARING DEAD.

Major John P. Waring, brother of the late Col. George E. Waring, died yesterday at the home of his son, Walter Waring, at 200 Lincoln Street, Flushing, L. I. Up to within the last two weeks Major Waring had made his home with his son, Van Vechten Waring, at 806 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn. Major Waring, who was in his seventy-seventh year, was the son of George E. Waring, founder of the Stamford Iron Foundry, and was born at Long Ridge, N. Y.

During the civil war Waring enlisted as a Lieutenant in the Fourth Missouri Cavalry and was assigned later to the Engineer Corps. He invented an improved spike for spiking cannon, and was transferred to the Ordnance Division, with the rank of Major. He served on the staff of Gen. Frémont. Before the war Major Waring had made his first inventions, two varieties of steel pens, named the Chase Medallion and Washington Medallion pens.

At the close of the war Major Waring devised a system of separating silk from the cocoon at a great saving over previous methods, and was connected with the Cheney Brothers' silk works of South Manchester, Conn. He also invented a rock drill and air compressor. He was the holder of seventy-seven patents.

In 1856 Major Waring was married to Henrietta Tuffts of Cambridge, Mass. He celebrated his golden wedding anniversary five years ago. Besides his sons, Major Waring left two daughters, Miss Jane Louise Waring and Mrs. Elsie Norton Daily.

Obituary Notes.

SAILORS BATTLE FOR FOOTBALL HONORS

Flagship Connecticut's Eleven Qualifies for Final Game To-morrow.

For the second time within three days the football teams of the battleships Idaho and Nebraska played a scoreless game in the elimination series for the championship of the Atlantic Fleet. This was followed by the defeat of the eleven representing the battleship North Carolina, which was taken into camp by the team of the flagship Connecticut, the score being 26 to 6.

American League Park was the scene of the gridiron struggles, and as these four teams were the contenders for the honors, the final of the matches will be played to-morrow morning at the park. The Idaho and Nebraska teams will renew their struggle for the privilege of playing the Connecticut eleven on the field to-day at 10 o'clock.

In the first game the play during the first period was in Nebraska territory throughout. The Nebraskas kicked off to Idaho, the members of which eleven soon carried the sphere down the field with forward passes and end runs. They added to this by playing a kicking game during which Davids, the left half back, gained 5 and 10 yards at every exchange with Brown the Nebraska Captain and quarter back.

Midway during the period a muffed punt gave Idaho the ball on its opponent's 20-yard line. McBride and King made a dozen yards in two tries through the line, and Davids's dash through tackle put it on the 3-yard line, where Nebraska held for downs.

Idaho soon after tried for a field goal from placement on the 30-yard line, but missed. Varied plays failed to give either side a distinct advantage during the rest of the quarter, and when play was called the ball rested in Nebraska ground.

The second period was as much Nebraska's as the first had been its opponent's. It put across a forward pass which netted it 20 yards, and gained more ground by similar plays, but lost the ball on downs. Then Idaho took its turn at forward passing, being successful with about one out of three tried. Nebraska finally got the ball on Idaho's 12-yard line, but the latter stiffened and held its opponents until the end of the period to no score.

Early in the third period Quarter Back Brown of Nebraska got off with a 25-yard run, which carried the ball to Idaho's 10-yard line, after which Hanigan took the sphere to the 3-yard line, where a fumble stopped any chance of a score. Some line smashing and several neat forward passes enabled the Idaho team to get the ball into Nebraska territory, but the call of time precluded any chance to score.

In the concluding period Idaho put the ball on Nebraska's 30-yard line. Failing to gain, Davids tried for a field goal from the 35-yard line, but missed. Brown made a fine kick-out and placed the ball on Idaho's 25-yard line. Nebraska got the ball on a forward pass which went astray, and then ensued a kicking game, which kept the ball circling from one end to the other with a scoreless tie game the result. The line-up:

Saunders	centre	Duncan
White	right guard	Oshner
Dock	right tackle	Schueller
Higgins	right end	Wilhoyt
Brown	quarter back	Duffy
Richards	left half back	Davids
Hanigan	full back	King

The second game was almost a rout, Connecticut tallying in every period. The ultimate winners carried the fight into their opponents' territory from the outset with a series of line plunges, with the result that before the quarter was half over they were within twelve yards of North Carolina's goal. A forward pass brought about the first score for Connecticut. Mellon grabbed the ball on this play and got away for a touchdown without opposition.

Logan was shoved through tackle and guard for a touchdown during the latter part of the second, with the result the same as far as the kick for goal was concerned, this try failing as before.

North Carolina got the ball to within Connecticut's ten-yard line in an exchange of kicks, but could not make the required distance and the ball went to the opposition on the latter's five-yard line. Connecticut elected to rush the ball instead of kicking, and got around right end on a double pass. Schlimeck broke clear of the Carolina tacklers and made a ninety-five-yard run for a touchdown. Logan kicked the goal.

The leaders then sent a team of substitutes in for the third period and lost no time in making another touchdown. North Carolina could not gain on line plays and Connecticut got the ball on the thirty-six-yard line of its opponents. After a succession of plays, fake kicks, and the like, Toomey broke through and ran sixteen yards for a touchdown. Logan failed to kick goal.

The substitutes proved to be not so strong as the regular team when they got into a tight place, with the end of the period showing North Carolina rushing the ball down for big gains. It tried for a field goal from the twenty-yard line, when it had only a yard to gain in a first down, and missed. It was lucky enough to recover the ball, whereupon it made another sweep down the field, which resulted in a score by Stackowick, Mahoney kicking the goal.

Moran and Williams put over a very pretty forward pass early in the last period, and after a series of plays Moran turned right end for forty yards, putting the ball on Connecticut's ten-yard line. They then tried for goal, but the kick was blocked, the Connecticut team tallying soon afterward on a series of line bucks which were undeniable. The line-up:

Connecticut.	Position.	North Carolina.
Mapes	Centre	Johnson
Lang	Right guard	Anderson
Conrader	Right tackle	Stackowick
Mellon	Right end	Williams
Richardson	Quarter back	Moran
Schlimeck	Left half back	Doran
Duncan	Right half back	Mahoney

West Point Rests a Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The showing that the army team made against the strong Lehigh eleven Saturday was such that the coaches are satisfied the cadets are developing as rapidly as they care to have them, so a lay off for all the first squad men was ordered for to-day. In making a tackle last Saturday Devore twisted his knee and had to retire, but it was not thought the injury would amount to much. This morning, however, his leg gave him so much pain that he reported at the hospital, and it is not expected he will be in the line-up for several days at least. Benedict was also used up somewhat in the Lehigh game and joined the hospital squad to-day. The rest of the team came through the game in good shape. Dean's attack of rheumatism is still giving him trouble. He is receiving special care, and it is thought that the attack will respond to treatment and that he will bet back into the game in a few days.

Football at Olympic Field.

The Glencoe Athletic Club of Harlem has secured Olympic Field, at Fifth Avenue and 136th Street, for the football season. On Nov. 5, the Glencoe A. C. will line up against the crack eleven of the Howard A. C. of Tremont, at 3 o'clock. The preliminary game, starting at 1:45, will be between the Tacomas and the Howard Seconds.

Princeton-Harvard Soccer Friday.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 30.—It has been announced here that a soccer game between the Harvard and Princeton elevens will be played here on next Friday afternoon on Brokaw Field. This game had been scheduled for the morning of the Harvard game, but was cancelled ten days ago to permit the Tiger and Harvard cubs football game on that field on Saturday morning, and the soccer enthusiasts here are awaiting with interest the initial contest with Harvard.

Eaton "Aggies" Hockey Captain.

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 30.—Edwin C. Eaton, 1912, of Boston, has been elected Captain of the 1912 hockey team of the Connecticut Agriculturals, and J. A. Kilmer of Brookline, Mass., Manager.

FARR'S ANKLE BROKEN.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 30.—All Princeton's 'Varsity football players, excepting De Witt, went in for a defensive drill against the scrubs this afternoon. Two touchdowns through the 'Varsity line by hard plunging were made from midfield early in the scrimmage and the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to extended signal work.

There was some gloom in the Tiger camp to-day when it was announced that Barkley Farr had broken a bone in his ankle last week and would certainly be cut of the game for two weeks and probably for the remainder of the season. De Witt's absence from the heavy work to-day was due to a strained tendon in his leg that will give him little opportunity for heavy work before the Harvard game.

There were more shifts in the Princeton team to-day, and this time the back field was subject to the changes. "Hobey" Baker, who has played a fine article of football all season at half back, went in at quarter back on the third eleven in a short scrimmage which they had against the Freshmen, but the change did not meet with much success. Baker had a short tryout at this position on his Freshman team last year, but showed a higher grade of efficiency at half back, where he was shifted in midseason. At present he is the best half back on the field, and the Tiger scoring machine could not afford to lose him at this stage in their development. Sawyer had his place at right half to-day, with Pendleton for his running mate.

Chrystie and Penfield officiated at quarter back on the 'Varsity to-day and drove the team well during the signal drill. They had their hands full during the defensive drill with some open field tackling. Both men have shown an encouraging improvement since last Thursday and seem to have great possibilities. Their generalship during the next three days will determine largely whether they will alternate at quarter back in the Harvard and Yale games. Penfield's punting may prove the salvation of the Princeton team at a critical point in the big games, and if the Tiger line shows the same weakness that has been in evidence so far this season there will be critical points in the Harvard game.

The scrub gains to-day were made entirely on line plunging, and Hendrickson, Waller, and Harlow found good-sized holes with little difficulty. Both sides of the 'Varsity line were woefully weak, and the wonder is what these powerful giants are going to do in the three crucial tests which now await them. The situation with the forwards here is very discouraging and seems to have no bright side.

HARVARD LOSES FELTON.

Crimson's Right End and Best Punt Injured in Brown Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 30.—All the Harvard regulars were on the football field again this afternoon with the exception of Bob Potter, the quarter back, and Sam Felton, the right end, who also is Harvard's best kicker. Potter received some hard knocks in the Brown game, and had the day off, but Felton was seriously hurt in the first period against Brown, and it is doubtful whether he will be able to play again until Harvard meets Dartmouth in the stadium on Nov. 18.

After Harvard had scored its first touchdown against Brown Felton was kicked in the side and was obliged to retire from the game. It was found that he had failed to wear any protective pads over his hips, and the blow which otherwise might have caused only a slight bruise, was found to have broken several blood vessels, this forming a clot, which will have to absorb before Felton can get back into the game. The loss of Felton is a serious one, for he was the next best end to Smith, and his kicking was one of Harvard's biggest assets for the game against Princeton.

Potter will now have to do the punting at Princeton, and should he not be able to remain in the game throughout Harvard's kicking department will be seriously handicapped.

Harry Gardiner was at quarter back to-day. He has been out only a few days, but is much better than Freedley, and will be worked hard so that he may be the substitute for Potter against the Tigers. O'Brien, who did so well after Felton was hurt when in the latter's place at right end against Brown, will start Saturday's game.

All the players except Potter and Felton came out of the Brown game without a scratch, and all were in the signal drill and scrimmage this afternoon. The men were not driven hard, but worked continuously on the plays that will be used at Princeton. The Harvard team was held far down the field five times by the Brown defense Saturday, and to get a "punch" in the scoring attack will be one of the most important tasks of the coaches this week. Against Brown, Harvard did not show anywhere near all of the game it had been working up for Princeton. Hitchcock and Gardiner, tackles; Fisher and Leslie, guards; Storer, centre; Smith, left end, and Campbell, Wendell, and Morrison, the backs, all were in the play this afternoon. This back field will start the Princeton game, although, as against Brown, Reynolds doubtless will be interchanged with Campbell.

CORNELL WANTS MORE SPEED

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Cornell started off the week's football practice with a long drill in the fundamentals, followed by a sharp signal drill. The coaches were handicapped as usual on Monday by the absence of a large number of 'Varsity men, who were kept in their classrooms, but all of the players reported in the armory at night, and a long signal drill ensued. The coaches are preparing the team for the Michigan game on Nov. 11. Cornell plays Williams on Saturday, but no special preparation will be made for this game.

In the development of the team the coaches consider team speed as important, and the practices this week will aim to get up increased speed. While the showing against Pittsburgh demonstrated that the 'Varsity was progressing, a long drill in tackling was put on this afternoon, and similar drills will be held through the week. Coaches O'Rourke and Thompson looked after this branch of the work, while Coach Reed handled the back field.

It is expected that Champaign, the regular right tackle, will be in the line-up again this week. He reported this afternoon in togs, and appeared to be in good condition again. Another convalescent is Eddie Butler, who watched Saturday's game from the side lines. He was on the field this afternoon and did some light work. The coaches plan to give Hawkins a thorough trial this week, and they will use every effort to develop him into a reliable half back. He has fine running form and great speed, but his fumbling and failure to keep behind his interference have made him useless, so far as actual results are concerned. The development of a strong second line from end to end will also be featured this week. Among the men who are very near 'Varsity material now are Miller, the substitute centre, and Williamson, who played right tackle on Saturday.

3 MORE YALE MEN OUT WITH INJURIES

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30.—Head Coach Jack Field of the Yale eleven to-night announced an innovation not attempted before by a Yale football board of strategy in years. He stated that it had been agreed to close the gates of Yale Field this week.

Exasperating minor injuries, which have kept more of the regular players from the field this year than ever before, continued to-day. Francis, left end; Scully, left tackle, and Tomlinson, substitute tackle, were compelled to quit. Francis turned his ankle, but will be back in the game in two or three days, and expects to play Saturday. Tomlinson was knocked senseless and will return to the game shortly, but Scully, one of the three or four stars of the team, will be shelved until the Princeton game, it is believed. Francis was injured late in the scrimmaging, and Tomlinson and Scully in the preliminary practice of getting down the field under punts that preceded the practice. The two tackles tried to grab a punter and collided head on. Scully's forehead was cut, and he was taken to the New Haven General Hospital, where his injuries were treated. He is one of the best athletes in Yale, having rowed on the crew last year and played tackle on the eleven. He is the probable football Captain for next season.

Predictions that Capt. Howe would not return to practice were upset by his advent as Captain of the scrubs this afternoon. In the signal drill he taught the second team some of the plays that Brown used against Harvard on Saturday, and plunged them at the regulars. After scrimmaging opened, however, Howe's running back of 'Varsity punts showed the regular ends in ragged form. Howe on three occasions dashed back, eluding the tacklers, for 30 yards. Instead of resting the first-string men the coaches hurled all except McDevitt, right guard, through the entire scrimmaging to-day. St. Germaine, the former Carlisle Indian player, whose line forcing was such a feature Saturday, plowed up the Eli scrubs to-day at right guard. Another innovation made by the coaches was to experiment with both Perry and Paul at left guard and right tackle. Each of the two played the positions part of the afternoon. It seems settled that the injury to Childs's back will keep him benched for two weeks longer, and Paul, who has apparently lost his speed at right tackle, may go for the present to guard. Perry, who is the Captain of the wrestling team, is strong and fast, and has played right tackle excellently.

In the half hour's scrimmaging the 'Varsity scored twice. The scrubs began by working the Brown attack through the line for forty yards when Dunn, who was tried at end Saturday, but who went to half back to-day on the 'Varsity, caught a punt and shot back with it 30 yards. Spalding, who returned to the eleven after a lay off of three weeks caused by a bruised ankle, found a path around end twice for 20-yard gains, scoring on the second plunge. With the 'Varsity attack working like a perfect scoring machine, the regulars settled to a punting game, finally lapsing into a forward passing attack. Two heaves netted 40 yards, and the 'Varsity backs stormed the scrubs' goal for the remaining 10 yards in line plunges, Dunn finally taking the ball over for the score.

Ned Glass, the veteran guard, took charge of the guards to-day, drilling St. Germaine extensively. "Bo" Olcott, the New York University coach, was also present.

Olcott Gives N. Y. U. a Rest.

The New York University football team came out of the hard Williams game with few injuries, but on the whole the men are in good condition and ready for a hard week's work in preparation for Yale on Saturday. Henneberger and Crawford did not report for practice yesterday, the former being laid up with a serious infection of the back, which was spread by the hard playing on Saturday. Crawford received a nasty cut across the nose in the first quarter of the game, and he will be unable to put on a suit before Wednesday.

The 'Varsity team ran through a fast signal drill to limber up, and were excused for the day. The scrubs had a hard forty-minute scrimmage with the De Witt Clinton team, and then had twenty minutes of dummy tackling. In the scrimmage the coaches made constant changes in the line up, and were on the watch for a centre to take the place of Torrence if the latter is unable to play. Dressler had special work in passing, and it is probable that he will be made first substitute for the pivotal position.

Cornell, Von Egglofstein, and Baker played in the backfield, and Coach Reilley worked them hard on a new forward pass formation. The scrubs tore through the De Witt line without any difficulty and played surprisingly well, especially on the forward passes and open style of game.

A special call for coaches was sent out yesterday, and the first arrival was "Shorty" Friedberg, 1905, who will help with the linemen. A long, stiff practice will be held to-day, with three high school teams up for scrimmaging.

"Yale Team Is Ragged"—Ingersoll.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30.—Coach Ingersoll of the Colgate football eleven says that Yale's playing was ragged against his team Saturday, and that Princeton seems to him to be much stronger than the Elis this season. He said in The Yale News to-day:

"The playing of the Yale team was ragged. There was not enough team work and playing together. There was altogether too much individual play, and the much-to-be-desired machine play was to a great extent lacking. Reilly played the best game for Yale. In my opinion the team which we met at Yale to day was much inferior to that which we met at Princeton two weeks ago."

HOME-RUN BAKER DINED.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Marylanders, with a preponderance of Eastern Shore men, gave a dinner to-night at the Hotel Walton in honor of the Athletics in general and J. Franklin Baker in particular. Baker is a native of Trappe, Talbot County, Maryland. By a coincidence, Herzog of the vanquished Giants is also a Maryland boy, and he was invited, but could not be present.

Gov. Crothers of Maryland and Mayor Preston of Baltimore sent letters of regret in which they warmly praised the sportsmanship of the Athletics and the skill of "Home-Run" Baker.

J. Hector MacNeal was toastmaster. At his right sat Baker and on his left hand Mayor Reyburn. At the guest table also were all the members of the Athletics, including Ben Shibe, Connie Mack, and Louis Van Zelt, the mascot of the team. The one big hit of the evening was the fact that the ordinarily taciturn Connie Mack fattened his oratorical batting average by making a fifteen-minute speech. The sentence that best revealed the sportsmanlike spirit of the Athletics' manager and won a tumult of applause was this:

"The newspapers will tell you that managers make players. On the contrary, I tell you that players make managers."

A number of other guests and members of the team in brief speeches paid tribute to the Maryland player. Modesty stuck out oll over Baker when he rose to express his thanks. He said that speechmaking was not his specialty but that he appreciated all the kind things that had been said. The Marylander received a tremendous ovation from the three hundred guests standing at the tables, while they cheered and waved napkins frantically.

In addition to the honoring of Baker the guests took occasion to say farewell to Capt. Harry Davis, who goes to Cleveland as manager. Davis, in a happy speech, promised to return to Philadelphia next Fall, when, as each speaker had predicted, the winning of another world's championship would be celebrated.

Columbia Senior Nine Wins.

The Columbia seniors took the lead yesterday in the inter-class baseball series being played on Morningside Heights by defeating the Law School nine by a score of 4 to 2. This game was one of two to break the triple tie that resulted from the round robin series which the Columbia class teams have been playing this month. Timely hits off Bailey, the Law School twirler, netted the seniors their winning runs, while Sanders, who pitched for the winners, kept the heavy-hitting men from last year's 'Varsity who are playing this Fall on the Law School nine down to a few scattered hits which did not prove effective.

On Wednesday the juniors team will play the seniors to decide the championship, with which goes the Eddie Collins medals to the winning team. The juniors made a lucky draw last Saturday and they will play but one game to the two of the seniors. The score by innings:

Law School	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	2	3

Dankleman's Billiard Record.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—New York opened the annual tournament of the National Billiard League in this city to-night by defeating Boston and at the same time making a new record for the league. John Dankleman represented New York and defeated Russ Amidon of Boston 50 to 30. While both men made high runs of 5 each. Dankleman made an average of 1 point for every inning, which is a new league mark. Amidon's average was .64. To-morrow night Dankleman will play Warren of Boston.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 30.—The opening game of the league season of the National Amateur Three-cushion Billiard League was played here to-night, Pittsburgh opposing Kansas City. Charles McCourt of this city defeated J. B. Kerr, the Western player, 50 to 40, in one hundred innings. McCourt's high run was 4 and Kerr's 3.

Hoppe Wins Easily with Cue.

Willie Hoppe, who is practising at George Slosson's Billiard Academy, Thirty-first Street and Broadway, in preparation for his coming championship match with George Sutton on Nov. 28, again defeated George Slosson in last night's game of 18.2 balk line billiards by the score of 500 to 426 in twelve innings. The champion's high run was 186 points, with an average of 41 2-3. Slosson's high run was 176 points, with an average of 35½.

Croll Wins at 18.2 Billiards.

Basketball Call at N. Y. U.

Capt. Moore of the New York University baseball team has issued the first call for candidates and over thirty men have responded. A fine schedule has been prepared by Manager Dale, including a splendid Southern and Northern trip over the Christmas and Easter holidays. On the Southern trip New York will play Navy, Georgetown, and St. John's; and in the Northern, New York will compete at Rochester, Syracuse, Colgate and Hamilton. Manager Dale has been unsuccessful in engaging a suitable coach. Although Capt. Moore is the only veteran of last year's star team in college the prospects are very encouraging for the development of a fast team.

TAFT TO BE GUEST AT A. C. A. BANQUET

Duke of Connaught Invited to Big Auto Gathering at Waldorf-Astoria Dec. 20.

With President William H. Taft as the guest of honor, the annual banquet of the Automobile Club of America will be an event of international significance. Fully 1,500 members of the club and their guests are expected to attend the banquet, which will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Wednesday evening, Dec. 20. The banquet has in the past been held early in the year, but in order to insure the attendance of President Taft and other notables a postponement was inevitable.

Henry Sanderson, President of the Automobile Club of America, and Henry R. Taylor, Chairman of the Banquet Committee, promise to make the banquet one of the most noteworthy ever held in this country. In addition to President Taft, the invited guests will include Vice President Sherman, the Secretaries of State, War, Navy, Treasury, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, and Interior; Postmaster General, Attorney General, and the Solicitor General. The entire Diplomatic Corps at Washington will also be included in the list of guests.

One of the most important features of the banquet will be the invitation to the Presidents of the clubs comprising the International Association of Recognized Automobile Clubs throughout the world. In this list is included the Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada and uncle of King George V. of England. The Duke of Connaught is the President of the Royal Automobile Club of England, and as he is already in residence at Ottawa, Canada, he is expected to accept the club's invitation. Another probability is the Duke of Connaught's son, Prince Arthur of Connaught, who will be in Canada at that time, and is a member of the Royal Automobile Club. Queen Mary's brother, the Duke of Teck, is Chairman of the Royal Automobile Club, and will also be invited.

The list of distinguished foreign representatives includes Comte de Limburg-Stirum and Duc d'Ursel, Vice Presidents Royal Automobile Club of Belgium; Alexander Markgraf Pallavicini, President Kaiserlich-Koniglich Automobile Club of Austria; F. H. Anson, G. R. Smith, and C. F. Smith, Presidents Automobile and Aero Club of Canada; E. J. Conill, President International Automobile Racing Association of Cuba; Count Raben-Levetzau, President Danish Automobile Club; Baron de Zuylen de Nyevelt, President Automobile Club of France; M. Abel Ballif, President Touring Club de France; Victor Herzog von Ratibor, President Kaiserlicher Automobile Club of Germany; R. A. P. Sandberg Tot Essenberg, President Netherlands Automobile Club; Comte Alexandre Andrassy, President Automobile Club of Hungary; Marquis A. Ferrero Ventimiglia, President Automobile Club of Italy; Col. Miguel Ahumada, President Automobile Club of Mexico; Samuel Eyde, President Norway Automobile Club; José Relvas, President Automobile Club of Portugal; Le Comte de Perlaver, President Royal Automobile Club of Spain; George V. Bibescu, President Automobile Club of Roumania; Baron W. Federix, President Imperial Automobile Club of Russia; Greve Clarence von Rosen, President Automobile Club of Sweden, and Ch. Ls. Empeyta, President Automobile Club of Switzerland.

The gathering will be the most brilliant and representative ever brought together at a festive board. President Sanderson has for the past six months been in communication with the leading statesmen, professional and commercial leaders in the country, and it is expected that every important industrial institution in the United States will be represented at the banquet.

The date of the banquet was settled only a few days ago when President Henry Sanderson, Henry R. Taylor, and Colgate Hoyt met President Taft, who personally fixed the date. The personnel of the Banquet Committee will be shortly announced and will be commensurate with the importance of the occasion.

Sailors Spilled in Roller Race.

GRIFFITH GETS NEW JOB.

Cincinnati Manager to Try to Make Winning Team at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Washington American League Baseball Club to-day Clark Griffith, manager of the Cincinnati National League team, was unanimously selected as manager of the Washington team to succeed James McAleer, now part owner of the Boston Americans. The contract is for three years, but the salary was not made public.

There was a slight possibility of Griffith also becoming President of the Washington baseball organization. It is well known that he has sought to acquire a block of stock in the local club, as was intimated by some of the Directors after the meeting. Just how much stock has been conceded to him is a matter of conjecture, but it is said that it is a considerable amount of that placed on the market.

Griffith, who has been here conferring with the Directors, is said to have left for New York to consult with some of his friends regarding the question of becoming financially interested in the club.

No Manager for Reds Named.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 30.—A meeting of the directors of the Cincinnati Baseball Club was held at the club headquarters here to-day, but the question of a new manager for next season was not settled. The appointment of a new field leader for the team has been agitating the fans of this city for some time, and it had been semi-officially announced that the matter would receive the attention of the directors to-day. However, after the meeting had ended President August Herrmann said that only matters relating to the new grand stand being built at League Park had been discussed.

A. A. U. to Accept Two New Records.

After careful investigation it is assured that the Record Committee of the A. A. U. will accept the record made by P. J. McDonald of the Irish-American Athletic Club when he put the 24-pound shot 38 feet 10 11-16 inches recently. The record of 187 feet 4 inches, made by M. J. McGrath with the 16-pound hammer, will also be passed by the Record Committee. E. T. Hart, who was the chief measurer at both these performances, brought the weights to Secretary James E. Sullivan's office yesterday. They have been weighed by Chairman Rubin of the Record Committee, who stated that the hammer weighed 16 pounds 460 grains and the shot weighed 24 pounds 335 grains.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Oct. 30.—Miss Malaprop, owned by Charles Carroll, won the Hindlip Maiden Plate of 106 sovereigns, for two-year-olds, which was run at the opening of the Birmingham Autumn meeting here to-day. The Witty Girl filly was second and Golden Note third. Eighteen horses started in the race, the distance of which was five furlongs straight.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—In the Prix de Mezy, run at St. Cloud to-day, W. K. Vanderbilt's Faventia finished second.

T. M. Sherman Defeats Lauder.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Preceding luncheon with Vice President Sherman and his family at the home of the Vice President this afternoon, Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, was defeated on the links of the Yahnundasis Golf Club by Thomas M. Sherman, one of the best amateur golfers in the country, with a score of 42 to 59.

Michigan Team Shows Weakness.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 30.—Thoroughly disgusted at his team's showing in last Saturday's football game against Vanderbilt, particularly in tactics and forward plays, Coach Yost to-day sent the Michigan regulars through a grueling practice, including scrimmage. The work was the first of a heavy five-day schedule in preparation for next Saturday's battle with Syracuse at Ann Arbor. The squad is in good shape, only two regulars sustaining slight injuries in the Vanderbilt game.

YACHT RACING RULES UNDER FIRE

Regatta Committees Have Too Much Power—Yacht Owners Have No Right of Appeal.

Hasty action by the Regatta Committee of a yacht club of secondary importance on Long Island Sound, on a protest filed at the end of a race held on Decoration Day, has set in motion the machinery which may bring about a radical change in the general scheme of managing yacht races. Heretofore, from the beginning of things the decision of a Regatta Committee in all matters concerning a race has been final, and there has been no possibility of appeal on the part of a racing man who has thought that he has been unjustly treated. The constitution of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound allows a Regatta Committee to refer to the Executive Committee of the association any question involving the interpretation of the rules, but does not allow a racing man to appeal.

This matter of the finality of the decisions of Regatta Committees is one concerning which the committees, and the clubs as well, have been very jealous. The language in which it is expressed in club books is very explicit and positive. The attitude of the clubs has been that "what the committee says goes," and that no interference, or even criticism, of its acts will be tolerated. This is really part and parcel of the policy of every yacht club, which is that the club is an absolutely independent body, subject to no control on the part of any governing body or higher authority; in other words, that it will do whatever it pleases, without let or hindrance. In recent years this policy has been modified to the extent that all the principal clubs have accepted identical racing rules, and have submitted to such an arrangement of racing dates that the races of one club will not interfere with those of another.

This attitude of independence has been so strongly maintained in the Larchmont Yacht Club that it required sixteen years of courtship on the part of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound to secure the Larchmont organization as a member, notwithstanding, that for half that period the Chairman of the Regatta Committee of Larchmont was at the same time one of the principal officers of the association. It is readily to be seen, therefore, that a change in the scheme of management of races that will permit an appeal from the decision of a Regatta Committee will be a radical departure from the established order of things, and one that will require a good deal of diplomacy to carry through.

And yet some such change is, in the opinion of many racing men, necessary to protect them from unjust or ill considered action on the part of inefficient or vicious Regatta Committees. Fortunately there has been very little vicious action on the part of such committees; practically none, in fact. But unfortunately there are comparatively few committees that are expert in the management of races, or thoroughly familiar with the racing rules, or the methods of procedure. It can hardly be otherwise, inasmuch as it is impossible for the Regatta Committee of a small club having only one or two races a year, to gain anything like an adequate experience in less than a dozen years, while those who serve in a large club, with many races in a season, usually find the work too heavy to be carried on for a period longer than two or three years. To properly fill the place a man must first be more or less expert as a sailor; second, he must be something of a lawyer, in order to fully comprehend the rules, and third, he must have the judicial temperament to enable him to apply the rules without fear or favor. And then he must have considerable experience, in association with others who have already gained it, before he is really "good." All of which brings to him in the end a little applause, a good many curses, and absolutely nothing else.

There is, at the Stamford Yacht Club, a small fleet of little one-design racing boats, one of which, called Scamp, is owned by R. W. James Kingan. There was a race for these boats on Decoration Day, and at the end the owner of another boat protested Scamp, alleging that her helmsman had sculled her with the rudder. The Regatta Committee promptly held a meeting, sustained the protest, and disqualified Scamp, without notifying Mr. Kingan or giving him an opportunity to be heard. Sculling is contrary to the rules, and, moreover, in so far as the Stamford one-design class is concerned, sculling is defined as "unnecessary and continued working of the tiller." Whether Mr. Kingan was guilty of sculling or not is not material to the case as made out by him, although it is interesting to know that the Regatta Committee of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, in considering a similar protest made against Scamp in a race of June 24, found that there was so much lost motion in the tiller that the helmsman could not avoid constant motion, and dismissed the protest. The material fact is that the case at Stamford was decided against Scamp without notice to the owner.

Two days before the October meeting of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound, held on Friday last, each officer of the organization and each delegate to it received from Mr. Kingan a printed circular, in which the story of his trouble was related, and the rules of the Yacht Racing Association of England, providing for appeals in certain cases, were recited. The circular was, in part, in form of a petition to the association to so amend its rules as to provide for an appeal to its Executive Committee from the decision of a Regatta Committee; and, generally speaking, to provide means for compelling the clubs affiliated with the association to "behave themselves." Accompanying the circular was a printed copy of the decisions of the Stamford committee and the Seawanhaka committee, placed side by side.

Of course the association could not take any definite action in the matter on Friday, inasmuch as the subject had not been embodied in the call for the meeting, but Mr. Kingan's communication provoked considerable discussion, and it was the opinion of many of the veteran helmsmen among the delegates that the right of appeal in certain cases, if not in all, should be granted. The association therefore voted to refer the matter to its Executive Committee, with instructions to investigate the case, and, further, to consider the advisability of so amending the rules as to permit racing men to appeal in cases involving the interpretation of the rules, and report at the next meeting.

Incidentally it was made known at the meeting that the New York Yacht Club has recently clipped the powers of its Regatta Committee to such effect that a racing man may appeal to the club in certain cases and under certain circumstances. This fact may make the work of the Long Island association a little easier, if it concludes to persuade its constituent clubs to submit the acts of their Regatta Committees to review.

QUEAL IN A DEAD HEAT.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 30.—In the annual Thanksgiving Day race here this afternoon, Tom Longboat and Bill Queal, the American distance running champion, ran a dead heat for the ten miles, the time being 53:12. The track was slow and holding, and the runners were compelled to battle with a heavy wind every time they came into the homestretch.

The Indian led for the first five miles, with Queal the pacemaker during the sixth, seventh, and eighth. Longboat tried to steal away beginning the ninth mile, and continued in the van from that point almost to the finish, where Queal drew up, but was unable to beat the Indian in the sprint to the tape, with the result that they crossed the line shoulder to shoulder. C. Hefferran of South Africa was third, and Fred Meadows of Guelph, fourth. The event was witnessed by 4,000 persons.

McFarland Finds Easy Mark.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., Oct. 30.—Packey McFarland, the stockyard champion, defeated Al Dewey of this city to-night, Dewey's seconds throwing up the sponge in the fifth round to save him from a knockout. It was McFarland's fight all the way, and he fairly toyed with the local champion. In the fifth round Dewey started to mix things up, and McFarland went after him in whirlwind fashion. A right uppercut to the jaw sent Dewey to the mat for the count, and he was helpless and being battered all over the ring when the sponge was thrown in.

HOGAN WINS OVER HOWARD.

"One-Round" Hogan, the California lightweight, defeated Willie Howard of Brooklyn at the Carlyle A. C., Ridgewood, last night. The bout went the full distance, and Hogan had a clear lead at the finish. He gained the honors in seven of the ten rounds, and his punches left many traces on Howard's face at the end of the bout. Howard's left eye was badly cut from Hogan's terrific right-hand punches, the wound being opened in the seventh round.

Hogan's nose bled slightly in the early part of the bout, but that was the only visible sign of damage due to the Brooklynite's punching. Hogan had the advantage over Howard in height, weight, and reach, and used these advantages to good effect after the second round.

In the first and second rounds Howard did his best work, and the punishment caused Hogan to stall. Howard and about all the leading in these two chapters. In the third, after Hogan had slowed up, the Brooklynite, with stiff right-hand swings and hard uppercuts in the clinches, gained confidence, and during the remainder of the bout he set the pace, barring the eight round, when he stood upon a good-sized lead and allowed Hogan to do the bulk of the work. Hogan's hard swings to the body and right and left uppercuts in the clinches, gained him the commanding lead. He scored the only knockdown of the bout in the fourth round, but it was helped along by Howard slipping. He went down on only one knee, and was up again before Referee Charley White could begin a count.

Later in the bout Hogan rushed Howard to the ropes and used both hands in trip-hammer fashion against the Brooklynite, but was not able to put him down. Once started on the road to victory, Hogan showed to much better advantage than in the early rounds. His deceptive shift and feints puzzled Howard all through the fight, and whenever Howard got over a damaging blow Hogan stalled until he was able to fight back.

Howard rushed Hogan to the ropes in the opening round, and before the first minute had elapsed blood flowed from Hogan's nose. In the second round Howard did all the leading and had the better of the open fighting, with Hogan leading in the clinches. But the round belonged to Howard. Hogan led in two fast exchanges in the third round, twice driving Howard to the ropes, where he rained blow after blow on the Brooklynite.

In the fourth round Hogan led again, and also scored the only knockdown of the bout. The fifth was the fastest round of the bout, both boys working fast all the way. For two minutes the going was even, but Hogan cut loose near the finish with a rally that gave him the honors. Hogan had a shade the better of the sixth and led all the way in the seventh. In the eighth he slowed up and Howard gained the honors, but he came back and won the ninth and tenth rounds. A crowd of about 2,500 witnessed the bout.

O'LEARY DEFEATS DALY.

Persistent jabbing and well-timed swings won for Young O'Leary last night in his ten-round bout with Johnny Daly at the Fordon Athletic Club. The contest was brimful of interest and resolved itself into cleverness against strength, and the former won by a wide margin. Despite his extra weight, Daly was unable to overcome the cleverness of his opponent, who was safe at all stages of the bout. Daly depended upon a hard right swing, which invariably went wide of the mark, and the penalty was a stiff jab in the face for his effort. Toward the latter part of the bout O'Leary, with a safe margin to his credit, let himself out and landed a number of hard swings on the head and body.

In two rounds only did Daly show to advantage, but this was insignificant and was quickly wiped out by O'Leary in the next two subsequent rounds. Daly made the best showing when he stood off and met O'Leary's rushes, at which time he scored heavily, but, feeling he was on the losing end, he threw discretion to the wind and paid the penalty for it. In the two closing rounds the men put up several lively rallies, with the final odds in favor of O'Leary.

In the semi-final bout of six rounds Kid Alberts won by a knockout from Jim Jackenniny. The latter went down from a stomach punch for the count of nine in the second round. This weakened him, and when Alberts drove a hard smash home under the heart two rounds later Jackenniny dropped and was unable to respond at the count of ten. Mike Clancey outpointed Eddie King in six rough and tumble rounds.

Faulkes Fails to Show in Ring.

After witnessing a good number of preliminary bouts the crowd at the Brooklyn Beach A. C. last night were disappointed in not seeing the final contest, which was to have been between Frankie Williams and Buddy Faulkes, the latter failing to appear.

The pair boxed some time ago at the Brighton Beach Club of Coney Island and furnished such a good bout that they were rematched, and the spectators were expecting to see a repetition of the other bout. In view of the fact that the management could not secure a suitable substitute, they issued "come back" checks, which will be honored at the next show on Monday night.

The free show which the members witnessed was made up of some good contests. In the opening number Young McNulty knocked out Battling Butch in the third round after some fast fighting. "Coke" Williams stopped Young Eggleton in the first round of the second bout. Young McGowan and "Dutch" Brandt fought a fast four-round draw, and in the semi-final of six rounds Young Allen was entitled to the honors over Eddie Jones in a slam-bang affair.

Royale A. C. Opens To-night.

It has been a long time since the Brooklyn fans have had an oppportunity of witnessing a better bout than that which will be staged by the Royale Athletic Club at the Clermont Avenue Rink to-night, with Jim Stewart, the local heavyweight, and Andy Morris of Boston as the principals. These big fellows have worked hard to get into shape for their battle, and there will be no excuses offered because of lack of condition on the part of the loser. The Brooklyn crowd pins its faith on the local man, but there are many who like Morris and are predicting that he will win by the knockout route.

Good Bouts at Brighton Beach A. C.

Thirty rounds of boxing is the attraction scheduled for the next stag of the Brighton Beach Athletic Club, which will be held on Friday night. The main bout of ten rounds will bring together Eddie Smith of this city and Eddie Mack of Brooklyn. Young Sheppard of Brooklyn and Frankie Nelson of New York will clash in the semi-final bout of ten rounds, and in the first ten-round bout Maxey Marx of Coney Island will oppose Joe Brown of Jersey City.

Willie Lewis Wins Easily.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30.—In a fifteen-round bout before the Edgewood Athletic Club here to-night Willie Lewis of New York showed his superiority over Jeff Doherty of this city, taking all the rounds but the tenth. Lewis came off without a scratch, while Doherty's face was cut in several places.

Bill Hurley Whips English.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 30.—"Bill" Hurley of this city meted out severe punishment to Larry English of Watervliet in a ten-round bout here to-night. English was so weak in the two closing rounds that he was unable to land a blow, but saved himself by holding tactics.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

At the opening series of bouts of the Mount Vernon Sporting Club to-night, Joe Stein, the Ghetto champion, and Andy Parker, a hard-hitting welterweight from New Haven, will be the headliners in the star bout at ten rounds. In addition there will be two six-round goes and two four-round preliminaries.

Battling Mantell has been picked to box the Hudson Guild champion, Young Fitzsimmons, in the star bout of ten rounds at 130 pounds to-night at Brown's Gymnasium. The winner of this bout will probably be matched to box Monte Dale, the Western lightweight. Happy Brosnon, another of the Hudson Guild boys, will box Murray Allen, the best little fellow in Brooklyn.

Another new lightweight in these parts will make his first appearance at the Sharkey Club to-morrow night. He is Monte Dale, and hails from Denver, Col. He comes with a good reputation. A week or so ago he fought fifteen rounds with "Battling" Nelson at Manchester, N. M., and made a favorable impression. Dale has been matched with Bert Keyes, the local lightweight, for ten rounds. They will furnish the star bout at the Sharkey Club. From what has been said of Dale he will give Keyes a good argument. In addition to this bout there will be a six-round semi-final and several four-round scraps.

BURLESQUE BOUTS ON MAT.

Harlem River Casino was the scene of three fiascos last night, which were heralded as wrestling contests between champions of their respective classes. The predominating burlesque came with the staging of the last bout between John Middlesky, an Indian from Yuma, Ariz., and Ivan Romanoff, a Russian.

They stood 6 feet 4 inches and 6 feet 5 inches, respectively, with the probable weights 310 pounds and 250 pounds. The Indian was shaped like a huge Brownie, while the Russian bore quite some resemblance to an athlete.

When they shaped for the first bout the Indian stood as though in a trance. After bluffing for a hold for a minute Romanoff pulled his man to his knees, the Indian apparently willingly going to all fours. The Russian stalled around, bluffing at various holds, such as toe and crotch, and finally slapped on a hammer lock, heaving the worried Indian over on his side, after which he got a further arm hold and crotch, which flopped the Indian in 3 minutes and 20 seconds.

The second bout was even more of a joke, Romanoff putting the Indian to his knees after a minute of pulling and hauling. After playing with his massive opponent for five minutes Romanoff put on a neck and crotch hold and gained the fall in 5:03.

The first match, between Jim Galvin and H. McLaughlin, resulted in the disqualification of the former, after he had won the first fall in twenty-seven minutes. He persisted in using foul tactics, with the result that the referee, Ernest Roeber, ordered him out of the ring and gave the decision to McLaughlin.

The other so-called contest was still more of a burlesque. The principals were Paul Samson, a German, and George Sandele, a Greek. The latter did everything but wrestle. Roeber refused to disqualify the Greek, despite the yells of the crowd asking that that punishment be meted out to Sandele. Samson finally won in straight falls in 19:20 and 5:20, with half Nelson and crotch holds in both instances.

Newspaper Golfers on Links.

Those affiliated with the New York Newspaper Golf Club brought their competitive season to a close on the Van Cortlandt Park links yesterday. The programme called for a varied list of contests, including a one-club handicap, a flag competition, and another for long driving. Conditions stipulated that those taking part in the one-club affair should play ten of the meadow holes only, and when all had finished E. E. Johnson was found to be the winner with a net score of 39.

There was quite a turnout in the flag competition. Members played over the hill holes, as the first six are called. All were allowed twenty strokes, plus one-quarter of their regular handicaps. Ike Dorgan won first prize, the player planting his flag to within six inches of the sixth hole. In the driving competition each contestant was allowed to drive one ball from the fourth tee, and on this occasion Harry Cashman proved to be the star "swiper." He got a drive of 205 yards.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—There was a relatively large pressure fall Monday near the mouth of the Rio Grande, with rains and brisk winds to the northward and northeast. Storm warnings have been ordered along the Texas coast. There is also a moderate depression over the middle Mississippi and lower Ohio Valleys, with high pressure on either side, and general rains have fallen in the great central valleys and also in the south upper Lake and western lower Lake region.

In the Atlantic and Gulf States and over the western half of the country the weather was generally fair.

Temperatures continue low over the Missouri and upper Mississippi Valleys, but have risen slightly above normal in the Middle and South Atlantic States.

There will be rains Tuesday in the interior and Atlantic States, reaching the New England Coast by Tuesday night and followed by fair weather Wednesday in interior districts. In the West generally fair weather will continue during the next two days.

It will be somewhat colder Tuesday in New England, the Middle Atlantic States, and the Ohio Valley. In the South and West temperatures will not change decidedly.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light to moderate, variable; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate west, becoming variable Wednesday; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate northeast to east.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have light to moderate variable winds and increasing cloudiness Tuesday, rain at night and Wednesday.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Rain Tuesday. Wednesday cloudy and somewhat colder; light to moderate variable winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Rain Tuesday. Wednesday cloudy and somewhat colder; light to moderate south winds, becoming northwest Wednesday.

The Necessaries of Life

include the local transportation, the light, heat, and power supplied by Public Utility plants. For this reason the business of corporations operating such plants is slightly affected by the hard times. Hence their earnings are more sure and stable than those of many other enterprises.

These conditions alone give great value to the securities of Public Utility companies that are judiciously and honestly capitalized and intelligently, economically, and efficiently conducted. All these elements are to be found in the companies that we have developed, control, and operate. Therefore we do not hesitate to recommend the bonds issued by them as safe and as sound as they are profitable for investors to hold.

FURTHER RISE IN STEEL

With a considerable measure of uniformity prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday showed well sustained firmness with a sufficient forward movement to result in fair net gains in the majority of stocks. The course of United States Steel was naturally watched with peculiar interest because of last week's developments. Its movement yesterday, which marked a further recovery from last week's depression seemed to indicate that the corporation's stockholders were disposed to give heed to the advice of the corporation's Chairman to remain calm in the face of the Government's suit for the company's dissolution. At all events there was no pressure upon the stock yesterday which was not readily offset by the demand for it, and the stock closed with a substantial gain for the day, 3½ points above the low figure of last Friday.

The position in which the United States Steel Corporation now finds itself supplied added reason for the interest which was taken yesterday in the proceedings before the United States Circuit Court in the American Tobacco case. It was in the attitude which the Government would take in respect to the reorganization of the company that the greatest interest lay. It was the consensus of opinion that the modifications suggested by the provisions which the Attorney General argued should be included in any plan approved by the court would not vitally affect the company's proposals. It is true that the opinion was voiced in the financial district that acquiescence in the Attorney General's suggestions that the companies into which the American Tobacco Company is to be divided should be kept for five years under the jurisdiction of the court might perpetuate for that length of time a feeling of uncertainty regarding the affairs of all of the proposed new companies which would be harmful to their business. On the other hand, it was noted that the Attorney General did not second the suggestion of the independent tobacco interests that the court should prevent the distribution to the present holders of American Tobacco stock of the shares of the companies among which the business of the "trust" is to be divided. The modifications which the brief of the Attorney General would suggest were regarded, therefore, as not preventing such measure of community of interest among the new companies as would arise from the fact that they had stockholders in common, although definite barriers would be set up against any agreements among these companies which would make possible the abuses which were condemned by the Supreme Court in the decision ordering the dissolution of the "trust." The suggestion that single companies might control as much as 40 per cent. of the trade in which they are engaged served, moreover, to dispel such apprehension as may have existed that the Government would insist on the breaking up of the company's business into small fractions of its original total.

Many of the loans which were made to the European markets, particularly to Germany at the close of September at the high rates then prevailing, are now being renewed at lower rates of interest or the proceeds of the payments of these loans are being devoted to other employment abroad. Monetary conditions in Europe have eased very materially within the last thirty days, but rates still obtainable there are above those which can be realized in this market, and, as a result, by far the larger part of the funds placed at Europe's disposal in September are being left on the other side. The German borrowers of a good deal of the money which our bankers remitted to Europe at the end of September are paying off their loans, but the exchange thus created has been readily absorbed for other remittances from this side, notably for the subscription to the Prussian Treasury bills sold in this market last week. It is considered very probable that the bulk of the money which our bankers are employing in Europe will remain there at least until after the end of the year. That, however, will depend among other factors upon the course of the French money market, a distinct easing in which, as a result of the expected Morocco settlement, or from other causes, might lower rates sufficiently in the general European market to send home to this market a good deal of the money which we are now employing abroad. Bankers hardly expect this outcome, however, in the absence of the development of some unexpected demand at home sufficient to raise New York rates substantially above their present level.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

INTEREST IN COPPERS FLAGS

Issues Which Led Last Week Report Sales of Only Few Hundreds—New Westchester 4½s Strong.

Curb trading was sluggish yesterday and price movements were narrow. Many of the coppers which had led in activity last week reported transactions of no more than a few hundreds. The Cobalts were weak. Kerr Lake sold off from 3¼ to 3⅛ on sales of 1,200, and La Rose sold down from 3 15-16 to 3 13-16. Trading in the bond list was confined to three issues. New York, Westchester & Boston 4½s were active and strong, selling up from 97 9-16 to 97⅞, the close being at 97¾ after transactions of $112,000. New York City 4¼s sold $52,000, from 103 1-16 down to 103.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The decline in Smelting on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was accompanied by rumors that a Government dissolution suit was also impending against that company. The stock broke very sharply near the close, nearly 200 shares changing hands as low as 59⅝, which was a fraction under the low quotation touched on the New York Stock Exchange. Transactions in Smelting for the day totaled 20,070 shares, which placed it ahead of any other stock as to volume, with the single exception of United States Steel common. Much irregularity was displayed by the general list.

"Efficiency" and "Scientific Management" are the demands of the hour. An investment bond house is scientifically managed when it offers issues which have been so thoroughly investigated that practically all danger of loss of principal or interest is eliminated. It is efficient when, besides supplying its clients with safe bonds, it looks after every detail of their investment and banking needs. T-1, a new leaflet, "What We Can Do For You," explains in detail the value of our house to a conservative investor.

CALL WOOL RAIL RATE HIGH.

Cheaper to Ship by Panama, Boston Merchants Say, Asking a Reduction.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Wool merchants in Boston and other Eastern wool centres appeared to-day before Inter-State Commissioner Prouty and asked a revision of the railroad rates on wool, which, they said, were far in excess of those for other commodities. They said there should be a reduction also on mohair, pelts, and hides.

The Boston merchants protested also against the rates for wool east of the Mississippi. They classed the rates as high as compared with the rates to Chicago and Detroit. One Boston wool merchant said he could bring wool to Boston from the Far West more cheaply by way of Panama than by rail.

EASTERN PROVISION CO. WINS

Declared Solvent, President Says Armour & Co. Caused Bankruptcy Suit.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—The Eastern Provision Company of this city, which charged that the Armour Company of Chicago was trying to force it out of business, won a victory in the United States District Court here to-day when Judge McPherson dismissed a petition in bankruptcy filed by several of its creditors.

M. R. Craven, President of the Eastern Provision Company, declared that he had evidence that A. F. Bickley, a member of one of the petitioning firms, was acting by instructions of Armour & Co., similar to those confessed to by Robert Boeling on the witness stand last Friday. Boeling, who is local manager of the Southern Cottonseed Oil Company, admitted he was acting on instructions from Armour & Co. in what was an attempt to wreck the business of the defendant. He stated that Armour & Co. had guaranteed him against any liability.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Texas Company an Independent.

A dispatch from Texas yesterday said that the Attorney General of that State was preparing to investigate the Texas Company on the theory that it is controlled by the Standard Oil Company. According to the report, the Attorney General had damaging evidence to the effect that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., maintained an office in the same building as the Texas Company. Officials of both companies denied the story of interownership, as they have done on several previous occasions. A representative of the Texas Company said that it was meeting with the keenest competition at every point where it solicits business, and that if the Rockefeller concern was interested in the smaller company's welfare it had adopted an unusual way of showing it. As for Mr. Rockefeller's tenancy in the Whitehall Building, it seems to extend no further than a membership in the luncheon club in the building.

Checking Up Standard Oil Shares.

Standard Oil officials calculate that it will take about all of the month that still remains before the distribution of the stocks of the thirty-three subsidiaries to Standard Oil Company of New Jersey stockholders just to see that each gets his due. The job of making out something like a quarter of a million new certificates, all of which have to be signed by the proper officers, was simplified by the use of an electrical signing device, which duplicated each stroke of the pen on many sheets at a time. What has given the officials most concern, however, has been the division of the subsidiary shares into the proper fractional amounts. To make sure that each Standard Oil stockholder is getting his proper allotment each envelope is checked over three times. It is this process of checking up which is taking time now.

Cotton "Valorization."

How much depends on whose ox is gored is being demonstrated just now in the diverse attitudes of legislators toward cotton and coffee. Just as the United States grows the bulk of the world's supply of cotton and could control the surplus supply, Brazil grows the bulk of the world's coffee and has shown in the last four years her ability to control the world's supply through the plan put through in 1906-7 of taking out of the market the overplus of that year's bumper crop and holding it for gradual distribution. The consequent rise in coffee has brought out investigation both by the Department of Justice and a Congressional committee, and all that has prevented indictments, apparently, has been the fact that the controlling has been done by powers outside of this jurisdiction. Precisely the same arguments as developed the Brazilian coffee "valorization" are now being used at the conference of Southern Governers at New Orleans in their search for a method of checking the decline in cotton prices. Congressman Burleson's plan for a system of warehouses even goes so far as to propose that the financing of the cotton stored might be done through the same foreign bankers who advanced the $75,000,000 which made possible Brazil's coffee "valorization."

Silver's Rise.

There is marked difference of opinion in the silver trade as to the probability of a continuance of the demand for the metal in the Far East as a result of the disturbances in China. Those who argue that the recent rise to almost the high point of last January is a temporary effect of the revolution in China contend that while war has checked the outflow of China's surplus silver and has created in addition a sudden demand for cash because of the damage to banking credit, a continuance of the fighting long enough to interfere with general agriculture and industry in the empire will have the opposite effect and make China a seller of hoarded silver. Silver yesterday remained at 25 1-16d in London, or 54⅝ cents an ounce, which is ⅛d, or ¼ cent, below the high price made last week.

Baltimore & Ohio.

Baltimore & Ohio is not yet a 5 per cent. stock, even if some of the market letter writers have fallen into the habit of considering it such. In the past fiscal year the company earned its full 6 per cent. on the common and had a margin of $1,343,846 left. Considering the number of new expense items which the company had to shoulder in this period, with the concessions made to the labor unions and the enactment of "full crew" legislation, this result is better than had been expected. The Baltimore's increase in operating costs, coupled with its loss in gross earnings, brought about a decrease of $2,188,000 in net earnings as compared with 1910.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Prices Irregular in London, Firm in Paris, Very Firm in Berlin.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Money was firmer to-day. Paris obtained most of the $5,000,000 gold offered in the open market, but discount rates were easier.

The stock market was irregular. The railway men's dissatisfaction with the report of the Railway Commission made home rails weak, and Consols were depressed by realizing, while Paris offered Kaffirs and other favorites. Foreign rails were steady.

American securities opened quiet and steady and advanced during the first hour. Then the market reacted on New York selling, and the list declined under the lead of United States Steel. Canadian Pacific was a firm exception, and advanced a point during the late trading. The closing was easy.

Money, 1½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅛@3¼ per cent.; for three months' bills 3⅝@3⅞ per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 8.95; at Lisbon, 9.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 95f 20c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 16c for checks.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—Trading was active and prices were very firm on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 48½ pfennigs for checks

Money, (for over the settlement,) 5½ per cent.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

MORE ARBITRAGE TRADING

Boston and Philadelphia Markets Devoted to Copper and Steel Orders.

Yesterday's markets in other cities were very quiet, although some issues scored gains at Baltimore.

Prices were firm, but trading was inactive. Fairly good demand prevails for short-term notes and bonds yielding about 5 per cent.

Owing to the lack of interest in copper shares, partly due to the marked weakness in American Smelting shares, and the easier tendency of the market for the metal, the arbitrage stocks were the most active issues on the Boston board. But in these business was not particularly active.

Moderately higher prices prevailed on the Chicago Stock Exchange Monday, but changes for the most part were rather insignificant in extent. At its best, Sears-Roebuck rose a point above Saturday's final, and then eased off a fraction, leaving a net gain of a little more than a half point. Commonwealth Edison ended with a gain of close to a full point, but smaller fractional advances prevailed in Swift, Diamond Match, McCrum-Howell preferred, and People's Gas. A decline of ¾ in Chicago Railways series 2s was one of the heavier features. Directors of the Chicago Elevated Railways are expected to meet soon for the purpose of acting in the matter of dividends on the preferred stock. At the time the local elevated railroads were taken over it was agreed that the first dividend of 1¼ per cent. for the quarter on the cumulative preferred stock should fall due Dec. 1. The Elevated Railways Board, therefore, must take action soon.

Until the last hour, when a revival of interest in Lake Superior lifted that stock to 28½, compared with 27½, last week's final figure, the Philadelphia market was exceedingly quiet except for the trading in the arbitrage shares, particularly United States Steel. The latter was churned to the extent of about 13,000 shares during the session. Lake Superior Corporation income bonds were quiet, bids at 68½ failing to find any supply.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT—Wheat closed at a gain of ½c to ⅝c, with shorts fair buyers during the day. The advance was due to reports of a better interior cash demand and less aggressive selling of forward deliveries, while the foreign markets were somewhat steadier. World's exports were not as heavy as expected, amounting to 10,700,000 bushels, against 10,160,000 bushels the previous week, and 15,424,000 bushels last year. The American shipments were 4,440,000; Russian, 2,456,000 bushels, and Danubian, 1,880,000 bushels. The amount on passage increased 2,136,000 bushels. There were reports of further rains in the Argentine and favorable crop prospects. The receipts were very heavy in the Northwest, amounting to 879 cars at Duluth and Minneapolis, against 657 cars last year, while the Winnipeg receipts amounted to 1,742 cars, against 695 cars last year. The American visible increased 803,000 bushels, making the total 62,618,000 bushels, against 40,120,000 bushels a year ago. The Canadian visible was delayed owing to a holiday—Thanksgiving—at Winnipeg. The interior receipts for the day were large, exceeding last week and last year, and amounted to 1,526,000 bushels. The market late was influenced by reports of fairly good export sales of Manitoba wheat and reports of good sales for milling at the West. The export sales were not confirmed, and after the close the reports of milling sales at Duluth were changed to reports of a cargo of wheat to go to Chicago, and the report of a sale at Buffalo of 100,000 bushels was denied. Cash wheat was quoted, No. 2 Red, $1.00⅝, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.16½; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.09; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.10⅝.

CORN—The market showed a gain of about ¼c, closing fairly steady at about the best of the day. The advance was due to the reports of unsettled weather at the West and claims of probable delay in the new crop movement, reports of lighter interior movement, a decrease of 610,000 bushels in the visible, to 2,500,000 bushels, and reports of a fair cash demand. The export sales amounted to 12 loads at outports, supposed to have been old business. World's exports were small, only 1,530,000 bushels, against 5,716,000 last year. The amount of corn afloat for Europe increased 536,000 bushels, and is now 4,497,000 bushels, against 24,436,000 bushels last year. No. 2 corn was quoted at 80c, free on board, nominal, for old, and 71¼c for new January to March.

OATS—The market was very quiet but steady, closing at a small net advance. There was a little speculative buying on the strength of corn. A Winnipeg report estimated the oats crop at 190,000,000 bushels for the three provinces, or 50,000,000 bushels more than last year. The American visible showed a good increase—752,000 bushels—and the total of 22,520,000 bushels is 5,500,000 bushels more than last year. Cash oats were steady, with standards and No. 3 white quoted at 52c, and No. 2 white 52½c.

PROVISIONS—Trade in hog products was very quite, prices improving a little for nearby deliveries. Distant deliveries were rather slow. Hogs were steady, with receipts at all points only 73,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Prices changes were rather insignificant during the day, with the undertone steady. There appeared to be some further Western buying and short covering for refining interests, while it was also claimed that a prominent concern was still interested in maintaining prices. The crude situation showed a slight easing, but despite this and the fact that new low levels were scored in the cotton market, emphasizing the possibility of a crop above earlier expectations, pressure on oil futures was not great. Crude quoted at 4.33 to 4.40.

COTTON.

With new low levels established, sentiment in cotton circles was inclined to grow more bearish. Pressure was in evidence on the slight upturns and following opening declines of from 2 to 8 points a sagging tendency was witnessed, with feeble rallying power displayed, the close being within a few points of the lowest prices recorded in over two years. Selling by the South appeared to be in heavier volume, with Wall Street on both sides, but thought to have sold on balance. This pressure in connection with the bear aggressiveness at times proved sufficient for the inquiry from shorts and trade interests.

Paramount in the day's news developments was the failure of frost to materialize over Sunday. The weather map was construed as bearish, with only scattering rains noted, while the weekly forecasts from Washington held out little hope of injurious climatic conditions developing for the next few days. Moreover, receipts for to-day are expected to be very heavy; in fact, some authorities are predicting a movement of record proportions, probably 125,000 bales at the ports, against the previous largest total in November, 1908, of approximately 123,000 bales. In some quarters the disposition was to attribute this large movement to the month-end clearances.

Advices of more determined holding on the part of farmers was not in accordance with receipts, but withal it is the impression that the South is not marketing so freely, but still in large enough volume to prevent an advance in the spot basis. Some interests maintain that obligations falling due between the 1st and 15th of November will necessitate more or less liquidation, and in the meantime private advices are extremely contradictory. Reports from the Western belt were that in many localities accumulations were taking place rapidly, while from other sections the tenor of the spot reports was less bearish. The renewed agitation at the South for higher prices, with further co-operation reported in the attempts to bring about a plan somewhat similar to the Brazilian valorization scheme, is attracting attention, but was not an important market influence. Other authorities believe the valorization idea is impractical, and suggest sufficient warehouse facilities to store product, the farmers receiving against it at a low rate of interest a portion of its value, thus withdrawing the cotton temporarily from the market until the manufacturer needs it.

An estimate by Neill Brothers of Liverpool for a crop of 15,200,000 bales was bearishly regarded. Liverpool cables yesterday were rather disappointing, with no important change in foreign political disturbances. Southern spot markets were unchanged to ⅛c lower, and the local spot market was .10c lower, with middlings 9.35c. Exports are 2,262,000 bales, against 1,938,000 bales last year.

COFFEE.

Coffee met a heavy selling movement and started 10 to 34 points lower. Prices rallied during the early afternoon on firm cost and freight offers, but again eased off on reports of an easier spot market, closing at a net loss of 10 to 21 points, with sales of 94,000 bags. Havre was 1¾ to 2 francs lower; Hamburg declined 1¼ pfennigs, and in Brazil prices were unchanged and largely nominal. Reports on the flowering have been very unfavorable, but there is yet the possibility of a good November flowering, as well as an August flowering, after the first of the year. Receipts at Rio and Santos were 65,000, compared with 48,000 last year, and the continued heavy movement, with prospects for an increase of 800,000 to 1,000,000 bags in the world's visible supply, has influence. Warehouse deliveries of Brazilian coffee at United States ports for the week were 129,209 bags, against 117,097 the previous week and 110,036 last year.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

7,513. MOVING PICTURE FILMS.—An American Consulate reports there is a good field in his district for making many beautiful and interesting moving picture films. He writes that there is a young artist who speaks the native language as well as English, and who has recently completed a course in moving picture film-making. If any American companies are interested in entering this field he will be glad to hear from them and to cooperate with them in every possible way.

7,514. PAPER TOWELS.—A report from an American Consular officer in the United Kingdom states that a resident of his district has expressed a desire to be placed in communication with the manufacturers of paper towels in the United States.

7,515. WOODENWARE AND HARDWARE.—A British firm is desirous of acting as agents for American manufacturers of woodenware or hardware. The firm claims to have valuable connections with woodenware and hardware jobbers, as well as mill finishers, in large centres throughout England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales.

7,516. AMERICAN REVOLVERS.—An American Consul in a Mediterranean country reports that a business man in his district desires to be placed in communication with American manufacturers of revolvers. He has a large local trade, and also exports to African countries.

7,517. HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, KITCHEN UTENSILS, AND BICYCLES.—A report from an American Consular officer in the United Kingdom states that a resident of his district is desirous of acting as agent for American exporters of household furniture, kitchen utensils, and bicycles.

7,518. DOG MUZZLES.—A notice issued by a foreign Government makes the muzzling of dogs compulsory. An American Consul reports that the order has created a demand for imported dog muzzles, muzzles being made locally only in a small quantity by hand. The police have selected for use a type either of stiff leather or of metal.

7,519. LAC FROM INDIA.—A business man in India has requested an American Consular officer to put him in touch with possible purchasers of lac in the United States. He claims that his firm manufactures several varieties of this article, and has secured patents in the United States. He would like to hear from firms interested in the employment of his patent process.

7,520. MOHAIR.—An American Consul in South Africa reports that several exporting firms in his district desire to secure names of American mohair importers. Direct dealing with importers is preferred to a commission house arrangement.

B. & O. PROFITS LESS.

Balance Earned Above Dividend Requirements Was $1,343,000.

The Baltimore & Ohio earned last year a balance of $1,343,000 over its preferred and common dividends. Its gross revenues were $88,145,000, a decrease of $756,000; its operating expenses $62,766,000, an increase of $1,432,000, and its net earnings $25,378,000, a loss of $2,188,000.

Analyzing the traffic receipts, the earnings from freight traffic decreased $1,778,175, or 2.56 per cent., the tonnage carried being 60,547,887, a decrease of 2,249,858 tons, or 3.58 per cent.

Commenting on the expenses, President Willard states: "The increase in transportation was principally occasioned by the increase in wages, which was largely due to advances in rates of pay, effective the latter part of the fiscal year 1910. The interruptions to traffic incident to the extensive betterment work carried on at numerous points also affected adversely the transportation costs, and recent legislation, State and Federal, notably the so-called 'Full Crew' bills, has had similar effect upon the expenses."

Bank Bonds for Postal Savings.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—To accommodate banks in the smaller cities Postmaster General Hitchcoc has decided that the minimum amount of bonds to be accepted from banks qualifying to receive deposits of postal savings funds at third-class Post Offices shall be reduced from $5,000 to $1,000. Additional bonds will be required as the deposits at any office increase.

WICKERSHAM AMENDS TOBACCO TRUST PLAN

WISE ANSWERS FOR HIM

Hearings on the proposed plan for the disintegration of the Tobacco Trust were begun yesterday before Judges Lacombe, Ward, Noyes, and Coxe of the United States Circuit Court. Such rapid progress was made that there will be little for the court to do to-day except listen to oral argument on behalf of the Government. The proponents and opponents of the plan were heard through counsel yesterday and the side of the Government was set forth in a cross-petition which was filed as soon as court convened.

There has been much interest as to whether an agreement on the Government's attitude would be reached between Attorney General Wickersham and his special assistant, James C. McReynolds, who has roundly denounced the Tobacco Trust's plan. Lawyers for the independents at once looked to see whether the cross-petition was signed by both. They found it was signed by neither, but by District Attorney Henry A. Wise, who has never before had any connection with the Tobacco Trust case. This made it unnecessary, at least for the time being, for Mr. McReynolds to take any position officially for or against the plan, beyond the objections made ostensibly by Mr. Wise.

The answer of the Government stated at the outset, however, that Mr. Wise acted by direction of the Attorney General. It was a body blow for the independents. None of their broad general contentions was supported by Mr. Wickersham. There was no suggestion in the document that the trust should be divided into a larger number of new companies than provided for in its own plan; that the stock in the new companies should be held by separate groups of stockholders independent of and unconnected with each other, or that the distribution of brands and factories should be changed, to avoid a monopoly by each in different territories and different kinds of tobacco, both in the purchase of the leaf and in marketing the product.

Wants Cigar Stores Cut Loose.

Mr. Wickersham did ask, however, that the United Cigar Stores Company be set off entirely by itself, with a new ownership distinct from that of the American Tobacco Company. His proposal was "that the stock of the United Cigar Stores Company be sold and distributed to parties other than the twenty-nine individual defendants or others of the common stockholders of the American Tobacco Company, to the end that the corporation be entirely separated from any connection with the corporations to which the properties and businesses now in the combination are to be distributed."

The Attorney General, by refraining from suggesting any general changes in the structural features of the plan, apparently acquiesced in its outlines. He urged, however, a number of safeguards to prevent the resumption of illegal practices, and argued that the new companies should be bought and kept under the jurisdiction of the court for five years, with the right reserved to the Government of asking further relief. On this point he said:

> Obviously the effect of any plan of disintegration submitted to the consideration of the court must be more or less a matter of conjecture, and it is impossible for the court to determine in advance whether or not a plan which proposes to restore competitive conditions will actually accomplish the purpose intended. Any decree ascertaining and determining upon a plan should therefore reserve to the Government the right at any time within five years from date of entry to apply to the court for other and further relief upon a showing that, as a matter of fact, such plan has not resulted in creating a new condition, which shall be honestly in harmony with and not repugnant to the law. To that end, as well as for the other purposes hereinafter expressed, each and every of the new corporations proposed to be organized for the purpose of carrying out the plan should be brought in as a party to this suit, in order to be subjected to the jurisdiction of the court and bound by its decree.

The Proposed Safeguards.

The Attorney General further proposes that a number of conditions to the approval of the plan be imposed, to remain in force for five years. The more important are that the corporations into which the trust is to be divided shall not have any officers or Directors in common; that the American Tobacco Company and the so-called accessories shall have no stock interest one in another; that none of the new companies shall have the same agent for the purchase of leaf or the sale of product as any other; that no two of them shall hold stock in any other corporation; that none of them shall acquire the stock, property, or business of any other; that the twenty-nine individual defendants be enjoined from acquiring stock beyond their present proportionate interest; that none of the companies shall have as much as 40 per cent. of any particular line of the tobacco business; that contracts between the trust and the British-American Tobacco Company giving the latter the exclusive right to manufacture and sell in foreign countries brands belonging to the trust be rescinded.

As to the future, the Attorney General asks that the defendants, "their respective officers, Directors, agents, servants, and employes be forever enjoined and prohibited from continuing or carrying into further effect the combination adjudged illegal by the Supreme Court, and from entering into or forming any like combination or conspiracy the effect of which is or will be to restrain commerce in tobacco or its products, or in articles used in connection with the manufacture and trade in tobacco and its products, among the States or in the Territories or with foreign nations, or to prolong the unlawful monopoly of such commerce obtained and possessed by the defendants, as adjudged herein in violation of the act of Congress approved July 2, 1890."

Mr. Wise also filed, "by direction of the Attorney General," an answer to the petition of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland, which asked that the court's decree in regard to it be limited to an annulment of the contracts by which it was agreed that only the American Tobacco Company should operate in this country, only the Imperial in the British Isles, and that the rest of the world should be left to the British-American Tobacco Company, owned by them jointly.

In addition to the annulment of these contracts Mr. Wickersham asked that the American Tobacco Company be enjoined "from uniting with the British-American Company in the employment of a common agent for the purchase of leaf tobacco in the United States and from uniting with any of the corporations among which the properties and business now in the combination are to be distributed in the employment of a common agent for the purchase of leaf tobacco or any of the products of tobacco."

In the hearing which followed the filing of the Government's answer those favoring the plan were heard first. Lewis Cass Ledyard spoke for the American Tobacco Company and all other defendants except the Imperial Tobacco Company, the United Cigar Stores Company, and R. P. Richardson, Jr., & Co. The American Tobacco Company and the Richardson Company have settled their differences, and the latter has dropped out of the case. Charles R. Carruth, its counsel, was an interested auditor throughout the day. With Mr. Ledyard were the other counsel for the same interests, De Lancy Nicoll, Williamson W. Fuller, and Junius Parker.

Mr. Ledyard described in detail the complicated features of the plan as published at the time when it was filed, and declared that it was an honest and effective attempt to carry out the mandate of the Supreme Court.

Wickersham's Advice Followed.

"If the condition which it will create had prevailed before," he said, "there can be no doubt that it would never have come under the condemnation of the court."

Mr. Ledyard frequently referred to conferences with Attorney General Wickersham and to the latter's insistence that the American Tobacco Company was too large an entity under the original plan of reorganization. This resulted, Mr. Ledyard described, in amending the plan further distributing the holdings of that company, and going to "a point in my opinion far beyond the requirements of the law."

As to the subject of where the control of the new companies would be, Mr. Ledyard referred to disposition of the stock in the British-American Tobacco Company held by the American Tobacco Company, and predicted that control of the great foreign tobacco trade would soon pass from American capital to the Imperial Tobacco Company. He further declared that while the individual defendants own 60 per cent. of the common stock and only 30 per cent. of the preferred stock, the creation of new voting class of preferred stockholders assurred the control of the dividend companies to the preferred stockholders.

Mr. Ledyard admitted that the plan might be improved, but he had no doubt that it would restore competitive conditions in the tobacco trade.

"We have viewed with dismay," Mr. Ledyard concluded, "the amount of disruption involved in this plan, and the expense to which the common stockholders will be put. Still we have done it, loyally and in good faith."

Spokesman for Bondholders.

Morgan J. O'Brien spoke for a majority of the 6 per cent. bondholders.

"Whether from the standpoint of the law, or in consideration of public policy, or in the interest of the security holders," he said, "we think the plan should receive the favor of the court. We have gone as far as it was possible to go, having in mind the interest of the public that we should not destroy the business itself, and in the interest of the security holders. More disintegration would mean the necessity for further and indefinite delay. It would lead to interminable disagreements among the security holders as to their shares. Under this plan they are all willing to accept the new securities proposed. It will not do to destroy the rights to property. As between the approval of this plan and a receivership there is no middle ground. Its opponents would gain nothing by a receivership. No one but the twenty-nine individual defendants could think of purchasing the property."

Joseph H. Choate represented a majority of the 4 per cent. bondholders.

"I represent the innocent investors, the public," he said. "Whoever has been guilty, they have been absolutely innocent. Our committee has decided to ask approval of this plan as better serving the interests of the bondholders than any other course that could be taken. It comes as near a solution as the lot of humanity permits. We urge its adoption substantially as it stands."

J. S. Schnitzler, owner of ten of the 4 per cent. bonds, urged briefly that any bondholder not satisfied with the exchange of securities provided by the plan should have the right to demand payment at par.

Adrian H. Larkin, speaking for a majority of the preferred stock, said he believed the plan was an honest and fair effort to comply with the decree of the Supreme Court, and that he believed every holder of preferred stock would make the exchange provided for.

L. C. Krauthoff appeared for the owners of some 5,000 shares of common stock not connected with the dominant interest. He urged the adoption of the plan.

Argues for Imperial Contracts.

William B. Hornblower, counsel for the Imperial Tobacco Company, conceded that the agreements for division of territory and not to compete must be annulled. Executed contracts, such as the purchase of Ogden's, Ltd., by the Imperial from the American Company, should stand. The brands covered, he said, belonged to Ogden's before it was acquired by the American Tobacco Company.

Solomon M. Stroock, for the United Cigar Stores Company, assented to the plan and took exception to proposals that his company should be disintegrated.

"It's only relationship to the trust," he said, "is the ownership of two-thirds of its stock by the American Tobacco Company. The Government didn't ask that it be prohibited from engaging in inter-State commerce, but merely that the American Tobacco Company be kept from controlling it. It was never contended that the United Cigar Stores Company should be dismembered or dissolved. It controls only 3 per cent. of the retail sales of the country in value and only one-sixth of 1 per cent. of the total number of stores. Under this plan the twenty-nine individual defendants would own less than 38 per cent. of the stock."

It was now the turn of the opponents of the plan, and the first speaker was Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America, and the Independent Tobacco Salesmen's Association, and representative of the State of Wisconsin. Mr. Brandeis repeatedly emphasized the contention that the solution of the problem before the court depended on actual trade conditions rather than on considerations of law.

"No question of law has been discussed," he said, "on which there is an issue between the proponents of the plan and the remonstrants, but there is an egregious difference as to the effect of the plan in restoring competition, as required by the Supreme Court decree. Whether or not the plan does create conditions that will make fair competition possible and probable depends on human nature and facts that can be ascertained only from a knowledge of trade conditions."

Can't Compete With Themselves.

The mutuality of stock ownership, Mr. Brandeis urged, would preclude real competition. One of the Judges asked what right the court would have to separate the stockholders into groups.

"The court," he replied, "has the power to say that if certain things are necessary to accomplish the result it will not assent to any plan which does not contain them. The most important point is that the corporations which it is proposed to create as competitive companies shall be held as distinct groups of individuals. No man or body of men can compete with themselves.

"It may be said that in the course of time and in the natural course of events we should have a differentiation of ownership that would bring about real competition, but we can't wait for that, and the Supreme Court didn't intend that we should wait for it. The time when the independents need competitive conditions is the present time. The very day the plan is put into operation we must have distinct ownership."

Mr. Brandeis went on to argue how this could be effected on the analogy of the partition of property held in common. That this was practicable, he said, was shown by the fact that the company's counsel had already determined, in working out a division between three companies, the relative values involved.

"The first step," said he, "is that the plan must produce conditions of fair competition. If it does not, this court has no power to approve it, no matter how agreeable it may be to the security holders."

Mr. Brandeis then took up the size of the new companies as precluding effective competition and cited the fact that each of the three would have more of the cigarette business of the country than all the independents combined.

"Even if these businesses were really separately owned," he said, "their disproportion in size is such that real competition would be absolutely impossible on the part of independents, and there would be no competition worthy of the name between the three entities themselves. Turning to brands and factories, the division has the appearance of competition, but it is an appearance only. That distribution is such that each becomes in many respects a monopoly in itself.

A Matter of Fact, He Says.

"The cigar trade is spoken of as if it needed no protection because of the relatively small proportion held by the Trust. But, the dealers are learning from the fate that has befallen their fellows in other departments and are greatly apprehensive.

"So far as the bondholders are concerned, no plan could be adopted that would sacrifice them. The assets are so great that it would be impossible.

"Competition is a fact, not a legal matter. It is not a question of reasoning, but of fact. You won't exert yourself unless there is somebody opposed to you that is exerting himself. The independents would be worse off than now; there would be four great companies instead of one, each gunning for them, each gunning for the same body of men. The United Cigar Stores Company has attained so unique a position that it is in itself a menace to trade. It may be perfectly true that its existence might not affect independents in some cities where it does not operate, but the question must be determined according to the facts where it does operate. In all such places it is driving out competition. That is a fact. You can't get around it by reasoning about percentages."

Judges Lacombe and Noyes asked several questions as to what power the court would have to disintegrate the United Cigar Stores Company.

Power of the Court.

"It has power," said Mr. Brandeis, "to issue an injunction against inter-State commerce on the part of the Cigar Stores Company as well as the American Tobacco Company. If an injunction were invoked the Cigar Stores Company would divide itself."

Felix H. Levy spoke for the same organizations of independents, and also made an appearance for the Attorney General of Kentucky, from whom he read a letter denouncing the company's plan and indorsing that of Messrs. Brandeis and Levy.

"As to the restoration of competition," said Mr. Levy, "when the men now in control would have the power to prevent it, we must judge by the past conduct of the controllers of this combination. It is not likely that they would fail to avail themselves of the possibility of retaining the mastery of the industry. The plan is to separate and dissolve, but to retain control of the trade."

Mr. Levy read a letter written by Percival S. Hill, First Vice President of the American Tobacco Company, ten months after it had acquired control of the United Cigar Stores Company, in which he declared that the trust had no interest in it. He also read a letter to C. C. Dula, another Vice President, from one of the company's agents in regard to plans for bringing on a strike in the plant of an independent.

"Men who will do things like these," he declared, "would lose no opportunity to take advantage of the situation."

Henry H. Hunter, counsel for the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, said his clients could see no real relief in the plan submitted. They would suggest that some other plan be devised, or, better still, that a receiver be appointed.

Speaks for Three States.

S. W. Williams, Attorney General of Virginia, speaking also for the Attorneys General of North and South Carolina, said:

"We have heard from the Stock Exchange and from the trade rivals of the combination but not a word from the producer. We are here to insist that he shall have a fair market and this plan does not give him one."

John W. Yerkes spoke for the Independent Manufacturers' Association. He said the proposed plan did not restore competition or admit of it either between the new companies or between them and the independents.

A representative of Attorney General Carmody of New York also protested against the plan, and referred to the objections that had been filed with the court.

E. J. Justice, representing the North Carolina Farmers' Union, pictured the poverty of the tobacco growers of that State since the formation of the Tobacco Trust and destruction of competition.

"In proportion as these defendants have accumulated their vast fortunes which they call their vested rights, in that proportion have the tobacco growers of North Carolina lost the accumulations of competitive times," said Mr. Justice.

"I have no doubt these twenty-nine defendants can appeal to common stockholders as successfully to secure elections of advantageous Directors as they now can to assure election for themselves."

This concluded the arguments in opposition to the plan and court was adjourned to 10:30 this morning.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Deal in Times Square Section for 48th Street Hotel—$400,000 Apartment House Sale on West End Avenue—Assembling Harlem Plot—Good Bronx Market.

An important building operation for the Times Square section in the nature of an apartment hotel is about to be undertaken as the result of a deal just closed in Forty-eighth Street, near Seventh Avenue. S. D. Cooper has sold to an investor the two parcels at 162 and 164 West Forty-eighth Street, the combined plot having a frontage of 34 feet, and is 100.5 feet deep. Samuel J. Underwood was the seller of 162, and the United States Trust Company, as trustee for the Horace Galpen estate, was the seller of 164. Both parcels have been in possession of the recent owners for over forty years. Old dwellings now cover the property, and it was said that the new owner intends to tear them down in the near future and erect an apartment hotel which will embody several novel ideas.

The property is a trifle west of the Playhouse, on the north side of the block, which was opened last season, and is opposite the old Sherman flats which were acquired some time ago by the Shuberts for a new theatre. In the same block, at 100 to 110, the Friars are about to erect their $500,000 clubhouse on the property bought last week. There have recently been several other deals in the same block which is being rapidly transformed from an old time dwelling headquarters into one of the prominent theatrical and club blocks of the Times Square region.

$400,000 Apartment House Deal.

One of the largest apartment house deals that has been closed in some time in the choice west side district was made yesterday by Leroy Coventry, who sold to an investor for Franklin Pettit the Carlyle dwellings on the southeast corner of West End Avenue and Eighty-second Street. The plot has a frontage of 102 feet on the avenue, and 100 feet on the street, and the property has been held at $400,000.

The Carlyle apartment was erected about five or six years ago. It was constructed on a liberal plan with only two families on a floor, the entire house having suites for but twelve families. All the rooms are large and the improvements are of the best type. This plan has since been followed in some of the largest and most modern structures on the west side. Leroy Coventry will also have the management of the house under the new ownership.

Important Harlem Sale.

An important deal in Harlem property that foreshadows the erection of a commercial building was announced yesterday by Isidor Lewkowitz, who purchased 2,015, 2,017, and 2,019 Fifth Avenue; three three-story and basement brownstone dwellings. The property was owned by Robert Gregg, Alfred Cohn,, and the Crittenden estate respectively.

For several years the buyer has held title to the southeast corner of 125th Street and Fifth Avenue, and with the three buildings just purchased, which adjoin the corner, he now controls a frontage of 73.11 feet on Fifth Avenue and 80 feet on 125th Street. There has been considerable activity on 125th Street east of Fifth Avenue, Lexington and Madison Avenue corners being leased for long terms at good prices. In addition to this there have been several sales, and stores that have been vacant are being rented.

Lexington Avenue Sale.

The four-story residence at 326 Lexington Avenue, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth Streets, has been sold by T. H. Cross. The lot is 19.7 by 75 feet.

Bronx.

An investor has purchased from the Maze Realty Company 639 Fox Street, a five-story new-law tenement, on a plot 40.7 by 125. The sellers are erecting a row of eight similar houses, 639 being the first one sold.

E. Loewenthal & Son have sold for Martin Sullivan the lot, 25 by 100, on the west side of Grand Avenue, 150 feet south of Jennings Street, to a builder for improvement.

F. Clinton has sold to the Brown Realty Company the plot, 150 by 160, on the east side of Undercliff Avenue, 150 feet south of 177th Street.

Sales in Yonkers.

Sales in Yonkers have been made by the McLaughlin-Seidel Company as follows: For Albertine Haubner the premises 91 Elliott Avenue to Margaret Harding; 45 Hamilton Avenue, for C. E. Bonelli to J. A. Jarvis; lots, 65 by 105, on South Broadway, at McLean Avenue, and 100 by 105 on Hamilton Avenue, between Post and Morris Streets, for the Herbereaux Company to the Legal Realty and Mortgage Company.

The Yonkers Realty Exchange will in the future be known as the McLaughlin-Seidle Company. A New York office has been opened at 543 West 162d Street. The sales department of the Yonkers office remains under the management of Thomas Burke.

Westchester.

The Runyan estate comprising about acres, between the Saw Mill and Tuckahoe Roads, Yonkers, has been purchased by a New York syndicate of which H. P. Rose is said to be President. The Putnam Railway runs through the property.

Leases.

Frederick Fox & Co. have leased for the Twenty-fifth Street Realty Company the first, second, and seventh lofts in the building 138 to 144 West Twenty-fifth Street, to Mann & Lovejoy, Bronfman & Shoinberg, and Goldstein & Ludwig, Inc., all manufacturers of cloaks and suits.

The Twenty-fifth Construction Company has leased the seventh loft in their two new buildings, 137 to 141 and 143 to 145 West Twenty-ninth Street, making a floor through of 108 feet by 90 feet, for a term of years to M. Stern & Co. for the manufacture of waists and costumes.

Leon S. Altmayer has leased for Mrs. Hattie A. Erdman the four-story and basement private residence at 14 East Ninety-second Street, in the rear of the Hammond and Burden residences. The new tenants are Mr. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim.

Vasa K. Bracher has leased an office at 2,010 Broadway to the Gilbert Manufacturing Company of New York and New Haven, manufacturers of motor accessories.

Estate Sale To-day.

Joseph P. Day will offer to-day, in the Vesey Street salesroom, for the estate of L. Mortimer Thorn 131 to 137 West Thirty-fifth Street, a plot 75 by 100, adjoining the Herald Square Theatre; 430 to 438 West Thirty-third Street, a plot 75 by 98.9, occupied by five four-story and basement brick dwellings; 63 to 67 Sullivan Street, plot 77 by 100, occupied by three five-story brick tenements to be sold separately, and then, as a whole, 618 Eleventh Avenue, a four-story brick tenement, on lot 25.1¼ by 100; 23 Cornelia Street, a vacant lot, 21.1 by 97.3.

Mr. Day will also offer at absolute sale the southeast corner of Frankfort and William Streets, known as 198 William Street, a six-story loft building; 64 University Place, a seven-story loft building, on plot 21.9 by 105.3, and 1,836 Bathgate Avenue, a three-story and basement frame private dwelling, on lot 25 by 102.

Hempstead Acreage Auction.

Bryan L. Kennelly will sell to-day at public auction in the Vesey Street room for the estate of J. W. Barnum seventy-nine acreage plots of one to five acres each, located on Jerusalem Avenue, and Barnum or Merrick Avenue, Hempstead. The property is known as Meadow Brook Farms and is surrounded by the estates of many prominent New Yorkers.

Adopts Budget Resolution.

The Realty League of the City of New York, at a recent meeting, adopted resolutions favoring an economical and businesslike administration of the city. To this end, after stating that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has asked for $40,000 to continue the work of standardizing specifications for supplies and $200,000 for expert services and for special inquiries with reference to budgetary allowances and other financial acts of the board, involving $300,000,000 annually, it was resolved that the Realty League emphatically indorses this tentative allowance by the Budget Committee, and urges upon the entire Board of Estimate and Apportionment allowance in the budget for 1912 of the $240,000 requested.

This is the first step by the Realty League in this agitation, and a systematic campaign of publicity is planned. Those present at the meeting were William C. Demarest of the Realty Trust; Charles Buek, Carlisle Norwood, Alfred R. Conkling, A. R. Bastine, and W. H. Hodgson.

LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET

WOODMERE, LONG ISLAND

Seventeen houses built from original plans, with every modern convenience, exposed plumbing, tile bath rooms, hot water heating and hard wood floors. Prices range from $6,500 to $22,500. These houses were built to help the development of Woodmere, Long Island, which place the owners and builders of the houses are greatly interested in. They will be sold on very liberal terms and at prices to return the builders a certain percentage of profit which under ordinary circumstances would not warrant the erection of modern houses of this kind. The prices are accurately figured and there will be no deviation from them. Woodmere, Long Island, is thirty minutes on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and more convenient to the average business man than any good residential part of New York City. If seriously interested, write to us and we will send you photographs of the houses, and prices.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Chinese Ornamented Shoes Pay as "Embroideries"—Jacquard Duty Lowered.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has decided that Chinese shoes with the upper parts highly embroidered are not the "shoes of leather" provided for in the Tariff act of 1897. The issue came before the board in the form of a protest filed by Soy Kee and other importers, who objected to the action of Collector Loeb in returning the articles as "embroideries" at the rate of 60 per cent. ad valorem, or as "cotton wearing apparel, not specially provided for," with a tax of 50 per cent. The protests also related to other shoes made of leather not embroidered. As to the latter, the board sustains the claim that they are "shoes of leather" and entitled to enter at 25 per cent. The embroidered shoes are held dutiable as assessed by the Collector.

A protest made by Theodore Kauffeld was sustained. The Collector returned the merchandise, which consists of goods in the piece, composed of silk and cotton, as "woven fabrics in the piece, not specially provided for," at the rate of $1.30 per pound, but not less than 50 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 387, Tariff act of 1897. The importer claimed the merchandise dutiable properly at 50 per cent. as Jacquard figured goods in the piece. The claim is sustained and the Collector reversed.

The board affirmed Collector Loeb's classification of laces, trimmings, and other articles composed of cotton imported by the H. B. Claflin Company. The merchandise was assessed for duty under Paragraph 349 of the present tariff, which provides for goods of the kinds imported. The protests were submitted on the official record. Judge Howell says that the record indicates no error on the part of the Collector, whose classification is presumptively correct. The protest is overruled.

The following claims were unsupported by evidence, and accordingly overruled: The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Company, Stern Brothers and others, C. N. Pettengill and others, H. Bischoff & Co. and others, and Wo On & Co. and other importers.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

I. SMULLYAN & CO., wholesale hardware dealers of 80 Warren Street, have made a settlement with creditors at 20 cents on the dollar, and yesterday Judge Holt confirmed the composition. The liabilities were $26,317.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—WILLIAM F. HAVEMEYER, plaintiff, against MITCHELL A. C. LEVY and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 2d day of October, 1911, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 2d day of November, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Herbert A. Sherman, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain plot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

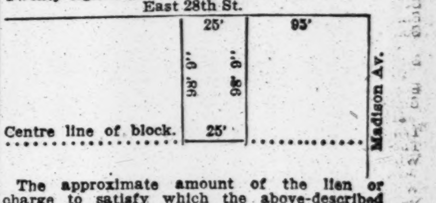
Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Twenty-eighth Street distant ninety-five feet westerly from the southwesterly corner of Twenty-eighth Street and Madison Avenue; running thence westerly, along the said southerly side of Twenty-eighth Street, twenty-five feet; thence southerly, in a line at right angles with Twenty-eighth Street, and part of the distance through the centre of a party wall, ninety-eight feet and nine inches; thence easterly in a line parallel with Twenty-eighth Street, twenty-five feet, and thence northerly in a line parallel with Madison Avenue, ninety-eight feet and nine inches to Twenty-eighth Street aforesaid, the place of beginning; be the said several dimensions more or less. Said premises being now known as and by the street number Twenty, East Twenty-eighth Street.

Dated New York, October 9th, 1911.

JAMES KEARNEY, Referee.

WILLIAM B. AITKEN, Attorney for Plaintiff, 165 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, N. Y. City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is Twenty (20) E. Twenty-eighth (28) Street, N. Y. City:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is Fifteen thousand, eight hundred ninety-seven 50-100 ($15,897.50) dollars, with interest thereon from the 29th day of September, 1911, together with costs and allowance amounting to Three hundred seventy-three 80-100 dollars, ($373.80,) with interest from September 29th, 1911, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, and water rates or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is: Croton water 1911, $38, and taxes, 1911, $1,360.75, and interest. The premises will be sold subject to a first mortgage of $66,000, with accrued interest thereon since Aug. 1, 1911, at 5½ per cent.

Dated New York, October 9th, 1911.

WARSHIPS ORDERED TO TRAIL VANIMAN

ACCIDENT STOPS A TRIAL

Motor Put Out of Commission Just as the Aeronaut Was About to Sail Aloft.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Admiral Leutze, Commandant of the New York Navy Yard, has been instructed to keep in touch with the aeronaut Vaniman, who is now fitting out a dirigible balloon at Atlantic City with a view to making a transatlantic passage, and to detail two warships to follow in the wake of the airship as far as practicable when the start is made. This must be before Nov. 15, according to the agreement.

It is understood here that the warships which will trail Vaniman's dirigible will be the scout cruiser Salem and one of the torpedo boat destroyers, probably the Reid. The Salem is commanded by Commander George R. Evans and the Reid by Lieut. Commander John S. Doddridge. The two vessels are among the fastest of their type afloat.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 30.—Melvin Vaniman's attempt to make a trial flight late to-day was foiled because a nut came loose on the auxiliary motor and jammed the machinery so that he could not start his motors. It was a disappointment to the air navigator as well as to the thousands who gathered to see the first flight of the balloon.

Vaniman and his men had no end of trouble with machinery to-day. Twice one of the big propellers stripped a gear, and once it split and ground a fastening pin. Altogether it took nearly three hours before these damages could be repaired. Then another trial was given to the engines, and everything seemed to be working satisfactorily.

The big airship was hauled out in the open by a gang of firemen and policemen, and the crowd cheered as the American flag was flown out at the stern of the craft.

When all the preliminaries had been arranged, Vaniman, amid the plaudits of thousands, climbed into the car and started the auxiliary engine. It moved off perfectly, but when he threw in the clutch to start the main motor there was a snap and the engines stopped.

Vaniman and his machinists tried to repair the damage while the balloon was outside, but it was no use. They could not start, and the balloon was taken back into the shed again. Vaniman is working to-night, and if the weather is fair he will make another attempt at flight at 10 o'clock to-morrow.

WAITERS DON'T WANT TO TAKE YOUR TIPS

Forced to Do So to Live, Say Some Who Are Planning Campaign to Reform the System.

DEMAND A LIVING WAGE

Blame Hotel and Restaurant Proprietors for Forcing Them to Seek Aid from Customers.

There won't be any more tipping of waiters, bellboys, or chambermaids in any of the hotels in this city—after a while. Two representatives of The International Hotel Work, a new monthly journal which is soon to make its appearance as the advocate of reform, confidentially told a TIMES reporter the news yesterday.

"Don't think for a moment that we like taking tips," said one of the men, at present not taking tips anywhere but in times past the head waiter at several of the largest Fifth Avenue and Broadway hotels. "Don't think we love to take your money for something that the hotel boss really ought to pay us for. Not us. We hate the tipping system. It lowers our profession. We wouldn't take tips except that we've got to in order to live. It's disgusting, and I am going to fight until the tipping habit is abolished."

A mass meeting of hotel workers was held in Lyric Hall, 725 Sixth Avenue, on Sunday night. There, under the guidance of Joseph Vehling, who once wrote a history of the modern hotel movement and who is the originator of the new movement which is intended to better the working conditions in the hotel industry, it was decided to let the public know that it is not the waiters, but the hotel proprietors, who keep the tipping system in vogue. At the close of the meeting a great number of waiters said that they would stand by Mr. Vehling in his fight.

"Think of it!" says the ex-head waiter. "There are 42,000 hotel workers in this city. I am not afraid to say that out of this number there are no more than 6,000, all of them waiters, who would not prefer abolishing the tipping system in favor of a substantial wage system. The 6,000 are those who are in 'solid'; those who jolly their bosses by giving them a great percentage of their tip money, and who wouldn't trust to working for a salary and being respectable men, just like any mechanic or bricklayer.

"All the other waiters in the city, I believe, are sick and tired of taking tips. They receive from $15 to $25 a month, a maximum of 83 cents a day. Give them $80 a month on the first of the month, and they would all be more satisfied and they would be more respectable men and the profession would be looked up to."

"Yes," chimed in the other man at this point, also a waiter and now employed at the Plaza, "and do you know what they expect of a waiter who works in one of the swell hotels in this city? He's got to be able to speak four languages. He needs French, so that he can talk to the chef; he needs Italian, so that he can talk to his 'omnibus,' who is a cheap boy who takes away the dishes and fills the glasses with water; he needs German, so that he can talk with his family, and he needs English, so that he can speak to the customers.

"Of course," the linguist-waiter continued, "a great many women in New York like to speak French to the waiters, but that is just a bluff. English is the most important. I've been in every country in Europe and have been at the business for eighteen years, and the tipping system is worse here in New York than I can stand for. Why, a man can't count on his tips even in the swellest places. The other day a man with a forty-dollar check gave me a one-dollar-and-a-half tip. The cook wanted his share, the head waiter wanted his share, the hat boy wanted his share, I had promised my 'omnibus' a quarter, and where did I come in? Besides, I had to give my 'omnibus' 50 cents for a new pair of rubber heels, and my rent on my livery—$2 a month—was due. The only thing I could really depend on was my salary of 83 cents a day."

"Talk about the injustices of the hotel system," put in the ex-head waiter; "I'll tell you a few things which I want you to think about.

"In the first place, the cost of living has gone up rapidly within the last ten years. At the same time, our wages have decreased. We can't carry food away with us from the hotel. What we get to eat there is bad enough. You ought to see it! Moreover, for our 83 cents a day we work sixteen to eighteen hours. We never see an eight-hour day. We never have a day off. We only go home to sleep a few hours. Our families can't come to the hotel to see us. We have no Sundays or holidays. When the free citizens are enjoying themselves we've got to hustle all the more. We are never paid for overtime, never paid for the hours of sleep we lose. We are skilled workers, many of us having put in ten to twenty years in the business. Where in this world can you find any other skilled workers accepting 83 cents a day and trusting to luck for a decent living?

"We pay fines for coming late, when our bones are tired from loss of sleep; we are fined for breaking things and for dropping a fork on the floor. What happens if we refuse to pay our fines? What happens if we get ptomaine poisoning or get sick through the fault of the hotel? It is a fact that the mortality among hotel workers is higher than in any other trade. Why is it that there are more consumptives and rheumatics among our class than among steel workers and miners? Why, the flunkey liveries for which we pay $2 a month may have been worn by twelve men before our chance comes and may be filled with disease germs. The hotels make as high as 500 per cent. on those liveries.

"We sign a contract in favor of the hotel man and we have our pay withheld for ten days. The waiter who starts in working to-day has to wait forty days for his first pay. He pays the employment agency when he gets his job. He has to keep his shirts laundered and his suits pressed, all at his own cost. Each right he has to 'pony up' with the boss. If he doesn't do it, even if he can't afford it, he loses his job.

"It's the same way with the chambermaids. They get $3 a week. The laundry girls get $6 a week. And if they want to keep their jobs they have to give up 25 per cent. of their earnings to a swell-looking housekeeper, who gets a salary of $150 a month, with rich food and a luxurious apartment to boot. That's the way it goes with this hotel business."

"But didn't you say that you weren't working as waiter just at present?" the reporter asked.

"Yes," he replied; "I quit a few days ago. I'm simply telling you these things because I know them. Can you blame me for quitting? But I'm coming back to my job when the tipping system is abolished, which I think it will soon be. I'll take $80 a month for the work I do from the man who employs me and not a cent from any one else."

DR. BODE ANSWERS ACCUSER.

Dr. Wilhelm Bode, Director of the Kaiser Friedrich Museum, Berlin, friend of the Kaiser and one of the most celebrated art critics in Europe, arrived last night on the North German Lloyd liner Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm. Dr. Bode probably is best known in America by reason of the discussion which followed his purchase of the bust of Flora for the Berlin Museum for $40,000. Dr. Bode pronounced this wax bust the work of Leonardo da Vinci. Others declared that the Flora was the work of Richard C. Lucas, an English sculptor, and that it was done in the Victorian era. Dr. Bode was assailed by critics in his own country and out of it.

Recently Dr. Bode's antagonists have made another attack upon his art judgment. The leader in this is Dr. Ludwig Abels of Vienna, who said that Dr. Bode first stated that a certain painting was not a genuine Rembrandt and then after the picture had passed into the hands of Gabriel Sedelmeyer, an art dealer of Paris, for a small sum that the Berlin critic reversed his opinion and called the work a Rembrandt. Dr. Bode denied both of these charges last night.

"Dr. Abels's accusations are not worth answering," said he. "Frankly I do not believe the picture is a fraud. I never gave out a statement as to whether it was a fraud or was not. I was called upon to judge, and I have never given such a decision. My idea is that the St. Francis referred to is a copy by a pupil of Rembrandt. I have never even said that it was a true copy. It is a painting of Rembrandt's time, and as such it is of value."

Dr. Bode was in the United States eighteen years ago. He did not have much to say regarding his future plans. It is understood, however, he will look over the collections of Mr. Morgan, Mr. Widener, and the Frick and Altman collections, as well as those of Mrs. Huntington and Mrs. Havemeyer.

ARSON AT OLD BRIDGE LAID TO RICH DEACON

HE ASSERTS HIS INNOCENCE

Prisoner Is a Large Landowner in Jersey Village That Has Been Terrorized by a Succession of Fires.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 30.—Ellis Appleby, a wealthy retired land owner, a member of one of the best-known families in Middlesex County, and a Deacon in the Baptist Church, came voluntarily to the office of Public Prosecutor Theodore B. Booraem here this morning and there heard a charge that he set fire on Aug. 31 to the general store of Selover & Stonaker, at Old Bridge, where the Appleby family has lived for many years.

Mr. Appleby's accuser is William M. Clemens, whose detective agency has been working on the case for many weeks, under the supervision of Prosecutor Booraem. Large rewards have been offered by the township and county authorities, in an effort to solve many mysterious fires which have terrorized the people of the village.

It was supposed they were committed by the person or persons responsible for the three Old Bridge murders. It is declared, however, that the investigation, which has been completed under the Prosecutor's supervision, has shown that the fires were in no way connected with the other crimes. The fires started about eight years ago.

First a distillery was burned. Then Charles Hodapp of Spotswood had his meat store burned four times.

Shortly after the last Hodapp fire, which occurred early in 1906, Mrs. Rachel Wright, an aged woman of Old Bridge, was found dead in her house, with her head crushed in. A few weeks later John and Charles Whiteman, father and son, who kept a saloon near Old Bridge, were found dead in their barroom. The supposition always was that Mrs. Wright and the Whitemans were killed because they had damaging evidence in the arson cases.

The investigation of the last fire, however, indicates that such was not the case. The detectives say the man they believe committed the murders left this part of the country several years ago.

Ellis Appleby is nearly sixty years old and pleasant mannered. He is an uncle of T. Frank Appleby, Mayor of Asbury Park, and a brother of Herbert Appleby, Postmaster at Old Bridge. Among his more distant family connections are George A. Helme and John W. Herbert of the American Tobacco Company.

Appleby was formerly in business in Asbury Park, but about twenty years ago retired and went to live in Old Bridge, which was his family home. He inherited large land possessions there, and owned, besides the house he lived in, the property adjoining, on which was a store kept by his brother, William M. Appleby. The latter died about four years ago, and the business was continued by his sons, Albert and Leighton.

Insurance Company Starts Probe.

After the Selover & Stonaker fire occurred the insurance companies started an investigation in conjunction with Prosecutor Theodore S. Booraem. The Prosecutor was no less in earnest about it, and has been devoting all his energy to the case. The Clemens Agency of New York was employed. Last Friday Clemens went to Appleby's house and practically accused him of the crime, and put him through a two hours' quizzing, which, it is understood, produced no admissions, and Appleby declared he would make it warm for anybody who accused him. He promised to come to New Brunswick this morning and answer any questions the Prosecutor wanted to put to him.

About 10 o'clock he came to Mr. Booraem's office, accompanied by his wife. A warrant issued by Judge Daly was served on him at the Prosecutor's office by County Detective Richard A. Peltier. He was then taken before Judge Daly, who fixed bail at $5,000. Appleby had had no opportunity to secure a bondsman, so he was allowed to go in custody of Peltier while he looked up security. He is worth in his own name many times the amount of the bail, but the Prosecutor would not accept personal bail. In response to a telephone message his nephew, Leighton Appleby, came here and gave the additional security.

After leaving the courthouse, accompanied by the Prosecutor, Peltier, and Clemens, Appleby asked if he could see a lawyer.

"That is your constitutional right, Mr. Appleby," replied the Prosecutor. "You may see any one you choose."

The party then repaired to Senator Silzer's office, where Mr. Appleby had a short talk with him, the result of which was that the Senator became counsel in the case. In the midst of this consultation Leighton Appleby arrived, and the party, reinforced by the Senator, returned to the courthouse, where the younger Appleby was accepted as bail. Ellis Appleby and his wife then returned to their Old Bridge home.

Appleby Says He Is Innocent.

"All I can say," said Mr. Appleby to-night, "is that I am innocent. I never dreamed of this charge until Friday night, when a detective came to my house and began talking. And he got hold of a pair of trousers of mine that I had sent away to be cleaned. I don't know what for."

Detective Clemens, while declining to outline the evidence he says he has, talked freely about the case this morning.

"From what we have been able to learn," he said, "this fire and the others were the work of a man who has a mania for that sort of thing. This man, we have established, is suffering from an alcoholic mania, and that this develops itself in this direction we are expecting to prove. He would buy a quart of whisky each day from one of the hotels around Old Bridge, and take it away, but was never known to take a drink over the bar."

Asked about the other crimes in Old Bridge, Clemens said:

"I can say confidently that the murders and the fires were not the work of the same persons. I was only sent to work on this last fire, but of course I have picked up some things in the other matters. The fires all seem to be the work of one person. The murders were not the work of that person."

Clemens admitted that the evidence against Appleby is entirely circumstantial, but said that this was invariably so in arson cases.

No definite motive for the fires is charged against Appleby. There is no evidence, it is understood, that he was the gainer by any of them, or that he had any animosity against the persons who suffered.

THANKSGIVING DAY, NOV. 30.

President Finds Cause for Rejoicing in Peaceful Year and Good Harvests.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—President Taft to-day issued his annual Thanksgiving proclamation, calling upon citizens of the United States to celebrate Thursday, Nov. 30, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, Here is the proclamation:

> The people of this land having by long sanction and practice set apart toward the close of each passing year a day on which to cease from their labors and assemble for the purpose of giving praise to Him who is the author of the blessings they have enjoyed, it is my duty as Chief Executive to designate at this time the day for the fulfillment of this devout purpose.
> Our country has been signally favored in many ways. The round of the seasons has brought rich harvests. Our industries have thrived far beyond our domestic needs; the productions of our labor are daily finding enlarged markets abroad. We have been free from the curses of pestilence, of famine, and of war. Our National councils have furthered the cause of peace in other lands, and the spirit of benevolence has brought us into closer touch with other peoples, to the strengthening of the bonds of fellowship and good-will that link us to our comrades in the universal brotherhood of nations.
> Strong in the sense of our own right and inspired by as strong a sense of the rights of others, we live in peace and harmony with the world. Rich in the priceless possessions and abundant resources wherewith the unstinted bounty of God has endowed us, we are unselfishly glad when other peoples pass onward to prosperity and peace. That the great privileges we enjoy may continue, and that each coming year may see our country more and more firmly established in the regard and esteem of our fellow nations, is the prayer that should arise in every thankful heart.
> Wherefore I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, designate Thursday, the thirtieth of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and I earnestly call upon my countrymen and upon all that dwell under the flag of our beloved country then to meet in their accustomed places of worship to join in offering praise to Almighty God and devout thanks for the loving mercies He has given to us.
> In witness thereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.
> Done at the City of Chicago, this 30th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eleven, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-sixth. BY THE PRESIDENT.
> P. C. KNOX, Secretary of State.

Some objection was made in business circles when it was first announced that the President would name Nov. 30 for Thanksgiving. Being the last day of the month, it interferes with statements and settlements which must be made on Dec. 1.

RECEIVER GETS HIS WATCH.

Sees It in Alleged Bankrupt's Pocket and Takes It for the Creditors.

Joseph Berler, fur manufacturer of 6 East Eighth Street, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Oct. 13, was before United States Commissioner Alexander yesterday in the Federal Building for examination.

Archibald Palmer, representing the receiver, during the examination noticed that Berler had a large gold watch in his pocket, and asked to look at it. Berler, when questioned, said the watch did not belong to him, but was his brother's. He could not, however, tell where his brother lives.

Mr. Palmer took the watch and turned it over to the receiver for the benefit of the creditors unless the brother can prove his ownership. The watch is worth about $50.

Comfort & Satisfaction

Are Two Conditions That Produce Happiness

Browning, King & Co

Both are possible with our new Overcoats. They combine the warmth that you require with styles that are our own exclusive designs without adding any unnecessary weight or straining your pocketbook.

For that snug, satisfied feeling, try on some of these Coats while the assortment is complete.

To-day, thanks to public enlightenment, the "Money-Back" principle is nearly as universal as the "One Price" system.

We have been practicing both for sixty years.

Overcoats in Raglan and Chesterfield Styles, Scotch effects, $20.00 to $40.00.

Shetland Wool Overcoats with Removable Leather Lining, for automobile and street wear, in Tweed, Heather Mixtures, Oxfords and Tobacco Brown, $35.00 to $50.00.

The usual fancy prices for Fur Coats will be a thing of the past when you see ours at $65.00 to $250.00.

RIVERSIDE DRIVE is the thoroughfare of fashion this week. Look at the officers ashore — observe the cut of their clothes when they shed their uniforms.

Tailors of the world's big ports all contribute to the composite picture.

Suits at $20 to $40 and overcoats at $25 to $50—unlike anything but the best grades of custom made goods.

Silk scarfs with rich substance—in this season's brocades and the plain colors affected by navy men — at prices materially under those of the very high priced shops.

Neckwear fabrics and styles that have made these Weber and Heilbroner ties standard with New York men.

Gloves of the best imported cape, cut with fashionable fullness—sturdy outseams—at $1.15 and $1.50.

Weber and Heilbroner hats are as thoroughly established as the clothes and haberdashery.

At $3, $4, and $5—with correctness and intrinsic value the sole specifications.
